A.M.A. BARES AGED-CARE PLAN

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association unveiled Saturday a plan for health care for the aged, and stated it would "provide far more" than the Johnson administration's program.

The AMA proposal, like President Johnson's, would require congressional action. The big organization of doctors, unyielding foe of White House medicare ideas, is set to enter the legislative battle as opponent of one plan and proponent of another.

The AMA plan would be based on the private-insurance system and would use machinery already functioning in 40 states under the Kerr-Mills Act, but with some changes.

The Kerr-Mills Act established federal-state cooperation in health care for people 65 or over. Both levels of government put up money. States handle the administration.

"Under the new program, an over-65 citizen would purchase through the private carriers (insurance firms) a wide spectrum of medical, surgical and hospital benefits, and would pay all, part or none of the costs of the policy, depending on his income," the AMA set forth in a statement.

"For individuals with incomes under the specified minimum, the state agency, using federal-state funds, would pay the entire costs."

The specified minimums were not listed.

"Aid would consist of comprehensive health-care benefits, rather than being limited to hospital and nursing-home care, representing only a fraction of the cost of sickness," the statement added. "Benefits for eligible recipients would include not only payment of hospital and nursing-home charges, but payment of medical, surgical and drug costs."

Dr. Donovan F. Ward, AMA president, who outlined the proposal in the statement and at a news conference, said eligibility for benefits would be determined quickly on the basis of a "simple income statement" by applicants.

"On the basis of this return alone," the AMA said, "an individual within the limits set by the states could immediately become eligible for benefits."

The insurance policies would vary by states.

An amendment to the present law would be re-

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly subcommittee Saturday accused the California public schools of supporting an army of coordinators, consultants and administrators who produce little value for either teachers or students.

The accusation was not new, but the subcommittee on school finance was the first to produce some objective evidence to support it.

The subcommittee, headed by Assemblyman Charles B. Garrigus, D-Reedley, made its accusation in a lengthy report covering a two-year investigation that took subcommittee members into "representative" school districts around the state.

• • • • •

ESSENTIALLY, the lawmakers wanted to know how California's 1,500 local districts spend the $1 billion annually they receive from the state. It is this amount that is immediately responsible for the need to raise state taxes this year.

"Frankly," Garrigus said, "the committee was shocked at the misapplication of funds for administrative and nonclassroom functions in many school districts."

The administrative and nonclassroom employes work under a variety of titles. Among those found by the Garrigus group were "the high potential consultant, the coordinating consultant, the community relations directors and the co-coordinator of nurses."

She has a yellow chiffon dress and a bright orange silk dress carefully folded in tissue paper in her suitcase.

Either one is just right for blue-eyed, blonde, 13-year-old Melissa Lee Baron to wear to President Johnson's Inaugural Ball.

"It's fantastic," said her mother, Mrs. Charles Baron. "Her father and I can't believe we're going to the inauguration —and all because of a child!"

Her astonishment began in October when the postman left a letter addressed to Miss Missy Baron, 4507 Palo Verde, Lakewood.

The return address: The White House.

Missy wasn't at all surprised. She had been waiting since early September for an answer to a letter she had written to President Johnson. She hadn't mentioned it to her parents.

Dated Oct. 12, 1964, the White House letter read:

Dear Missy,

The President has received your friendly letter and appreciated your interest in writing.

In connection with your request, all the arrangements for the Inaugural are under the authority of an Inauguration Chairman, who will not be appointed until after the election. May I suggest, therefore, that you direct your inquiry to this official when his appointment is announced.

With the President's best wishes,

Sincerely,

Assistant to the President

Missy waited impatiently for the election — never doubting that Johnson would win—then waited even more impatiently for the announcement of the name of the inaugural chairman.

When none appeared, she wrote again to "Inaugural Chairman."

On Nov. 27 she received this letter.

Bare Critical Lack in Navy Sub Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee published testimony Saturday charging critical shortcomings in the Navy's nuclear-submarine program at the time of the Thresher disaster off New England in April 1963.

Heavily fortified by testimony of Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, "father" of the nuclear submarine, the committee called for sharp improvement in Navy management and in assignment of personnel to complex technical programs.

It especially criticized a system which permits technical personnel to be shifted about before projects are finished.

• • • •

RICKOVER testified that the present system made the pinpointing of responsibility almost impossible and, in the Thresher case, "the nearest you can come is to say that the Navy is responsible . . . All you can do is to point to a collectivity."

The nuclear-powered Thresher vanished with 129 men aboard during a deep test dive off New England April 10, 1963. It was on its first voyage after overhaul at the Portsmouth, N.H., naval shipyard which came in for much committee criticism.

Loss of the ship set off one of the most far-reaching investigations and programs for future safety in Navy history.

Long Beach's famed aviatrix, Joan Merriam Smith, had a brush with death Saturday in a flaming crash in the rugged foothills of the Ord Mountains.

The 28-year-old Mrs. Smith, who completed a round-the-world flight May 13, was forced to crash-land when her plane, The City of Long Beach, a twin-engine Piper Apache, caught fire over the Mojave Desert near Barstow.

Mrs. Smith credited Eytchison, who holds a commercial flying license, with possibly saving her life.

She said:

Kidnap-Banditry Suspects Arrested

The discovery of a 20-year-old Compton man locked in the trunk of his parked car late Saturday touched off an investigation which resulted in the arrest of three kidnaping and robbery suspects.

James R. Hines, of 2509 W. Compton Blvd., Compton, was found about 9:15 p.m. beating and kicking to escape from the trunk of his auto abandoned in the parking lot at the foot of Magnolia Avenue.

Patrolman Gene McClendon managed to free Hines by ripping out the back seat of the compact car.

Once outside, Hines told McClendon and Officer Bill Bailey he had been kidnapped about 7:40 p.m. by three men when he stopped for a traffic signal on Rosecrans Boulevard, near his home in Compton.

Hines told the officers he overheard his three captors planning a robbery, and later recalled they had stopped for a short time. The three had robbed Hines of $10 before commandeering his car.

WHILE Det. Sgt. Bob Tally and Det. John Owens were checking Hines' story, two patrolmen on routine checks surprised three suspects holding a Lakewood man at gun-point in a supermarket parking lot at Long Beach Boulevard and Tenth Street.

PANAMA (AP)—National guardsmen hurled tear-gas grenades Saturday to keep about 40 demonstrators from marching on the Panama Canal Zone on the first anniversary of bloody anti-U.S. riots.

About 100 students and labor-organization members started the march toward the legislative palace, across the street from the Canal Zone, which was a focal point of the 1964 clashes.

National guardsmen stopped them about a block away. The demonstrators started to disperse but about 40 attempted to stand their ground. A half-dozen grenades of tear gas put them to rout, the whole area was cleared and traffic returned to normal.

• • • • •

THE GROUP was among 1,500 marchers who had paraded to the national cemetery and the grave of Ascanio Arosemena, the student who was the first to die in the 1964 rioting that took the lives of four Americans and 21 Panamanians.

The marchers carried anti-U.S. and antigovernment banners and chanted slogans. Among the marchers were persons either officially named as Communists or known to be members of the party.

As the procession marched past the legislative plaza in sight of the Canal Zone the students redoubled their chanting. At Santa Ana Plaza, a handful of marchers tore down the carnival flag raised last week. The carnival starts late in February.

• • • • •

PLANS to carry empty coffins symbolizing the Panamanian dead did not materialize. The streets were lined with spectators on the march to the cemetery.

L.A.C. Says:

Long on Ability Short on Integrity

One great, unanswered question is what the new congress and President will do about corruption in the federal government. About every other subject was covered by the President in his State of the Union speech. But nothing was said about the misuse of political power by himself and some of his close associates during his almost 30 years in Washington.

The characters that make up the Bobby Baker investigation are undoubtedly men of outstanding ability. It takes real ability to be secretary to the Democratic Senate members—as was Baker. It takes great ability to be a successful contractor to build great stadiums—as was the contractor charged with paying off to Baker for receiving a government contract. The insurance man, Don Reynolds, who says he was the go-between in these deals, must be very capable. But it is apparent they are all strong on ability—but short on integrity.

We refer to the lack of integrity in the sense that these men—and many others—are cold-blooded in their using public office and its influence to enrich themselves. In so doing, they not only raise the cost of government, but they destroy the people's confidence in government. This, in turn, is a weapon used by subversive groups to undermine the people's confidence in their government.

It is unfortunate that so many of our leaders seem to take this as a normal way of political life. The President ignores the principle that no public official should own securities or property wherein his public office can influence the value of that property. The nine-year Senate Secretary career of Bobby Baker was largely served under Senator—and Vice President Johnson. It is hard to believe he was unaware of the influence peddling by Baker.

Now as President, the Johnson fortune continues to increase. Its principal property is radio and TV stations under which the Federal Communications Commission has the power of decision. It has permitted the Johnson company to maintain a monopoly in Austin, Tex. The FCC members are appointed by the President and approved by the Senate.

Tragedy of the Bobby Baker case is that the Senate Rules Committee appears to be reluctant to publicly bring out the true story of this influence peddling. It is feared that it would involve other Senators and important personalities. Baker took the Fifth Amendment dozens of times to avoid incriminating himself. The contractor insists the over $100,000 of insurance payments said to involve a $35,000 payoff was an error in bookkeeping.

This disregard of ethics and integrity is not confined to Washington. The California State controller appoints men to appraise property for estate tax purposes. It is quite lucrative. The estate of a wealthy oil man recently was assessed $90,000 for the appraiser fees. It was estimated it took the appraiser only a few minutes' time to conduct his part of the work. During last year's primary election it was shown that these appraisers contributed most of the money for the U. S. Senate campaign of Controller Alan Cranston—the man who appointed them.

A large majority of the people accept these men as having great ability. They trust the President to deal with foreign affairs and should recognize his outstanding business ability. Bobby Baker had to have great ability to deal with the many Senators and department heads of government. But it should be recognized that if we accept ability without integrity, we are encouraging others to ignore the difference. It is therefore of the utmost importance that each of us avoid the tendency to accept what is wrong just because some public officials get away with it. If it is true, we have lost our capacity for indignation then surely we are lost as a decent people.—L.A.C.

Employers Try to Oust Docker

The Pacific Maritime Association, in an unprecedented move under the West Coast's pioneering longshore agreement, has taken steps to expel a Wilmington longshoreman from his job for his alleged disruptive activities on the waterfront.

The unusual action was taken against Pete Velasquez, a winch driver and former night business agent for Local 13 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The PMA, representing the shipowners, filed a 15-point bill of particulars against Velasquez, and last week a waterfront labor arbitrator took the charges under advisement following a three-day hearing in Wilmington.

* * * *

EFFORTS to decertify registered longshoremen have not been uncommon under the 4-year-old waterfront pact. But they invariably have been for pilfering and repeatedly failing to show up for work—activities unrelated to labor-management affairs.

In the Velasquez case, however, most of the charges stem from asserted breaches of the contract while Velasquez was an official of the union.

Hence, technically, Velasquez may be said to have been an employe of the union when the alleged contract violations occurred.

The case therefore raises the question of whether an employer can fire an individual for what could be construed as union activities.

In the opinion of one well-informed union attorney, the case also raises the question of management intimidation.

"If a union agent has to worry about his future job all the time he's in office, he's necessarily going to be less militant," says the lawyer.

This is not to say, he adds, that a union official may not be totally irresponsible — or even wild. But the fact remains that a firing of this type could easily set a bad precedent, he asserts.

For these reasons, the outcome of the Velasquez case could have far reaching implications for labor and management in general.

* * * *

VELASQUEZ, 33, is charged with triggering a number of work stoppages by illegally exploiting the health and safety rules in the contract, abusing the "extended time" provisions of the agreement and generally laying misplaced interpretations on other sections of the pact, including the manning requirements.

(Extended time refers to management's right to keep when a ship is within two or three hours of being loaded and ready to sail. Under the rule, replacements are not required to be called.)

The formal charges do not list the wage and production losses resulting from Velasquez's actions, but one management official puts them roughly at between $150,000 and $200,000 over the five-year period covered by the charges.

* * * *

VELASQUEZ has pleaded innocent to the charges, and his supporters have warned that if the decision goes against him, the shipowners can expect a rash of new labor trouble on the piers.

While it is difficult to determine just how meaningful such threats are, management concedes that trouble—minor or major—is "possible" if Velasquez is ousted. On the other hand, one veteran dock hand with long experience in Local 13 union affairs dismisses the threats as so much poppycock.

"I suppose a small clique could make some trouble," he declares, "but Pete doesn't have that much support. He's a night man, for one thing, and the night men, even if they were all behind him — which they aren't — make up only a quarter of the work force in the two harbors." Velasquez's supporters demur, saying he has overwhelming support.

Velasquez's troubles with management came to a head early last month when he and the rest of his night gang were fired for refusing to work until a safety check had been run on a boom that, earlier in the day, had fallen on the deck of a freighter.

According to a PMA official, the boom had fallen while the men were in the process of placing it in position that morning.

Following its restoration, a federal safety man was called, and, based on a visual examination of the boom, he declared it to be safe, the official said. The day shift then resumed work without incident.

* * * * *

SEVEN hours later, when Velasquez and others in the night gang came on, they learned the boom had fallen and demanded a more elaborate safety check. When management failed to comply, the men refused to work.

Rightly or wrongly, incidents such as these have made Velasquez the controversial figure that he is.

Among longshoremen, opinion on the case is divided.

"Pete's consistently beaten the employers in arbitration," asserts one of Velasquez's supporters, "that's why they're out to get him. They feel he has too much support (among the men), and they're out to break that support."

"Pete's a nice guy," replies another dock hand, "but let's face it, he's wrong on a majority of issues brought up. Sure they're after his registration as a longshoreman, but when it's all over, he'll probably only be suspended for a while."

Officially, the aggressive young dock worker has the unqualified support of the local leadership in his fight to retain his longshoreman status.

* * * *

IN A DEC. 29 bulletin to members of the local, Curt Johnston president of the unit, excoriated the PMA for having blackballed Velasquez before agreeing to take the case to arbitration.

Management concedes the brief blackballing took place (it lasted five days). A PMA official says it was done "to force the rapid functioning of the grievance procedure."

When arbitrator Germain Bulcke, a former longshoreman himself, gets through digesting the testimony he took last week from both sides, he'll rule separately on each of the 15 charges against Velasquez. His findings will then be turned over to the Coast Labor Relations Committee — a joint ILWU-PMA board—for a decision on Velasquez's right to remain a registered longshoreman.

If the board can't agree, it will hand the matter over to the coast arbitrator, whose ruling usually is final.

Thugs' Victim Dies in His Wife's Arms

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco businessman collapsed in his hysterical wife's arms Saturday and later died after he was attacked savagely and his skull smashed, police said.

"They hit me from behind," Thomas Haye, 48, told his wife. "I don't know why. . ." Then he lapsed into unconsciousness.

He died before he reached San Francisco General Hospital.

Police said they found blood on the curb where Haye had parked his car. He apparently was attacked with a bottle, found smashed near by.

It was not determined, officers said, whether Haye, who had spent Friday evening working at his All Purpose Fixture Co., was robbed.

Mrs. Haye, who speaks only Chinese, was too hysterical to telephone police when Haye staggered into their Telegraph Hill flat.

The attack happened only a few blocks from where a legal secretary was abducted and raped Wednesday night, police said.

L.A.C. Says:

Long on Ability Short on Integrity

One great, unanswered question is what the new congress and President will do about corruption in the federal government. About every other subject was covered by the President in his State of the Union speech. But nothing was said about the misuse of political power by himself and some of his close associates during his almost 30 years in Washington.

The characters that make up the Bobby Baker investigation are undoubtedly men of outstanding ability. It takes real ability to be secretary to the Democratic Senate members—as was Baker. It takes great ability to be a successful contractor to build great stadiums—as was the contractor charged with paying off to Baker for receiving a government contract. The insurance man, Don Reynolds, who says he was the go-between in these deals, must be very capable. But it is apparent they are all strong on ability—but short on integrity.

We refer to the lack of integrity in the sense that these men—and many others—are cold-blooded in their using public office and its influence to enrich themselves. In so doing, they not only raise the cost of government, but they destroy the people's confidence in government. This, in turn, is a weapon used by subversive groups to undermine the people's confidence in their government.

It is unfortunate that so many of our leaders seem to take this as a normal way of political life. The President ignores the principle that no public official should own securities or property wherein his public office can influence the value of that property. The nine-year Senate Secretary career of Bobby Baker was largely served under Senator—and Vice President Johnson. It is hard to believe he was unaware of the influence peddling by Baker.

Now as President, the Johnson fortune continues to increase. Its principal property is radio and TV stations under which the Federal Communications Commission has the power of decision. It has permitted the Johnson company to maintain a monopoly in Austin, Tex. The FCC members are appointed by the President and approved by the Senate.

Tragedy of the Bobby Baker case is that the Senate Rules Committee appears to be reluctant to publicly bring out the true story of this influence peddling. It is feared that it would involve other Senators and important personalities. Baker took the Fifth Amendment dozens of times to avoid incriminating himself. The contractor insists the over $100,000 of insurance payments said to involve a $35,000 payoff was an error in bookkeeping.

This disregard of ethics and integrity is not confined to Washington. The California State controller appoints men to appraise property for estate tax purposes. It is quite lucrative. The estate of a wealthy oil man recently was assessed $90,000 for the appraiser fees. It was estimated it took the appraiser only a few minutes' time to conduct his part of the work. During last year's primary election it was shown that these appraisers contributed most of the money for the U. S. Senate campaign of Controller Alan Cranston —the man who appointed them.

A large majority of the people accept these men as having great ability. They trust the President to deal with foreign affairs and should recognize his outstanding business ability. Bobby Baker had to have great ability to deal with the many Senators and department heads of government. But it should be recognized that if we accept ability without integrity, we are encouraging others to ignore the difference. It is therefore of the utmost importance that each of us avoid the tendency to accept what is wrong just because some public officials get away with it. If it is true, we have lost our capacity for indignation then surely we are lost as a decent people.—L.A.C.

WOULD LIFT HIS LONGSHORE TICKET

Employers Try to Oust Docker

By CHARLES SUTTON

The Pacific Maritime Association, in an unprecedented move under the West Coast's pioneering longshore agreement, has taken steps to expel a Wilmington longshoreman from his job for his alleged disruptive activities on the waterfront.

The unusual action was taken against Pete Velasquez, a winch driver and former night business agent for Local 13 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

The PMA, representing the shipowners, filed a 15-point bill of particulars against Velasquez, and last week a waterfront labor arbitrator took the charges under advisement following a three-day hearing in Wilmington.

* * * *

EFFORTS to decertify registered longshoremen have not been uncommon under the 4-year-old waterfront pact. But they invariably have been for pilfering and repeatedly failing to show up for work—activities unrelated to labor-management affairs.

In the Velasquez case, however, most of the charges stem from asserted breaches of the contract while Velasquez was an official of the union.

Hence, technically, Velasquez may be said to have been an employe of the union when the alleged contract violations occurred.

The case therefore raises the question of whether an employer can fire an individual for what could be construed as union activities.

In the opinion of one well-informed union attorney, the case also raises the question of management intimidation.

"If a union agent has to worry about his future job all the time he's in office, he's necessarily going to be less militant," says the lawyer.

This is not to say, he adds, that a union official may not be totally irresponsible — or even wild. But the fact remains that a firing of this type could easily set a bad precedent, he asserts.

For these reasons, the outcome of the Velasquez case could have far reaching implications for labor and management in general.

* * * *

VELASQUEZ, 33, is charged with triggering a number of work stoppages by illegally exploiting the health and safety rules in the contract, abusing the "extended time" provisions of the agreement and generally laying misplaced interpretations on other sections of the pact, including the manning requirements.

(Extended time refers to management's right to keep when a ship is within two or three hours of being loaded and ready to sail. Under the rule, replacements are not required to be called.)

VELASQUEZ has pleaded innocent to the charges, and his supporters have warned that if the decision goes against him, the shipowners can expect a rash of new labor trouble on the piers.

While it is difficult to determine just how meaningful such threats are, management concedes that trouble—minor or major—is "possible" if Velasquez is ousted. On the other hand, one veteran dock hand with long experience in Local 13 union affairs dismisses the threats as so much poppycock.

"I suppose a small clique could make some trouble," he declares, "but Pete doesn't have that much support. He's a night man, for one thing, and the night men, even if they were all behind him — which they aren't — make up only a quarter of the work force in the two harbors." Velasquez's supporters demur, saying he has overwhelming support.

Velasquez's troubles with management came to a head early last month when he and the rest of his night gang were fired for refusing to work until a safety check had been run on a boom that, earlier in the day, had fallen on the deck of a freighter.

According to a PMA official, the boom had fallen while the men were in the process of placing it in position that morning.

Here Comes the DC9

APPROXIMATELY 98% complete, the new Douglas DC9 twin-jet airliner moves up to the final station on the assembly line at Douglas Aircraft Group headquarters here.

By LEE CRAIG
L. P-T Aerospace Editor

It will be "D for Douglas" Day in Long Beach Tuesday as the first DC9, Amerca's newest jetliner, is rolled out into public view before 600 guests at Douglas Aircraft Company's plant here.

The sleek, twin-engined transport, Douglas' entry in the short-to-medium-range jet market, represents a $42-million injection into the city's economic bloodstream.

That sum will be paid annually to the 6,000 additional workers whose jobs will be created by production of the DC9. Douglas, with an investment of approximately $365 million in the Long Beach Airport area, employs about 14,000 persons.

Leading participants in ceremonies surrounding debut of the new transport will be Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges and Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Hodges, although unable to be presnt in person, will appear on film from his Washington, D.C., office and cite the economic significance of the DC9 program to the nation.

He will conclude with a signal at 11:30 a.m. to open the hangar doors and roll out the DC9.

Gov. Brown will be a keynote speaker at a dinner Monday evening in the Beverly Hilton Hotel following a press conference involving Donald W. Douglas, company board chairman; Donald W. Douglas, Jr., president; Jackson R. McGowen, vice president and head of the Long Beach aircraft division, and officials from customer airlines and major subcontractors.

Announcement that the DC9 would be placed in production came in April, 1963. Manufacturing began three months later and completion of the first DC9 is being accomplished a month ahead of schedule.

First flight of the 560-mile-an-hour jet is scheduled for March, beginning a test program which will extend through 1965. The planes are scheduled to go into airline service early in 1966.

Announced orders and options placed by overseas and United States airlines already total 118, representing a value in excess of $310 million.

The DC9 is designed to operate over routes of from 100 to 1,500 miles in length. Up to 90 passengers can be carried.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade termed the DC9's advent as "of tremendous importance to the greater Long Beach area" and said it meant reassertion of this community's leadership as a commercial aviation center.

Walt succeeds Jack Halpin, who resigned to run for state senator from the 5th District.

Brown said Walt's duties would be in the areas of industrial development, world trade and tourism.

The agricultural experts range from George El-Bogdadi, 28-year-old Egyptian government fruit- and vegetable-juice specialist who squeaks by with his family on the $280 a month his country provides, to B.E.H. El-Takrity, influential curator of the Cairo botanical gardens.

The students are spread over Southern California and Arizona but all are under the watchful eye of Transworld which works on direct contract with the Egyptian government.

"We're a private company and we make a profit," says training adviser Roger Williams, "Mr. Everything" in the project. "But there's one thing about it—there isn't a cent of U.S. money involved."

Williams arranges for housing to fit the income, contacts firms like Foremost and VitaPack for training visits. If a visitor speaks poor English that's also Williams' problem and a multilingual training specialist sets to work.

"Education is fine," says Williams, "but training must go with it. Both pose problems for governments of newly developing nations. Solving these problems is our job."

'Body' in Street Thugs' Decoy

A gang of thugs used a "traffic victim decoy" Saturday to rob a 24-year-old Long Beach man, police said.

Irvin G. Pebley, 2303 E. Ocean Blvd., told Officer Paul Seminara the robbery happened about 2:40 a.m. in the 200 block on Locust Ave.

Pebley said he was driving south on Locust when he saw a "body" lying in the street. He said he stopped to see if he could help, only to find himself the target of a robbery.

The victim said the "body", and three companions who had been hiding nearby, suddenly attacked him and slugged him with a blunt instrument. Pebley said the thugs took his billfold containing $120, then disabled his car.

Bundle of Trash Had $28,000 in Gems

LONDON (UPI)—Mrs. Lee Hardy threw away a bundle of paper from her suitcase and boarded a train for her home in Dorchester.

It was only then she remembered the papers were rapped around $28,000 worth of jewely. An insurance company offered a $2,800 reward Saturday.

Installation Planned

Installation of officers of the National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employes will be held at the noon meeting, Wednesday in the Machinist Building, 728 Elm Ave.

40 Years the Same Number--Then Phooie

LISBON (UPI)—For 40 years Joao Feleciano Diaz Guimaraes bet on the same number—1324—in the local lotteries. The number was finally drawn Saturday for a $17,500 prize.

The betting agency refused to pay because the stubborn bettor was confined to his room with flu and did not pick up the ticket on time.

Iowa Group Marks Two Birthdays

Iowa Association of Long Beach will celebrate two birthdays Monday.

The 60th birthday of the Association, and the 96th birthday of Dan Carney, past president and life member, will be observed at a covered dish dinner at 6:30 p.m. at Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. Carney will introduce a vaudeville program.

Marshall Craig will be installed president of the Iowa Association. Officers serving with him will be Harry Ruffridge, vice president; Erma Ruffridge, secretary; Laura Collins, treasurer.

State Department Secretary Molested, Slain by Strangler

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department secretary was found slain Saturday, her nude body crumpled face down in an alley in northwest Washington.

Police identified the victim as Shirley Ann Cary, 32, of the Dominion Arms Apartments in Arlington, Va., who had lived alone on the first floor of the apartment building since last June.

Deputy Police Chief Albert Embrey said the dead woman, a secretary in the Bureau of Intelligence and Research at the State Department, had been sexually molested and strangled, but not raped. Strangulation, perhaps by rope or belt, caused death, he said.

• • • •

THE BODY was found about two blocks from where a 29-year-old woman was raped and robbed Thursday night in the basement of the Church of the Annunciation School, near 39th Street and Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.

However, Deputy Police Chief Lawrence A. Hartnett said police had no evidence to link the slaying of Miss Cary with the rape-robbery.

Police indicated that Miss Cary, who had been dead six or seven hours when her body was found, could have been dumped in the alley after being murdered elsewhere.

She had not been reported seen since leaving the State Department at 6 p.m. Friday. The body had a bruise under one eye. Creases on the wrist and ankle indicated Miss Cary had been tied.

The body of Miss Cary was found at 7:10 a.m. by 12-year-old Davey Fry, son of David H. Fry, an assistant director of the District of Columbia Health Department.

• • • •

DAVEY, an altar boy at the Church of the Annunciation, was returning home after serving at an early Mass when he glanced into the alley and saw the body. He went home, dialed the operator to get police and then told his father, who still was in bed.

Miss Cary was born Oct. 10, 1932, in Wakefield, Mass., and was graduated from the Winchester, Mass., high school in 1951. She attended West Brook Junior College in Portland, Maine, from 1951 to 1953.

She is survived by her mother, Hazel Quinlan Cary of Greenfield, N.H., and a sister, Debbie, a novitiate in a Maryland convent.

Albert Loya to Head Group

Albert Loya will be installed as 1965 president of the Paramount Mexican-American Scholarship Association during dinner ceremonies at Smitty's Pancake House, 9251 Alondra Blvd., Wednesday at 6:30 p.m.

Other officers to be installed include Henry Galindo, vice president; Jennie Bareras, secretary; Teresa Diaz, treasurer, and Phil Zinn, scholarship chairman.

Wilson Bell, assistant superintendent of Paramount Unified School District, will be installing officer.

Dinner speaker will be Dr. Manuel Guerra, chairman of the Spanish Department at USC.

Horne Will Talk to Managers

FULLERTON — Business executive Charles F. Horne will be the keynote speaker for the Eighth Annual Orange County Management Conference Saturday at Fullerton Junior College.

Horne, former U.S. Civil Aeronautics Administrator and retired admiral, is president of General Dynamics. He will speak on, "Management's Challenge—Today."

It said the sons were aged 104, 102 and 100 and that two other sons are aged 93 and 87. It said their grandfather died 23 years ago at the age of 107.

Here Comes the DC9

APPROXIMATELY 98% complete, the new Douglas DC9 twin-jet airliner moves up to the final station on the assembly line at Douglas Aircraft Group headquarters here.

By LEE CRAIG
L. P-T Aerospace Editor

It will be "D for Douglas" Day in Long Beach Tuesday as the first DC9, Amerca's newest jetliner, is rolled out into public view before 600 guests at Douglas Aircraft Company's plant here.

The sleek, twin-engined transport, Douglas' entry in the short-to-medium-range jet market, represents a $42-million injection into the city's economic bloodstream.

That sum will be paid annually to the 6,000 additional workers whose jobs will be created by production of the DC9. Douglas, with an investment of approximately $365 million in the Long Beach Airport area, employs about 14,000 persons.

Leading participants in ceremonies surrounding debut of the new transport will be Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges and Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Hodges, although unable to be presnt in person, will appear on film from his Washington, D.C., office and cite the economic significance of the DC9 program to the nation.

He will conclude with a signal at 11:30 a.m. to open the hangar doors and roll out the DC9.

Gov. Brown will be a keynote speaker at a dinner Monday evening in the Beverly Hilton Hotel following a press conference involving Donald W. Douglas, company board chairman; Donald W. Douglas, Jr., president; Jackson R. McGowen, vice president and head of the Long Beach aircraft division, and officials from customer airlines and major subcontractors.

Announcement that the DC9 would be placed in production came in April, 1963. Manufacturing began three months later and completion of the first DC9 is being accomplished a month ahead of schedule.

First flight of the 560-mile-an-hour jet is scheduled for March, beginning a test program which will extend through 1965. The planes are scheduled to go into airline service early in 1966.

Announced orders and options placed by overseas and United States airlines already total 118, representing a value in excess of $310 million.

The DC9 is designed to operate over routes of from 100 to 1,500 miles in length. Up to 90 passengers can be carried.

Mayor Edwin W. Wade termed the DC9's advent as "of tremendous importance to the greater Long Beach area" and said it meant reassertion of this community's leadership as a commercial aviation center.

EGYPTIANS PREPARED AS FOOD EXPERTS

L.B. Firm Training Foreign Workers in Special Fields

A worldwide Long Beach-based firm with the unofficial slogan "we train anybody—anywhere" is helping Egypt get ready for the Russia-financed Aswan Dam.

Aswan, due for completion in 1966, will transform two million acres of sand dunes into farmland and spark what the Arab country hopes will be its industrial revolution.

The Transworld Management Corp. of 120 E. Ocean Blvd. is schooling 23 Egyptian agriculturists and food experts in the only program of its type in the world.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Saigon Military, Civil Chiefs Agree

SAIGON (UPI)—South Viet Nam's three highest-ranking leaders announced Saturday they had ended the country's political-military crisis by promising some measure of civilian government.

Their communique had the effect of ratifying the military's partial coup of Dec. 20 which dissolved the civilian High National Council while paying lip service to American objections which arose from the coup.

The U.S. Embassy said it welcomed the announcement.

The communique was signed in a public ceremony by Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, armed forces commander-in-chief, and by Chief of State Phan Khac Suu and Premier Tran Van Huong.

"The political crisis of the last few days is now considered over," the communique said.

Kohler Hints U.S.-Russ 'Summit'

MOSCOW (UPI)—"I wouldn't be surprised" to see a meeting of President Johnson and Soviet leaders before long, U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler told reporters as he flew in from Washington.

FOY D. KOHLER
Returns to Moscow

A meeting is "something that will be discussed," he said in chatting with reporters at the snowswept airport. He said he brought no formal message from the President to the Kremlin leadership.

This suggested to the reporters that a high-level meeting now is in the delicate stage of sounding out feelings.

The basic questions are whether the Russians want a meeting—there has been no official reaction to an informal proposal by Johnson—and, if so, where it would take place. Until these have been answered a formal invitation will not, under the rules of careful diplomacy, be extended.

ILA Strike Believed Likely

NEW YORK (UPI)—Asst. Secretary of Labor James R. Reynolds tried Saturday to bridge a gap between longshoremen and their union leaders but said he saw little possibility of staving off a costly dock strike at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

"I believe a strike in the longsore industry is a distinct possibility," Reynolds said after he arrived here from Washington.

He said he carried no message from President Johnson to union and shipping officials. But he said the President was being kept informed of all developments by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

Speaking on behalf of Wirtz, Reynolds expressed "grave concern" that a strike in Atlantic and Gulf coast ports would have "a potentially serious impact on the economy of the country at a time when it is enjoying high levels of activity."

LBJ to Ask Immigration Reform

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson will ask Congress for a sweeping new immigration law dropping race and nationality as factors in choosing foreigners for admission to the United States, qualified sources said Saturday.

The new law reportedly would give preference to those having special skills or other qualifications which would make them of special value to the U.S. economy or culture.

And it would make it easier also to unify families torn apart by present immigration law with its quota system based on nationality.

Fans Mob Bridal Couple

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Hundreds of squealing fans, armed with confetti, cameras and rice, mobbed former television Mouseketeer Annette Funicello and her bridegroom, Jack Gilardi, Saturday as they emerged from their wedding in St. Cyril's Roman Catholic Church.

The 22-year-old actress and Gilardi, 34, her agent, were wed by The Rev. Michael Lalor in a solemn high nuptial Mass in the church in suburban Encino.

Traffic Deaths at All-Time High in 1964

CHICAGO (UPI)—The nation's traffic-death toll zoomed to an all-time high in 1964.

That was made clear Saturday in the National Safety Council's announcement that such fatalities numbered 43,390 in the first 11 months of last year—only 210 shy of the record of 43,600 set in the full year of 1963.

A spokesman estimated that, when the December tally is made, the 1964 total will be lifted to approximately 48,000.

Arctic Blasts Benumb Seven States

CHICAGO (UPI)—A seven-state area—from Montana to Michigan and south into Nebraska and Iowa—was in the icy grip of a bitter cold wave Saturday.

The arctic blast centered over the northern plains pushed deep into the still unseasonably warm eastern and southern states. Cold-wave warnings were up for an area from Arkansas through the Ohio Valley to the eastern Great Lakes.

AMERICAN PROBERS IN EGYPT MAKE REPORT

Downed U.S. Plane off Civil Flyway

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Preliminary findings from a U.S. inquiry indicated Saturday that an American plane had veered from civilian fly-ways and headed toward a forbidden zone when it was shot down by Egyptian fighters Dec. 19.

In disclosing this, U.S. officials continued to protest what they described as too severe action by the Egyptians against an unarmed, private oil-company plane plagued by a radio communications foul-up. The two men aboard were killed.

• • • •

THE plane-shooting is one of several outstanding issues which have strained Washington's relations with the United Arab Republic and led to mounting congressional demands for a cutoff of U.S. aid to Egypt, now about $140 million a year. President Johnson's aid proposals for fiscal 1966 go to Congress Thursday.

Other recent incidents include President Gamal Abdel Nasser's speech telling the United States, in effect, to jump in the lake, the sacking of an American library in Cairo, and UAR aid to Congo rebels.

U.S. policymakers figure Red-wooed Egypt is strategic in the Middle East and some have been arguing for continuing aid to buttress American influence there. They note Nasser has been making amends on the library and suggest his anti-U.S. speech may have been a spur-of-the-moment outburst based on a misunderstanding of the U.S. position.

The Egyptian version of the Dec. 19 affair is that a military-type plane flew into UAR territory from the direction of Israel, Egypt's sworn enemy, without advance notice, failed to heed either radio from interception UAR MIG jets, and then headed off the civilian airlane toward the prohibited area around Alexandria.

• • • • •

THE INITIAL report from two U.S. investigators as given to newsmen Saturday, did not bring out any facts directly contradicting the version given by the Egyptians, but it did suggest the plane was a victim of a series of mishaps and left open some questions which may never be answered.

Joseph Zacko, a Civil Aeronautics Board investigator in Washington, and E. H. Renner, Federal Aviation Agency field representative in Beirut, Syria, went to Egypt after U.S. Ambassador Lucius D. Battle had delivered an oral protest against the shooting.

• • • •

ZACKO returned to Washington Jan. 1 but Renner still is in the area and a inquiry is continuing, officials said.

U.S. officials said the Egyptians allowed entry of the American investigators, but gave them access only to their civil aviation records of the ill-fated flight. The UAR military records were not disclosed and the Egyptians persisted in viewing the matter as a military incident, not an accident.

According to the U.S. investigators' account as given to newsmen:

The plane, a Fairchild C82 craft owned by the John W. Mecom Oil Co. of Houston, Tex., was on a routine flight from Amman, Jordan, to Benghasi, Lybia, to pick up detergent used in oil-drilling operations.

The pilot, Hoyt Williams, a U.S. citizen, and the copilot, Kjell Grupp, a Swede, both held requisite pilot's licenses and the plane carried numbers on its fuselage showing U.S. registry.

• • • •

A FLIGHT plan filed at Amman was not received at the Cairo air-control center or at Benghasi in advance of the flight as it should have been. The investigators still are trying to find out why the radio message did not reach Cairo until four hours after the shooting.

The flight plan showed the plane intended to fly over Alexandria. If Cairo had been informed of this, it presumably would have radioed back to Amman airport rejecting the flight application. Air maps commonly used in the area clearly show that Alexandria is off limits.

• • • •

THE PLANE took off early in the morning and flew south to get around Israel, then headed west into Egypt toward Cairo. When it got to Egypt it was intercepted over the Sinai Desert by two MIG jets which flew alongside, signaling the U.S. plane to land at Cairo.

Meanwhile, the Cairo air-control center had been having radio difficulty contacting the plane. The plane called in, giving its position, but gave the wrong radio wavelength for its call. Also, the pilot seemed unable to receive Cairo's radio messages on his set.

When the plane got to Cairo, it turned north and flew on instead of landing. According to the Egyptians, the MIG jets had landed in anticipation of the U.S. plane landing at Cairo took off again when the plane headed north and soon caught up with the slower craft and once more sought to signal it.

About 70 miles north-northwest of Cairo the American craft left the approved civilian flyway and headed on a direct course toward Alexandria. The MIGs shot it down about 10 miles west of the civilian airway, before it entered the prohibited zone.

• • • •

THE EGYPTIANS noted that the twin-boom C82 cargo craft, a plane which has been used for military transport, is similar in its configuration to a French plane used by Israeli forces. Egypt considers itself at war with Israel and claims the Israelis have been making overflights.

The Egyptians said also their pilots had been unable to see the markings on the U.S. plane's fuselage showing that is was an American plane. And they contended that the Israelis have flown disguised craft and used deceptive radio signals.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Saigon Military, Civil Chiefs Agree

SAIGON (UPI) — South Viet Nam's three highest-ranking leaders announced Saturday they had ended the country's political-military crisis by promising some measure of civilian government.

Their communique had the effect of ratifying the military's partial coup of Dec. 20 which dissolved the civilian High National Council while paying lip service to American objections which arose from the coup.

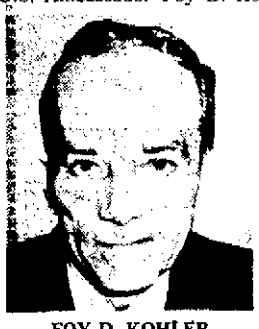

The U.S. Embassy said it welcomed the announcement.

The communique was signed in a public ceremony by Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, armed forces commander-in-chief, and by Chief of State Phan Khac Suu and Premier Tran Van Huong.

"The political crisis of the last few days is now considered over," the communique said.

Kohler Hints U.S.-Russ 'Summit'

MOSCOW (AP)—"I wouldn't be surprised" to see a meeting of President Johnson and Soviet leaders before long, U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler told reporters as he flew in from Washington.

FOY D. KOHLER
Returns to Moscow

A meeting is "something that will be discussed," he said in chatting with reporters at the snowswept airport. He said he brought no formal message from the President to the Kremlin leadership.

This suggested to the reporters that a high-level meeting now is in the delicate stage of sounding out feelings.

The basic questions are whether the Russians want a meeting—there has been no official reaction to an informal proposal by Johnson—and, if so, where it would take place. Until these have been answered a formal invitation will not, under the rules of careful diplomacy, be extended.

ILA Strike Believed Likely

NEW YORK (AP)—Asst. Secretary of Labor James R. Reynolds tried Saturday to bridge a gap between longshoremen and their union leaders but said he saw little possibility of staving off a costly dock strike at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

"I believe a strike in the longsore industry is a distinct possibility," Reynolds said after he arrived here from Washington.

He said he carried no message from President Johnson to union and shipping officials. But he said the President was being kept informed of all developments by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz.

Speaking on behalf of Wirtz, Reynolds expressed "grave concern" that a strike in Atlantic and Gulf coast ports would have "a potentially serious impact on the economy of the country at a time when it is enjoying high levels of activity."

LBJ to Ask Immigration Reform

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson will ask Congress for a sweeping new immigration law dropping race and nationality as factors in choosing foreigners for admission to the United States, qualified sources said Saturday.

The new law reportedly would give preference to those having special skills or other qualifications which would make them of special value to the U.S. economy or culture.

And it would make it easier also to unify families torn apart by present immigration law with its quota system based on nationality.

Fans Mob Bridal Couple

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hundreds of squealing fans, armed with confetti, cameras and rice, mobbed former television Mouseketeer Annette Funicello and her bridegroom, Jack Gilardi, Saturday as they emerged from their wedding in St. Cyril's Roman Catholic Church.

The 22-year-old actress and Gilardi, 34, her agent, were wed by The Rev. Michael Lalor in a solemn high nuptial Mass in the church in suburban Encino.

Traffic Deaths at All-Time High in 1964

CHICAGO (AP)—The nation's traffic-death toll zoomed to an all-time high in 1964.

That was made clear Saturday in the National Safety Council's announcement that such fatalities numbered 43,390 in the first 11 months of last year—only 210 shy of the record of 43,600 set in the full year of 1963.

A spokesman estimated that, when the December tally is made, the 1964 total will be lifted to approximately 48,000.

Arctic Blasts Benumb Seven States

CHICAGO (AP)—A seven-state area—from Montana to Michigan and south into Nebraska and Iowa—was in the icy grip of a bitter cold wave Saturday.

The arctic blast centered over the northern plains pushed deep into the still unseasonably warm eastern and southern states. Cold-wave warnings were up for an area from Arkansas through the Ohio Valley to the eastern Great Lakes.

AMERICAN PROBERS IN EGYPT MAKE REPORT

Downed U.S. Plane off Civil Flyway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary findings from a U.S. inquiry indicated Saturday that an American plane had veered from civilian fly-ways and headed toward a forbidden zone when it was shot down by Egyptian fighters Dec. 19.

In disclosing this, U.S. officials continued to protest what they described as too severe action by the Egyptians against an unarmed, private oil-company plane plagued by a radio communications foul-up. The two men aboard were killed.

* * * *

THE plane-shooting is one of several outstanding issues which have strained Washington's relations with the United Arab Republic and led to mounting congressional demands for a cutoff of U.S. aid to Egypt, now about $140 million a year. President Johnson's aid proposals for fiscal 1966 go to Congress Thursday.

Other recent incidents include President Gamal Abdel Nasser's speech telling the United States, in effect, to jump in the lake, the sacking of an American library in Cairo, and UAR aid to Congo rebels.

U.S. policymakers figure Red-wooed Egypt is strategic in the Middle East and some have been arguing for continuing aid to buttress American influence there. They note Nasser has been making amends on the library and suggest his anti-U.S. speech may have been a spur-of-the-moment outburst based on a misunderstanding of the U.S. position.

The Egyptian version of the Dec. 19 affair is that a military-type plane flew into UAR territory from the direction of Israel, Egypt's sworn enemy, without advance notice, failed to heed either radio from interception UAR MIG jets, and then headed off the civilian airlane toward the prohibited area around Alexandria.

* * * *

THE INITIAL report from two U.S. investigators as given to newsmen Saturday, did not bring out any facts directly contradicting the version given by the Egyptians, but it did suggest the plane was a victim of a series of mishaps and left open some questions which may never be answered.

Joseph Zacko, a Civil Aeronautics Board investigator in Washington, and E. H. Renner, Federal Aviation Agency field representative in Beirut, Syria, went to Egypt after U.S. Ambassador Lucius D. Battle had delivered an oral protest against the shooting.

* * * *

ZACKO returned to Washington Jan. 1 but Renner still is in the area and a inquiry is continuing, officials said.

U.S. officials said the Egyptions allowed entry of the American investigators, but gave them access only to their civil aviation records of the ill-fated flight. The UAR military records were not disclosed and the Egyptians persisted in viewing the matter as a military incident, not an accident.

According to the U.S. investigators' account as given to newsmen:

The plane, a Fairchild C82 craft owned by the John W. Mecom Oil Co. of Houston, Tex., was on a routine flight from Amman, Jordan, to Benghasi, Lybia, to pick up detergent used in oil-drilling operations.

The pilot, Hoyt Williams, a U.S. citizen, and the copilot, Kjell Grupp, a Swede, both held requisite pilot's licenses and the plane carried numbers on its fuselage showing U.S. registry.

* * * *

A FLIGHT plan filed at Amman was not received at the Cairo air-control center or at Benghasi in advance of the flight as it should have been. The investigators still are trying to find out why the radio message did not reach Cairo until four hours after the shooting.

The flight plan showed the plane intended to fly over Alexandria. If Cairo had been informed of this, it presumably would have radioed back to Amman airport rejecting the flight application. Air maps commonly used in the area clearly show that Alexandria is off limits.

* * * *

THE PLANE took off early in the morning and flew south to get around Israel, then headed west into Egypt toward Cairo. When it got to Egypt it was intercepted over the Sinai Desert by two MIG jets which flew alongside, signaling the U.S. plane to land at Cairo.

Meanwhile, the Cairo air-control center had been having radio difficulty contacting the plane. The plane called in, giving its position, but gave the wrong radio wavelength for its call. Also, the pilot seemed unable to receive Cairo's radio messages on his set.

When the plane got to Cairo, it turned north and flew on instead of landing. According to the Egyptians, the MIG jets had landed in anticipation of the U.S. plane landing at Cairo took off again when the plane headed north and soon caught up with the slower craft and once more sought to signal it.

About 70 miles north-northwest of Cairo the American craft left the approved civilian flyway and headed on a direct course toward Alexandria. The MIGs shot it down about 10 miles west of the civilian airway, before it entered the prohibited zone.

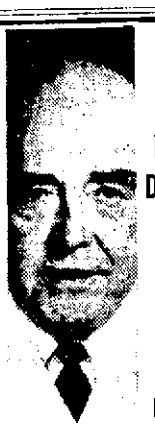

* * * *

THE EGYPTIANS noted that the twin-boom C82 cargo craft, a plane which has been used for military transport, is similar in its configuration to a French plane used by Israeli forces. Egypt considers itself at war with Israel and claims the Israelis have been making overflights.

The Egyptians said also their pilots had been unable to see the markings on the U.S. plane's fuselage showing that is was an American plane. And they contended that the Israelis have flown disguised craft and used deceptive radio signals.

AMA Unveils Rival Health Care System

quired. As it now stands, eligibility is determined by state welfare-department appraisal of income, assets and other resources.

The program would be shifted from welfare to health departments in the states.

Under the AMA proposal, Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans and health-insurance companies would provide policies protesting senior citizens against the costs of illness.

These concerns, the AMA said, would provide "experienced administration with public and private funds sharing the costs according to the recipient's income."

• • • • •

THE AMA said its proposal would "accomplish far more than would be possible under the so-called medicare tax program."

The broad outline lacked many fine details.

Dr. Ward told newsmen that Congress will be asked to expand the Kerr-Mills law. As the program expanded in the states, he said, the federal government would be asked to supply more matching funds.

Under the existing Kerr-Mills provision, he said, $500 million is required for 1965, but he contended the AMA program would not cost as much as the administration's plan.

• • • • •

PRESIDENT Johnson requested Congress Thursday to enact health insurance for the elderly to be financed by increased Social Security payments. It would provide hospital care but could not pay medical or surgical bills.

Dr. Ward said the AMA blueprint will be presented to Congress.

"I hope someone will pick it up and sponsor it," he said. But he mentioned no names.

He declined to hazard a guess about it chances but expressed hope that citizens will look into its benefits and congressmen will compare it with the administration's legislation.

Whipped Wife's Slaying of Mate Ruled Justifiable

VENTURA (AP) — A coroner's jury has ruled a housewife committed justifiable homicide in fatally shooting her husband of 35 years after he attacked her with a bullwhip.

Norma Davis, 51, testified her husband, Curtis, 52, culminated a two-day drinking spree Dec. 26 by striking her with the whip. She said that when he came at her a second time, she ran to a closet, grabbed a shotgun and shot him in the stomach.

She told police:

"I didn't mean to hurt him. But I just couldn't let him hurt me again. The whip was hurting so much."

RICKOVER ON RULES:

Abe Didn't Fret at Soup Spots

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy's maverick Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, in congressional testimony published Saturday, got off this lampoon of the military habit of defining leadership by certain rules of conduct.

"What are those rules? You are not supposed to have a soup spot on your blouse. Abraham Lincoln had a lot of soup spots.

"You are not supposed to drink. Ulysses S. Grant drank . . .

"You are not supposed to run around with women. Napoleon ran around with women.

"Such rules are not the basic essentials of leadership. There is more to it than that."

Rickover told the Joint Atomic Energy Committee that the Navy should stop shifting competent technical men frequently from one job to another.

"No industrial organization that operates on a profit-and-loss basis would ever dream of continually shifting its top people," the admiral said.

He also criticized the Navy system "whereby each ensign is set on a course to become chief of naval operations . . . I know of no large industrial organization which has programs to train every college graduate it hires to become president of the company."

Bare Critical Lack in A-Sub Program

prove atomic-powered subs now in service or building. From $4 million to $8 million each is being spent on most of them.

All subs are now operating under depth restrictions. These limit the full capabilities bestowed by nuclear power. The restrictions, censored from the testimony but probably to depths less than 1,000 feet, could be lifted immediately if war came.

• • • •

IN MAKING public testimony and reports on the Navy's new safety program, committee Chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said in a foreword that the committee was impressed by the Navy's improvement plan and would ride herd on it.

In the long run, he said, it would have cost less if the Navy had followed the same high standards throughout its submarines as Rickover demanded for the propulsion systems.

The testimony was taken in June and July 1963 and July 1964. The 1963 portions were not previously published because then Navy Secretary Fred Korth told the committee it "could be damaging to public confidence in the Navy" and might help enemies.

Neither Navy investigators nor the congressional committee could determine the specific cause of the Thresher's loss, the only one in 10 years of nuclear-sub operation. A Navy court of inquiry decided in June 1963 that the "most probable" cause was engine-room flooding resulting from a piping-system failure.

• • • •

ON THIS point, Rickover told the committee that, regardless of the cause, the disaster was a "warning made at great sacrifice of life that we must change our way of doing business to meet the requirements of modern technology."

"We must correct the conditions that permitted the inadequate design, poor fabrication methods and incomplete inspection to exist, if we are not to have another Thresher," Rickover said.

Similarly, Pastore said that apart from the nuclear power plan there were practices and standards which "were short of those required to insure safe operation of the Thresher."

Lawgivers Hit Waste in Schools

"amazed" at the volume of written material turned out by these and other administrators under the general heading of "teaching guides" or "lesson plans" or other instructions for teachers. It found that the written material was generally referred to as "the stack" and that much of it was "never used by teachers and, indeed, is held in disdain by them."

The objective evidence appeared when the committee looked at results of the new statewide pupil achievement tests and found that pupils' performance had nothing to do with the number of consultants, coordinators and other administrators employed by a district.

But it did find that pupils in districts with small classes (more classroom teachers) outperformed others. It also found that when a district pays its teachers well, the students perform better on the tests.

Girl, 13, Asks the Right Man, Gets Invitation to Inaugural

Your inquiry regarding the forthcoming Inaugural is appreciated. It is being referred to the appropriate committee, where it will receive further attention.

Sincerely,
Dale Miller
Chairman

At this point, Mrs. Baron told her lively teen-ager, "Please let the President alone so he can run the country for awhile."

"It was the last thing in my mind that she would actually get an invitation," Mrs. Baron said, "and I didn't want her to be too disappointed."

• • • •

BUT MISSY was about to resume her correspondence with Washington when another letter, written Dec. 3, arrived:

Dear Missy,

This is to acknowledge receipt of your very good letter. I am happy to comply with your request and am placing your name on the list to receive the official Inaugural invitation.

With best wishes, I am
Sincerely,
Dale Miller
Chairman

When Missy came home from school Dec. 18 she phoned her parents at their men's furnishings store in Belmont Shore:

"It's here! We're going!"

For the first time the Barons realized that their daughter's letter had, indeed, produced results.

The huge, handsomely engraved invitation begins:

The Inaugural Committee
requests the honor of your presence
to attend and participate in the Inauguration of Lyndon Baines Johnson
as President of the United States

• • • •

THE BARONS will fly to Washington Jan. 16. They are invited to the Jan. 20 Inauguration ceremony, the concert, receptions, buffet dinners and the ball. Because of Missy's intense interest in history and current events, they'll visit museums and art galleries, Williamsburg, Va., and all the places rich with the story of our nation.

Mrs. Baron has written Congressman Craig Hosmer asking that Missy be allowed to attend a session of Congress.

When she phoned Dr. Elwood Adams, principal of Bancroft Junior High School where Missy is in the eighth grade, to ask about school work, he told her, "Go by all means. Missy will learn more from this trip than she would in school."

The letter that Missy wrote to the President?

• • • •

AS SHE remembers, it went about like this:

Dear President Johnson,

I have been watching the convention on TV and thought it quite interesting. I know the election is not over, but I'm placing my faith in you that you'll come through.

To get right to the point, I was wondering if I could possibly have an invitation to the Inaugural of you being President.

I know it's something very hard to comply with, but I would rather think positive about it, not negative, and I think I would get someplace.

I know you'll try your hardest.

Sincerely yours'
Missy Baron

Rep. Laird Predicts Burch Will Be Replaced by Taft

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., recently elected chairman of the House GOP Conference, predicted Saturday that former Ohio Rep. Robert Taft Jr. would be named temporary national Republican chairman, replacing Dean Burch.

Laird told the Milwaukee Journal there was strong support among GOP leaders to install Taft in place of Burch.

He said Ray C. Bliss, Ohio Republican chairman, would be named Taft's chief assistant and then would replace Taft after a transition period.

(The lawmaker said Taft would be acceptable to former Sen. Barry Goldwater and his supporters and would also provide the party with a leadership geared to the goals of congressional leaders.

He said the national party's prime goal must be regaining seats in the House and Senate in the 1966 election.

Police See Car Looted --Arrest 4

Four suspects were jailed by Long Beach police Saturday following the $794 burglary of a parked car belonging to a Los Angeles salesman.

Held on suspicion of car burglary were Dean Z. Puchalski, 20, of 900 Linden Ave., Anthony P. Scozzari, 18, of 40 S. Golden Ave., and Charles E. Hale and Timothy J. Riley, both 19, and both of 14 S. Magnolia.

• • • •

THE FOUR were rounded up about 5:30 a.m. after police officers spotted the car burglary in progress. Patrolmen Pete Beane and Bob Russell, aided by Officers Bob Birdsall and R. R. Prell, nabbed the suspects and recovered several armloads of clothing identified as loot from the car owned by Frederick W. Lamps, of Los Angeles.

Part of the loot, which included formal clothing, luggage, a radio, a fruitcake, and personal items, was recovered from a vacant apartment.

Lamps, officers said, had parked his car on Santa Cruz St., between Mermaid Place and Maine Avenue, shortly before the break-in occurred.

Malaysia Cholera Epidemic Dies Out

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—A year-long cholera epidemic in Malaysia's east coast states has died out.

Health Ministry statistics Saturday showed no cholera patients in government hospitals and no deaths from the disease in more than a month. The death toll stood at 163, in nearly 1,500 reported cases.

Van Kills L.B. Woman; 2nd 1965 Traffic Death

A 72-year-old Long Beach woman became the city's second 1965 traffic victim Saturday when she died at Memorial Hospital about three hours after she was struck by a telephone-company van at Atlantic Ave. and 52nd St.

Dead is Mrs. Corda E. Funderburk, of 430 E. 51st St. Hospital nurses said she died about 5:45 p.m. from severe head injuries suffered in the accident.

Officer C. R. Beason said Mrs. Funderburk was struck about 3 p.m. while attempting to cross Atlantic Ave.

Steven A. Green, 19, of 6270 Coronado Ave., driver of the General Telephone Co. truck, told police he was attempting to turn south on Atlantic when he struck the woman. He said he was blinded by the sun and failed to see Mrs. Funderburk as she stepped from the curb into the crosswalk.

Autopsy Due in Jail-Cell Death Here

An autopsy will be held to determine the cause in the death of a 54-year-old prisoner in Long Bach city jail, police said Saturday.

The prisoner, George M. Shadduck of 675½ Euclid Ave., was found dead about 1:40 a.m., almost four hours after he was arrested for intoxication.

Police said Shadduck was arrested about 10 p.m. Friday outside 1315 Peterson Ave. After being booked, officers said, he went to sleep in his cell. A night jailer checked him early Saturday morning and found he had no pulse.

Shadduck was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital.

Sheldon Picnic

The Sheldon Iowa Picnic Club will hold its annual winter picnic in Silverado Park Club House, 31st Street and Santa Fe Avenue, Jan. 17. Business meeting will follow a 1 p.m. potluck dinner.

Compton Man Killed in Crash

A Compton man was killed late Friday when the auto in which he was a passenger crashed into the rear of a lumber truck near Redlands.

Dead is Placido Curze Espenoza, 71, of 2423 Piru St. Also killed was the auto driver, Robert Moody Valdivia, 48, of Los Angeles.

Highway Patrol officers said the car ripped into a load of lumber which extended six feet from the rear of the truck. The load was marked with reflectors, they said. The truck driver was uninjured.

quired. As it now stands, eligibility is determined by state welfare-department appraisal of income, assets and other resources.

The program would be shifted from welfare to health departments in the states.

Under the AMA proposal, Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans and health-insurance companies would provide policies protesting senior citizens against the costs of illness.

These concerns, the AMA said, would provide "experienced administration with public and private funds sharing the costs according to the recipient's income."

* * * *

THE AMA said its proposal would "accomplish far more than would be possible under the so-called medicare tax program."

The broad outline lacked many fine details.

Dr. Ward told newsmen that Congress will be asked to expand the Kerr-Mills law. As the program expanded in the states, he said, the federal government would be asked to supply more matching funds.

Under the existing Kerr-Mills provision, he said, $500 million is required for 1965, but he contended the AMA program would not cost as much as the administration's plan.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Johnson requested Congress Thursday to enact health insurance for the elderly to be financed by increased Social Security payments. It would provide hospital care but could not pay medical or surgical bills.

Dr. Ward said the AMA blueprint will be presented to Congress.

"I hope someone will pick it up and sponsor it," he said. But he mentioned no names.

He declined to hazard a guess about it chances but expressed hope that citizens will look into its benefits and congressmen will compare it with the administration's legislation.

Whipped Wife's Slaying of Mate Ruled Justifiable

VENTURA (AP) — A coroner's jury has ruled a housewife committed justifiable homicide in fatally shooting her husband of 35 years after he attacked her with a bullwhip.

Norma Davis, 51, testified her husband, Curtis, 52, culminated a two-day drinking spree Dec. 26 by striking her with the whip. She said that when he came at her a second time, she ran to a closet, grabbed a shotgun and shot him in the stomach.

She told police:

"I didn't mean to hurt him. But I just couldn't let him hurt me again. The whip was hurting so much."

RICKOVER ON RULES:

Abe Didn't Fret at Soup Spots

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy's maverick Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, in congressional testimony published Saturday, got off this lampoon of the military habit of defining leadership by certain rules of conduct.

"What are those rules? You are not supposed to have a soup spot on your blouse. Abraham Lincoln had a lot of soup spots.

"You are not supposed to drink. Ulysses S. Grant drank . . .

"You are not supposed to run around with women. Napoleon ran around with women.

"Such rules are not the basic essentials of leadership. There is more to it than that."

Rickover told the Joint Atomic Energy Committee that the Navy should stop shifting competent technical men frequently from one job to another.

"No industrial organization that operates on a profit-and-loss basis would ever dream of continually shifting its top people," the admiral said.

He also criticized the Navy system "whereby each ensign is set on a course to become chief of naval operations . . . I know of no large industrial organization which has programs to train every college graduate it hires to become president of the company."

prove atomic-powered subs now in service or building. From $4 million to $8 million each is being spent on most of them.

All subs are now operating under depth restrictions. These limit the full capabilities bestowed by nuclear power. The restrictions, censored from the testimony but probably to depths less than 1,000 feet, could be lifted immediately if war came.

* * * *

IN MAKING public testimony and reports on the Navy's new safety program, committee Chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I., said in a foreword that the committee was impressed by the Navy's improvement plan and would ride herd on it.

In the long run, he said, it would have cost less if the Navy had followed the same high standards throughout its submarines as Rickover demanded for the propulsion systems.

The testimony was taken in June and July 1963 and July 1964. The 1963 portions were not previously published because then Navy Secretary Fred Korth told the committee it "could be damaging to public confidence in the Navy" and might help enemies.

Neither Navy investigators nor the congressional committee could determine the specific cause of the Thresher's loss, the only one in 10 years of nuclear-sub operation. A Navy court of inquiry decided in June 1963 that the "most probable" cause was engine-room flooding resulting from a piping-system failure.

* * * *

ON THIS point, Rickover told the committee that, regardless of the cause, the disaster was a "warning made at great sacrifice of life that we must change our way of doing business to meet the requirements of modern technology."

"We must correct the conditions that permitted the inadequate design, poor fabrication methods and incomplete inspection to exist, if we are not to have another Thresher," Rickover said.

Similarly, Pastore said that apart from the nuclear power plan there were practices and standards which "were short of those required to insure safe operation of the Thresher."

"amazed" at the volume of written material turned out by these and other administrators under the general heading of "teaching guides" or "lesson plans" or other instructions for teachers. It found that the written material was generally referred to as "the stack" and that much of it was "never used by teachers and, indeed, is held in disdain by them."

The objective evidence appeared when the committee looked at results of the new statewide pupil achievement tests and found that pupils' performance had nothing to do with the number of consultants, coordinators and other administrators employed by a district.

But it did find that pupils in districts with small classes (more classroom teachers) outperformed others. It also found that when a district pays its teachers well, the students perform better on the tests.

Your inquiry regarding the forthcoming Inaugural is appreciated. It is being referred to the appropriate committee, where it will receive further attention.

Sincerely,
Dale Miller
Chairman

At this point, Mrs. Baron told her lively teen-ager, "Please let the President alone so he can run the country for awhile."

"It was the last thing in my mind that she would actually get an invitation," Mrs. Baron said, "and I didn't want her to be too disappointed."

* * * *

BUT MISSY was about to resume her correspondence with Washington when another letter, written Dec. 3, arrived:

Dear Missy,

This is to acknowledge receipt of your very good letter. I am happy to comply with your request and am placing your name on the list to receive the official Inaugural invitation.

With best wishes, I am
Sincerely,
Dale Miller
Chairman

When Missy came home from school Dec. 18 she phoned her parents at their men's furnishings store in Belmont Shore:

"It's here! We're going!"

For the first time the Barons realized that their daughter's letter had, indeed, produced results.

The huge, handsomely engraved invitation begins:

The Inaugural Committee
requests the honor
of your presence
to attend and participate in the Inauguration of Lyndon Baines Johnson
as President of the United States

* * * *

THE BARONS will fly to Washington Jan. 16. They are invited to the Jan. 20 Inauguration ceremony, the concert, receptions, buffet dinners and the ball. Because of Missy's intense interest in history and current events, they'll visit museums and art galleries, Williamsburg, Va., and all the places rich with the story of our nation.

Mrs. Baron has written Congressman Craig Hosmer asking that Missy be allowed to attend a session of Congress.

When she phoned Dr. Elwood Adams, principal of Bancroft Junior High School where Missy is in the eighth grade, to ask about school work, he told her, "Go by all means. Missy will learn more from this trip than she would in school."

The letter that Missy wrote to the President?

* * * *

AS SHE remembers, it went about like this:

Dear President Johnson,

I have been watching the convention on TV and thought it quite interesting. I know the election is not over, but I'm placing my faith in you that you'll come through.

To get right to the point, I was wondering if I could possibly have an invitation to the Inaugural of you being President.

I know it's something very hard to comply with, but I would rather think positive about it, not negative, and I think I would get someplace.

I know you'll try your hardest.

Sincerely yours,
Missy Baron

Rep. Laird Predicts Burch Will Be Replaced by Taft

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., recently elected chairman of the House GOP Conference, predicted Saturday that former Ohio Rep. Robert Taft Jr. would be named temporary national Republican chairman, replacing Dean Burch.

Laird told the Milwaukee Journal there was strong support among GOP leaders to install Taft in place of Burch.

He said Ray C. Bliss, Ohio Republican chairman, would be named Taft's chief assistant and then would replace Taft after a transition period.

(The lawmaker said Taft would be acceptable to former Sen. Barry Goldwater and his supporters and would also provide the party with a leadership geared to the goals of congressional leaders.

He said the national party's prime goal must be regaining seats in the House and Senate in the 1966 election.

Police See Car Looted --Arrest 4

Four suspects were jailed by Long Beach police Saturday following the $794 burglary of a parked car belonging to a Los Angeles salesman.

Held on suspicion of car burglary were Dean Z. Puchalski, 20, of 900 Linden Ave., Anthony P. Scozzari, 18, of 40 S. Golden Ave., and Charles E. Hale and Timothy J. Riley, both 19, and both of 14 S. Magnolia.

* * * *

THE FOUR were rounded up about 5:30 a.m. after police officers spotted the car burglary in progress. Patrolmen Pete Beane and Bob Russell, aided by Officers Bob Birdsall and R. R. Prell, nabbed the suspects and recovered several armloads of clothing identified as loot from the car owned by Frederick W. Lamps, of Los Angeles.

Part of the loot, which included formal clothing, luggage, a radio, a fruitcake, and personal items, was recovered from a vacant apartment.

Lamps, officers said, had parked his car on Santa Cruz St., between Mermaid Place and Maine Avenue, shortly before the break-in occurred.

Malaysia Cholera Epidemic Dies Out

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP)—A year-long cholera epidemic in Malaysia's east coast states has died out.

Health Ministry statistics Saturday showed no cholera patients in government hospitals and no deaths from the disease in more than a month. The death toll stood at 163, in nearly 1,500 reported cases.

Van Kills L.B. Woman; 2nd 1965 Traffic Death

A 72-year-old Long Beach woman became the city's second 1965 traffic victim Saturday when she died at Memorial Hospital about three hours after she was struck by a telephone-company van at Atlantic Ave. and 52nd St.

Dead is Mrs. Corda E. Funderburk, of 430 E. 51st St. Hospital nurses said she died about 5:45 p.m. from severe head injuries suffered in the accident.

Officer C. R. Beason said Mrs. Funderburk was struck about 3 p.m. while attempting to cross Atlantic Ave.

Steven A. Green, 19, of 6270 Coronado Ave., driver of the General Telephone Co. truck, told police he was attempting to turn south on Atlantic when he struck the woman. He said he was blinded by the sun and failed to see Mrs. Funderburk as she stepped from the curb into the crosswalk.

Autopsy Due in Jail-Cell Death Here

An autopsy will be held to determine the cause in the death of a 54-year-old prisoner in Long Bach city jail, police said Saturday.

The prisoner, George M. Shadduck of 675½ Euclid Ave., was found dead about 1:40 a.m., almost four hours after he was arrested for intoxication.

Police said Shadduck was arrested about 10 p.m. Friday outside 1315 Peterson Ave. After being booked, officers said, he went to sleep in his cell. A night jailer checked him early Saturday morning and found he had no pulse.

Shadduck was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital.

Sheldon Picnic

The Sheldon Iowa Picnic Club will hold its annual winter picnic in Silverado Park Club House, 31st Street and Santa Fe Avenue, Jan. 17. Business meeting will follow a 1 p.m. potluck dinner.

Compton Man Killed in Crash

A Compton man was killed late Friday when the auto in which he was a passenger crashed into the rear of a lumber truck near Redlands.

Dead is Placido Curze Espenoza, 71, of 2423 Piru St. Also killed was the auto driver, Robert Moody Valdivia, 48, of Los Angeles.

Highway Patrol officers said the car ripped into a load of lumber which extended six feet from the rear of the truck. The load was marked with reflectors, they said. The truck driver was uninjured.

HUAC Cites Work, Denies Critic's Charge

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
L-P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. — James Roosevelt, D-Los Angeles, raised the hackles of members and staffers of the House Committee on Un-American activities last week with his assertion that the committee "has not passed one piece of legislation since 1950."

The claim, made by Roosevelt in San Pedro as he opened his campaign for mayor of Los Angeles, was flatly denied by a committee spokesman.

The spokesman pointed to two reports from the Library of Congress that the Committee made 142 legislative recommendations to congress between 1941 and 1963. Of these, 42 subsequently became law. During the same period, the committee made 13 policy recommendations to the executive branch.

Cited as a recent example of the committee's accomplishment was a bill tightening security procedures in the National Security Agency. The bill was signed into law last year.

The committee spokesman said the legislation resulted from a committee investigation sparked by the defections of two NSA mathematicians, William H. Martin and Bernon F. Mitchell, who appeared in Moscow in 1960 after they disappeared from their post at Ft. Meade, Md.

Work by the committee, including 16 hearings and staff investigations in 18 states, brought about the resignations of NSA's personnel director and security director, the firing of 26 employes and 22 reforms in the agency's procedures.

Roosevelt has urged that the committee, chairmanned by Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., be abolished and that its functions be assigned to the House Judiciary Committee.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson has designated May 1 as Law Day. He urged Americans to rededicate themselves to the nation's ideals of equality and justice under law.

Nun Habit Decision Due in Few Months

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—"The first robin in the spring has the glory, but he sometimes gets caught in the freeze."

That's how Sister Stephen, a pioneering Ursuline nun feels about her part in a major experiment to revolutionize the appearance of the Roman Catholic nun in America.

Sister Stephen, an art teacher at Oklahoma City's Bishop McGuinness High School, and sister Immaculata, journalism teacher, doffed their long, black habits and began wearing a modern-looking costume consisting of white blouse, knee-length skirt and sleeveless jacket Nov. 29—the first Sunday of advent.

THE SISTERS' experiment—al habit is topped off by a stylish hat and black high-heeled pumps. Quite a contrast to the traditional garb—and the sisters are finding out that pioneering has its problems.

"This is something we need to do because nuns, like everyone else, must keep up with the times," said Sister Stephen, an articulate and determined young woman. "Unless people can face change there isn't going to be any change."

The Ursulines, a teaching order, have headquarters in Paoli, Kansas. The order has made refinements in the nuns' habits over the years, but nothing on the order of this break with tradition.

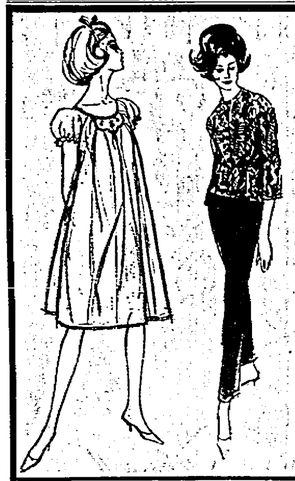

"THIS IS just an experiment to see what the public reaction—and the reaction of the other Sisters — will be," says Bishop Victor J. Reed, head of the Oklahoma Catholic Diocese and quite an innovator himself. He has been among the leaders in the ecumenical movement in the U. S.

"I feel that it's a good thing to have this talked about," said Bishop Reed. "I approved the experiment, and so did the Ursuline Mother Superior, but whether the change is adopted will be up to the Sisters."

A decision will be made in the next few months.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — James Roosevelt, D-Los Angeles, raised the hackles of members and staffers of the House Committee on Un-American activities last week with his assertion that the committee "has not passed one piece of legislation since 1950."

The claim, made by Roosevelt in San Pedro as he opened his campaign for mayor of Los Angeles, was flatly denied by a committee spokesman.

The spokesman pointed to two reports from the Library of Congress that the Committee made 142 legislative recommendations to congress between 1941 and 1963. Of these, 42 subsequently became law. During the same period, the committee made 13 policy recommendations to the executive branch.

Cited as a recent example of the committee's accomplishment was a bill tightening security procedures in the National Security Agency. The bill was signed into law last year.

The committee spokesman said the legislation resulted from a committee investigation sparked by the defections of two NSA mathmeticians, William H. Martin and Bernon F. Mitchell, who appeared in Moscow in 1960 after they disappeared from their post at Ft. Meade, Md.

Work by the committee, including 16 hearings and staff investigations in 18 states, brought about the resignations of NSA's personnel director and security director, the firing of 26 employes and 22 reforms in the agency's procedures.

Roosevelt has urged that the committee, chairmanned by Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., be abolished and that its functions be assigned to the House Judiciary Committee.

Nun Habit Decision Due in Few Months

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)— "The first robin in the spring has the glory, but he sometimes gets caught in the freeze."

That's how Sister Stephen, a pioneering Ursuline nun feels about her part in a major experiment to revolutionize the appearance of the Roman Catholic nun in America.

Sister Stephen, an art teacher at Oklahoma City's Bishop McGuinness High School, and sister Immaculata, a journalism teacher, doffed their long, black habits and began wearing a modern-looking costume consisting of white blouse, knee-length skirt and sleeveless jacket Nov. 29—the first Sunday of advent.

THE SISTERS' experiment—a habit is topped off by a stylish hat and black high-heeled pumps. Quite a contrast to the traditional garb—and the sisters are finding out that pioneering has its problems.

"This is something we need to do because nuns, like everyone else, must keep up with the times," said Sister Stephen, an articulate and determined young woman. "Unless people can face change there isn't going to be any change."

The Ursulines, a teaching order, have headquarters in Paoli, Kansas. The order has made refinements in the nuns' habits over the years, but nothing on the order of this break with tradition.

"THIS IS just an experiment to see what the public reaction—and the reaction of the other Sisters — will be," says Bishop Victor J. Reed, head of the Oklahoma Catholic Diocese and quite an innovator himself. He has been among the leaders in the ecumenical movement in the U. S.

"I feel that it's a good thing to have this talked about," said Bishop Reed. "I approved the experiment, and so did the Ursuline Mother Superior, but whether the change is adopted will be up to the Sisters."

A decision will be made in the next few months.

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF A MODERN CITY . . . The Way Long Beach Could Look

IS LONG BEACH'S IMAGE BECOMING DRAB?

This Is a Question for All

indistinguishable in sunglasses and sports shirt from other Californians.

More than anything else perhaps, this capacity for embracing newcomers endears the city to new arrivals—that, and the promise of jobs, casual living and a perpetually friendly climate.

* * * * *

BUT THESE same charms are also her curses.

As the avalanche continues, Long Beach's face is changing . . . her image as a beautiful resort area is fading into oblivion . . . and her inherent beauties are being gashed, scarred and bulldozed by the relentless onslaught of man-made environment.

When arriving here four years ago, I could see—even through the dazzle—and was shocked at some of the ugliness.

I cringed at the bleak, industrial-scarred entrance, at the jungles of billboards, commercial debris, beflagged gas stations and car lots, sign-plastered discount stores, trash-choked alleys and, in many cases, just plain slobbery.

The downtown area was my greatest disappointment.

I couldn't understand the many gaping store fronts, the valuable properties standing vacant, plastered with ominous "for rent" and "for lease" signs.

Shopping facilities didn't measure up in quantity or quality to the downtown of my former home, Wichita, a town of 100,000 less population.

* * * * *

WHY DOESN'T somebody do something, I asked?

I learned there were many contingent problems—mass transit, lack of parking facilities, clogged arteries into the downtown area, absentee ownership—and public apathy.

As time went on, the number of downtown vacancies increased . . . the Breakers Hotel, after a valiant effort, closed its doors . . . proposed World's Fair, at first a silver lining, became a black cloud of defeat.

How could this happen to a city with such obvious potential, such inherent beauties? Why should its downtown wither as nearby shopping areas flourish?

MASSED WARES . . . Few Attracted

I discovered many others, singly and in groups, were asking the same questions. There were master plans, proposed solutions, glorious sketches of an envishioned Long Beach.

* * * * *

NAIVELY, I decided to set myself up as some kind of authority on how to fit the pieces of a city together, how to pull it up by the bootstraps.

For more than a year I've probed for answers, collected statistics, interviewed government officials and civic leaders, talked with merchants, store owners, Chamber of Commerce officers and architects.

I've visited other cities, observed downtown redevelopment in Phoenix, urban renewal in Chattanooga, Tenn., the new mall in downtown Fresno.

The objective: to write a series of electrifying, who's-to-blame articles as shock treatment, hoping to galvanize city government, private enterprise, civic groups and citizens into unified action.

* * * * *

I'VE STARTED the series a hundred times with professional-sounding phrases like "this is an analytical study of your city" (ridiculous! cities pay consultants thousands of dollars for such insight) . . . "are we melting into the megalopolis that surrounds us, losing our identity?" (a moot question) . . . and "wake up, Mr. and Mrs. Long Beach, our city is at the crossroads" (empty words!).

No matter how hard I tried, my trusty typewriter—always sensitive to my emotions—choked on every word.

Then came the moment of truth!

How could I—a fashion editor, feature writer, housewife and mother—pose as an authority on anything so intricate as the workings of a city?

Sure—I've learned a lot.

I know how many parking places, absentee landlords and vacant store fronts there in the downtown Long Beach . . . how many cars travel PCH each day, how many planes land at the airport and how many boats are moored at the marina.

I know how many miles of streets and alleys there are, how many trees (also the varieties), how many trash containers and street sweepers. I've delved into building codes, litter ordinances and the Master Plan.

* * * * *

AND I'VE COME up with some very important conclusions.

How can I . . . how can you . . . criticize our city without pointing a finger at ourselves?

The spirit, the vitality, the image, the very aesthetics of a city come from its people. All are responsible.

To make ours the city we envision, everybody can—and must—help . . . doctors, lawyers, merchants, chiefs, career women and housewives . . . clubs, organizations, civic and social groups.

City beautification and city housecleaning are, in themselves, a tremendous job. It must be an all-out city effort.

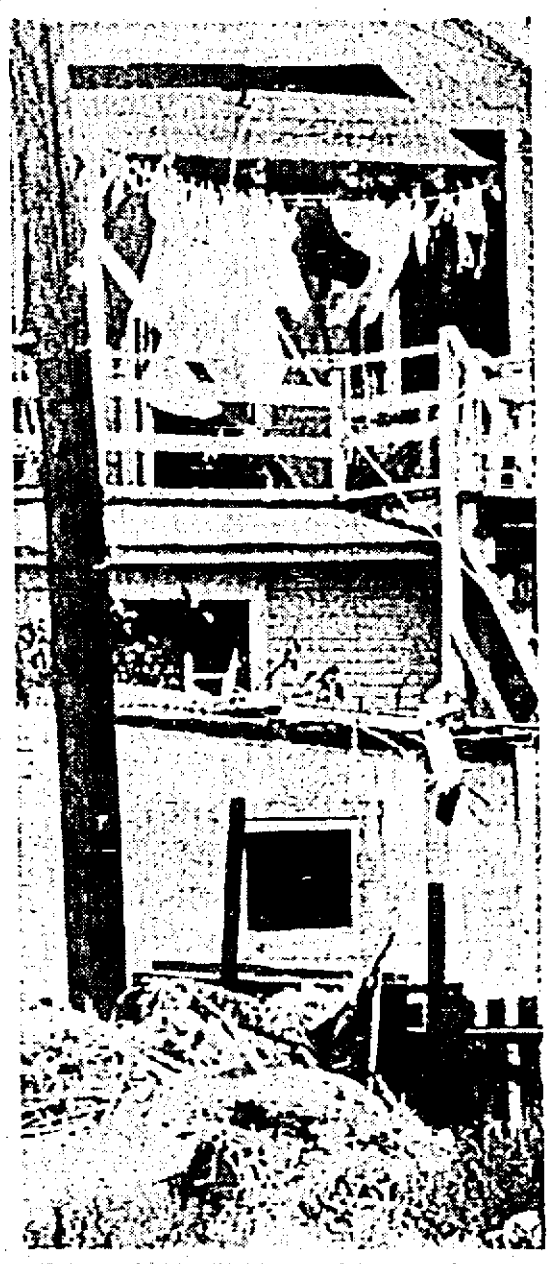

But it takes experts to build a city and the type of vision indicated in the accompanying sketch by William A. Lockett, AIA and member of the local planning commission. It shows how one block on Pine Avenue COULD look—even with the existing buildings.

Yes, it will take experts—experts in city planning, experts in downtown redevelopment, experts in the involved processes of financing.

But it takes community action, fearless leaders and an enlightened citizenry to get the job done.

The moment of decision is everybody's—here, now, today!

Next Sunday: First looks and second glances—the unsightly entrances to Long Beach, the problems of encroaching ugliness and what we can do to improve our visual environment.

L.B. Aviatrix Safe After Desert Crash

G. Smith, drove to the resort from Long Beach late Saturday. "We'll probably come home Sunday."

She said she received no serious injuries, but that Eytchison received a chipped vertabra.

Her plane was consumed by fire and destroyed after Eytchison pulled her to safety. She flew it in the 27,750-mile flight which girdled the globe, and which frequently was interupted by mechanical troubles.

"I guess it (the plane) was just bad luck all the way around," Mrs. Smith said late Saturday.

She was enroute from Las Vegas to Long Beach when she first radioed that her plane was smoking. She broadcast a 1 p.m. Mayday distress signal after cutting the engine failed to stem the flames.

A miner, John Thiede, drove the pair to St. Mary Desert Valley Hospital in Apple Valley where both were treated for "slight shock."

Officials at the Long Beach Airport tower said she had been expected here at 1:50 p.m., before they reported her overdue.

Federal Aviation Agency officials joined deputies in the search for the plane.

and Don Dombrowski captured 21-year-old Robert Brunswick, Willie E. Syas, 20, and Larry H. Nettle, 19, all of Los Angeles.

Officer Dombrowski said the three had been attempting to force Gerald A. Kling, 21, of 4706 Ocana Ave., Lakewood, to drive them out of Long Beach.

Officers recovered a .25-caliber automatic pistol they said one of the suspects threw under a car in the parking lot.

At police headquarters, Hines identified the three men as his kidnapers.

Patrol Lieutenant Don Tubbs said the three were jailed on suspicion of attempted kidnaping and attempted robbery in connection with the attack on Kling.

Officers said the three may be linked with the curbside stickup of Daniel Lopez, 17, of 15808 Harris Ave., Compton. Lopez told officers two men carrying a similar weapon took $12 from him on Alondra Boulevard between Butler and Harris Avenues at 8:17 p.m.

Police theorize the Lopez robbery may be the one Hines heard being discussed when he was a prisoner in his car.

Library Loses $94

A prowler, who hid out when the main library closed, escaped with $94 Saturday, police said. Patrolman J. R. Fontaine said the thief apparently secreted himself during the night, then rifled a cash register in the library building at Pacific Avenue and Ocean Boulevard.

L.B.'s Air Force Reserve Unit Begins the Sad Task

By EV HOSKING
I. P-T Sunday Editor

Military organizations die like wild animals—silently and alone.

That's the nature of the beast—animal or military. They are trained to take their lumps quietly.

And, in the military, even though they have no organization, they are still members of the establishment and, as such, have to remain comparatively quiet.

Thursday morning, with a single stroke, the Department of Defense wiped out 155 Air Force Reserve units involving about 8,000 men.

* * * *

INCLUDED in the units deactivated was the 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group at Long Beach Airport and its five recovery squadrons located in Long Beach, Palm Springs, Bakersfield, Las Vegas and Pasadena. Several hundred men were affected.

Ironically, it was only six months ago that Col. Claude J. (Jim) Norton, 8646 AFRRG Commander, had accepted an award naming the 8646 AFRRG the outstanding Reserve unit in the United States.

Saturday the mopping-up work was started. The Reservists had one last deadline to meet—a deactivation date of March 31.

After March 31, what? No one seems to know . . .

* * * *

"A LOT OF our key men have more than enough time in for retirement," Col. Norton said. "Of course they would like to stick around for a while, but there aren't very many slots available for men with that rank so I suppose a lot of them will retire.

"Others will go to individual training squadrons where they can accumulate points for retirement—but no pay. This is classroom-type training with no mission to perform.

"Some of the younger ones will find slots in other organizations. But a lot will get out. It seems a shame to lose all that experience."

"They say they deactivated us for economy," TSgt. Joe Hoberman said. "Yet we have been on half-pay for three years and all of our equipment was salvaged from surplus at no cost to the government. Where does the expense come in?"

LT. COL. KEN McCLOUD
. . . They'll Fight Again'

"The regular Air Force pays thousands of dollars each for these units," said Lt. Col. Ken McCloud of Anaheim, deputy commander of the group.

"They wouldn't give us any and to borrow one we had to travel a hundred miles or more each weekend. So we built one. It cost us $1.97 for welding rod, $5 for valves, out of our own pockets, and it does the same job as the regular ones.

"We like to think this is the kind of economy the people want, but . . ."

* * * *

WITH an assurance born through handling hundreds of first-line, tactical jet aircraft, the reservists are completing their final tasks, working their way through miles of paperwork, personnel records and other details such as checking in equipment.

Many of the group staff were former members of Long Beach's 452nd Bomb Wing which was shipped off to Korea—the first Reserve unit sent to the bitter conflict.

For Col. Norton, in civilian life a resident engineer for the Orange County Flood Control District, it marks the third "phase-out" for him at the Long Beach Airport. He was stationed there during World War II with the Air Transport Command prior to being sent overseas. He went with the 452nd to Korea and commanded the famed 728th daylight intruder squadron which flew low-level daylight attacks and raised havoc among the Reds. He returned to Long Beach to command the 8646th and make it the nation's top Reserve unit. His five decks of ribbons are visual evidence of his experience.

LT. COL. McCLOUD, the deputy commander of the group, is an official of Edison Co. in Orange County. A fighter pilot in World War II, he was shot down in the Pacific and floated on a one-man life raft for days before being rescued. In Korea he flew as wing man for Col. Norton.

Lt. Col. Bob Reese of South Gate, an engineer with Pacific Telephone Co., is communications officer of the group. Also a veteran of World War II, he is one of the band that flew with the 452nd in Korea.

Lt. Col. Bill Hoyt, director of operations, lives in Los Angeles and is an official of the Department of Water & Power. It was his experience gained overseas in World War II that had much to do with the high operational efficiency of the 8646th.

There are a lot of others, like Lt. Col. Al Krueger, chief of administrative services, who is an executive with the Bank of America; Lt. Col. Tom McCray, director of personnel, who is associated with the county assessors; and many others.

AND IN particular there are the airmen, like TSgt. Chuck Casey, who has 16 years of service and was with the others in Korea; TSgt. Hoberman, veteran of the Army, Navy and Air Force, who has much more than his retirement time in but who had hoped to spend another few years in the Air Force.

"Where they'll go, no one knows," Col. Norton said.

"I suppose, though, if the bugle blows you'll find them fighting to get back in."

Pentagon OK of Shift Expected This Week

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara is expected to announce this week the transfer of all operational units of the Air Force Reserve into the Air National Guard.

The move will be made on the recommendation of the Air Force staff in direct opposition to the views of Gen. LeMay, outgoing Air Force chief of staff. LeMay strongly opposed elimination of the Air Force structure.

Completion of the move would eliminate the 2478th Air Force Reserve Sector at Long Beach Airport which is in charge of all nonflying Air Force training in Southern California, Arizona and Nevada. About 4000 people would be affected.

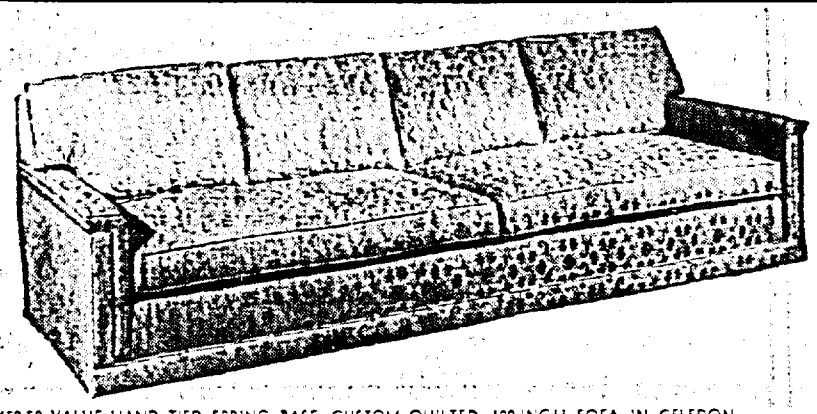

It was learned Saturday that the staff recommendation was sent formally to Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert on Friday. It was due to be forwarded to McNamara promptly. His approveal is virtually certain.

With elimination of the separate Air Force Reserve unit structure, the Pentagon will abolish the Continental Air Command, six regional headquarters and 16 sector headquarters.

DAR Unit Meets

Los Cerritos Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet at noon Tuesday in the Lafayette Hotel. Mrs. Alice Sturdys, state vice music chairman, will be the speaker.

L.B.'s Air Force Reserve Unit Begins the Sad Task

By EV HOSKING
I. P-T Sunday Editor

Military organizations die like wild animals—silently and alone.

That's the nature of the beast—animal or military. They are trained to take their lumps quietly.

And, in the military, even though they have no organization, they are still members of the establishment and, as such, have to remain comparatively quiet.

Thursday morning, with a single stroke, the Department of Defense wiped out 155 Air Force Reserve units involving about 8,000 men.

* * * *

INCLUDED in the units deactivated was the 8646th Air Force Reserve Recovery Group at Long Beach Airport and its five recovery squadrons located in Long Beach, Palm Springs, Bakersfield, Las Vegas and Pasadena. Several hundred men were affected.

Ironically, it was only six months ago that Col. Claude J. (Jim) Norton, 8646 AFRRG Commander, had accepted an award naming the 8646 AFRRG the outstanding Reserve unit in the United States.

Saturday the mopping-up work was started. The Reservists had one last deadline to meet—a deactivation date of March 31.

After March 31, what? No one seems to know . . .

* * * *

"A LOT OF our key men have more than enough time in for retirement," Col. Norton said. "Of course they would like to stick around for a while, but there aren't very many slots available for men with that rank so I suppose a lot of them will retire.

"Others will go to individual training squadrons where they can accumulate points for retirement—but no pay. This is classroom-type training with no mission to perform.

"Some of the younger ones will find slots in other organizations. But a lot will get out. It seems a shame to lose all that experience."

Legislative Unit Head Change Seen

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Political animosity and the retirement of a Senate leader insure there'll be some new faces presiding when legislative committees finally begin work next month.

Both Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Los Angeles, and Senate President Pro Tem Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, predicted one or two changes in committee chairmanships in each house.

Unruh hinted his old foe, Gordon H. Winton Jr., D-Merced, will be replaced as head of the Criminal Procedure Committee.

• • • •

"FROM HIS performance he doesn't seem much interested in a committee chairmanship," Unruh told newsmen, apparently referring to Winton's "pass" vote in the balloting for speaker Monday. The San Joaquin Valley lawmaker once ran against Unruh for the speakership.

Winton snapped back that "I am interested in a committee chairmanship but I don't think a committee chairmanship is such an overriding thing that an assemblyman should vote contrary to his conscience."

• • • •

IN THE Senate, the departure of Edwin J. Regan, Weaverville Democrat who became a justice of the Third District Court of Appeal, created a vacancy on the Judiciary Committee. There's talk that Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watsonville, may be in line for the prized job.

The chairmanship of Fish and Game, formerly held by Placer County Superior Court Judge Ronald Cameron, is also open.

Burns said a final decision on Senate committees probably will be made at the end of the week. He's chairman of the Rules Committee, which decides on the makeup of the 22 Senate committees.

• • • •

IN THE Assembly, the speaker has the say about committees and Unruh said he won't make up his mind until about Feb. 1.

Without doubt, most of the 25 Assembly committee heads will keep their jobs. There's a vacancy at the helm of Constitutional Amendments, created by the defeat of Democratic veteran Edward Gaffney of San Francisco.

Possible choices for that job—or to succeed Winton, if he is replaced—are Assemblyman Burt Henson, D-Ventura; Alfred Song, D-Monterey Park; and Mervyn Dymally, D-Los Angeles, all strong Unruh men.

Milton Marks of San Francisco probably insured his position as the Assembly's only Republican committee chairman when he seconded Unruh's nomination for speaker.

India 'Accepts' Polaris Sub in Asia Waters

NEW DELHI (AP) — In a startling about-face, India has quietly accepted the stationing of a U.S. submarine armed with Polaris nuclear missiles in Asian waters.

The general Indian reaction has been one of relief that the United States is bringing up the big guns.

Just eight months ago, India applauded loudly when the late Prime Minister Nehru rose in Parliament to "express regret" in biting sarcasm that American surface warships armed with nuclear weapons were "wandering about" the Indian Ocean.

The change in outlook is a direct result of Communist China's explosion of an atomic bomb six months later.

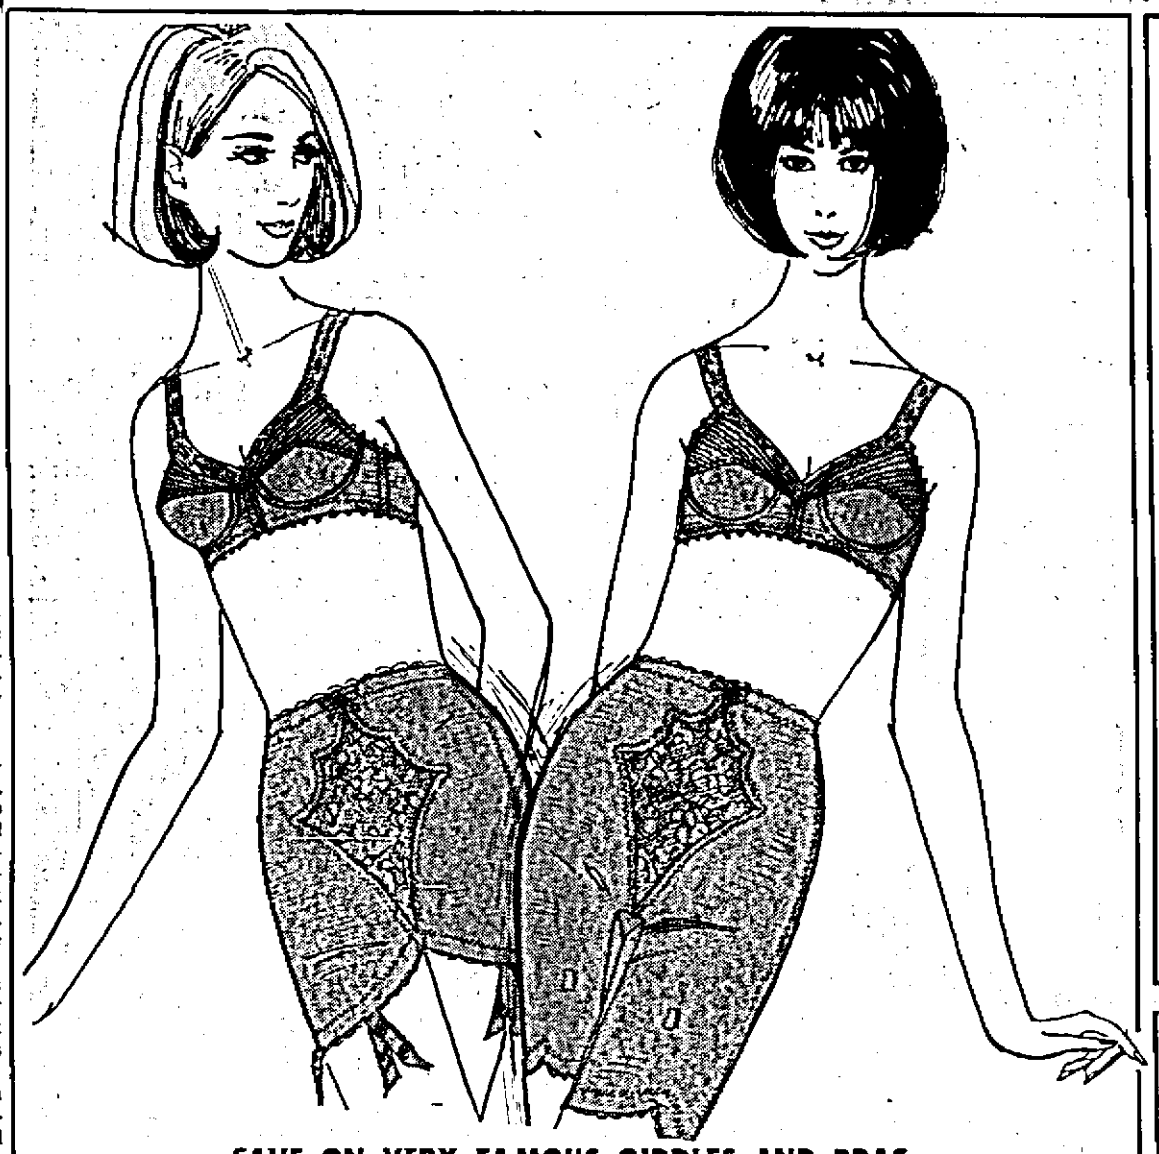

SAC to Fire Missile From S.D.

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—The Strategic Air Command announced that an unarmed Minuteman missile will be fired from a South Dakota base in March, the first such firing away from the missile test centers at Cape Kennedy or Vandenberg Air Force base.

SAC said the purpose is to give crews an actual launching practice and to determine the extent the launching silo will be damaged.

Charge U.S. Lax in Curb on Smoking

By GLORIA MONDA

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Scientists at one of the nation's leading cancer institutes claim the government has been lax in initiating a program to curb smoking habits.

The scientists, who work at Roswell Park Memorial Institute, were part of the team of researchers who provided material for the Surgeon General's Report on Smoking released last Jan. 11.

"There has been an enormous amount of talk but no action," Dr. Fred Bock and six of his colleagues told United Press International in an interview. "When is this remedial action urged by the government's report going to occur and what is the delay?"

Roswell has established smoker withdrawal clinics at the Institute with groups meeting once a week for four weeks and once a month for the rest of the year. The patients discuss withdrawal symptoms — difficulty in concentrating, intense craving, restlessness.

Each person is given a nicotine substitute in tablet form, lobeline. A 24-hour answering service is available for patients who need to bolster their will power.

• • • •

"BUT JUST because they come doesn't necessarily mean they will stop smoking," Dr. Morton Levin said. "People expect us to endow them with the willpower, the motivation — the very things we can't do." About 60% stop smoking after attending the clinic, the Institute said.

Dr. Charles Ross, who directs the clinics, said the biggest problem is to convince smokers that there is a real health hazard from which they could die.

The largest group to give up cigarettes are physicians, with only 27% still smoking, the scientists said. The people who usually succeed are the more prudent and intelligent, the upper education level, the thinking parents who realize their kids are involved and might adopt the habit, they said.

Four of the group used to smoke cigarettes. None smoke now. They estimate 242,000 men die each year from diseases related to smoking. This includes not only cancer, but stomach ulcer, heart disease, bronchitis, emphysema and hypertension. They said 5-8 years are cut off the life expectancy of a man who is a heavy smoker.

• • • •

THE SCIENTITS said some people continue to smoke with the hope that by the time they develop cancer a cure will have been found or that they've been smoking so long that another few years isn't going to make any difference.

The researchers disagree. They claim there is no evidence the lung cancer will ever be treated easily and that chances of developing a disease are greatly decreased if you stop smoking no matter how long you've been addicted. Dr. Bock said that to continue smoking is like "betting on a lame horse in a 20-horse race."

Immediately after publication of the report there was a sharp cutback in cigarette smoking. It didn't last. Total cigarette consumption in 1964 was down only about 3.5% from the 509.6 billion cigarettes consumed in 1963, the industry estimates.

• • • •

THE DOCTORS suggest a series of steps to curb smoking:

—Label packs as a definite health hazard.

—Increase taxes on cigarettes.

—Restrict advertising. Italy has banned all cigarette advertising and Great Britain has limited it on commercial television to late evening hours.

—Educate students. Roswell has set up courses from 5th to 12th grades and distributed satirical cartoons across the nation warning of health dangers from smoking. They've devised a series of experiments in which science and chmistry classes prove the danger of cigarettes.

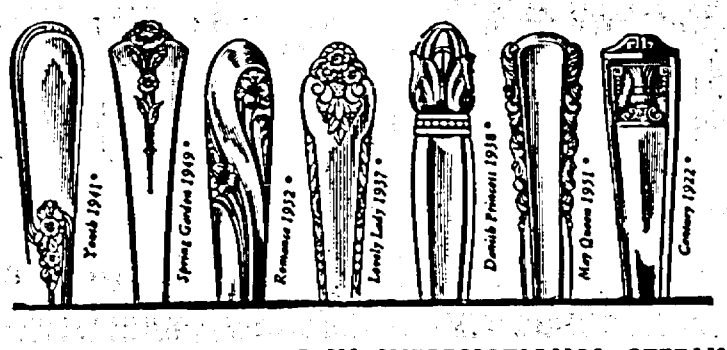

Some scientists hope the younger generation will cut down cigarette sales because "this group is better informed and more serious about the problem."

Hard of Hearing!

It is now possible for many who are hard of hearing to regain all or part of their hearing loss.

So many have told us, we have tried everything and we are so discouraged that we hesitate to try anything else.

Many who have tried this new and proven method are overjoyed. Just like magic in certain cases, they are able to hear without their hearing aid after the very first treatment.

The treatment is simple and painless, and takes about 45 minutes. If the hearing loss is due to a nerve condition, a special treatment is given. If the loss is due to catarrah a different treatment is given.

If you have a hearing loss no matter how slight or how bad, it may be helped. Why not find out?

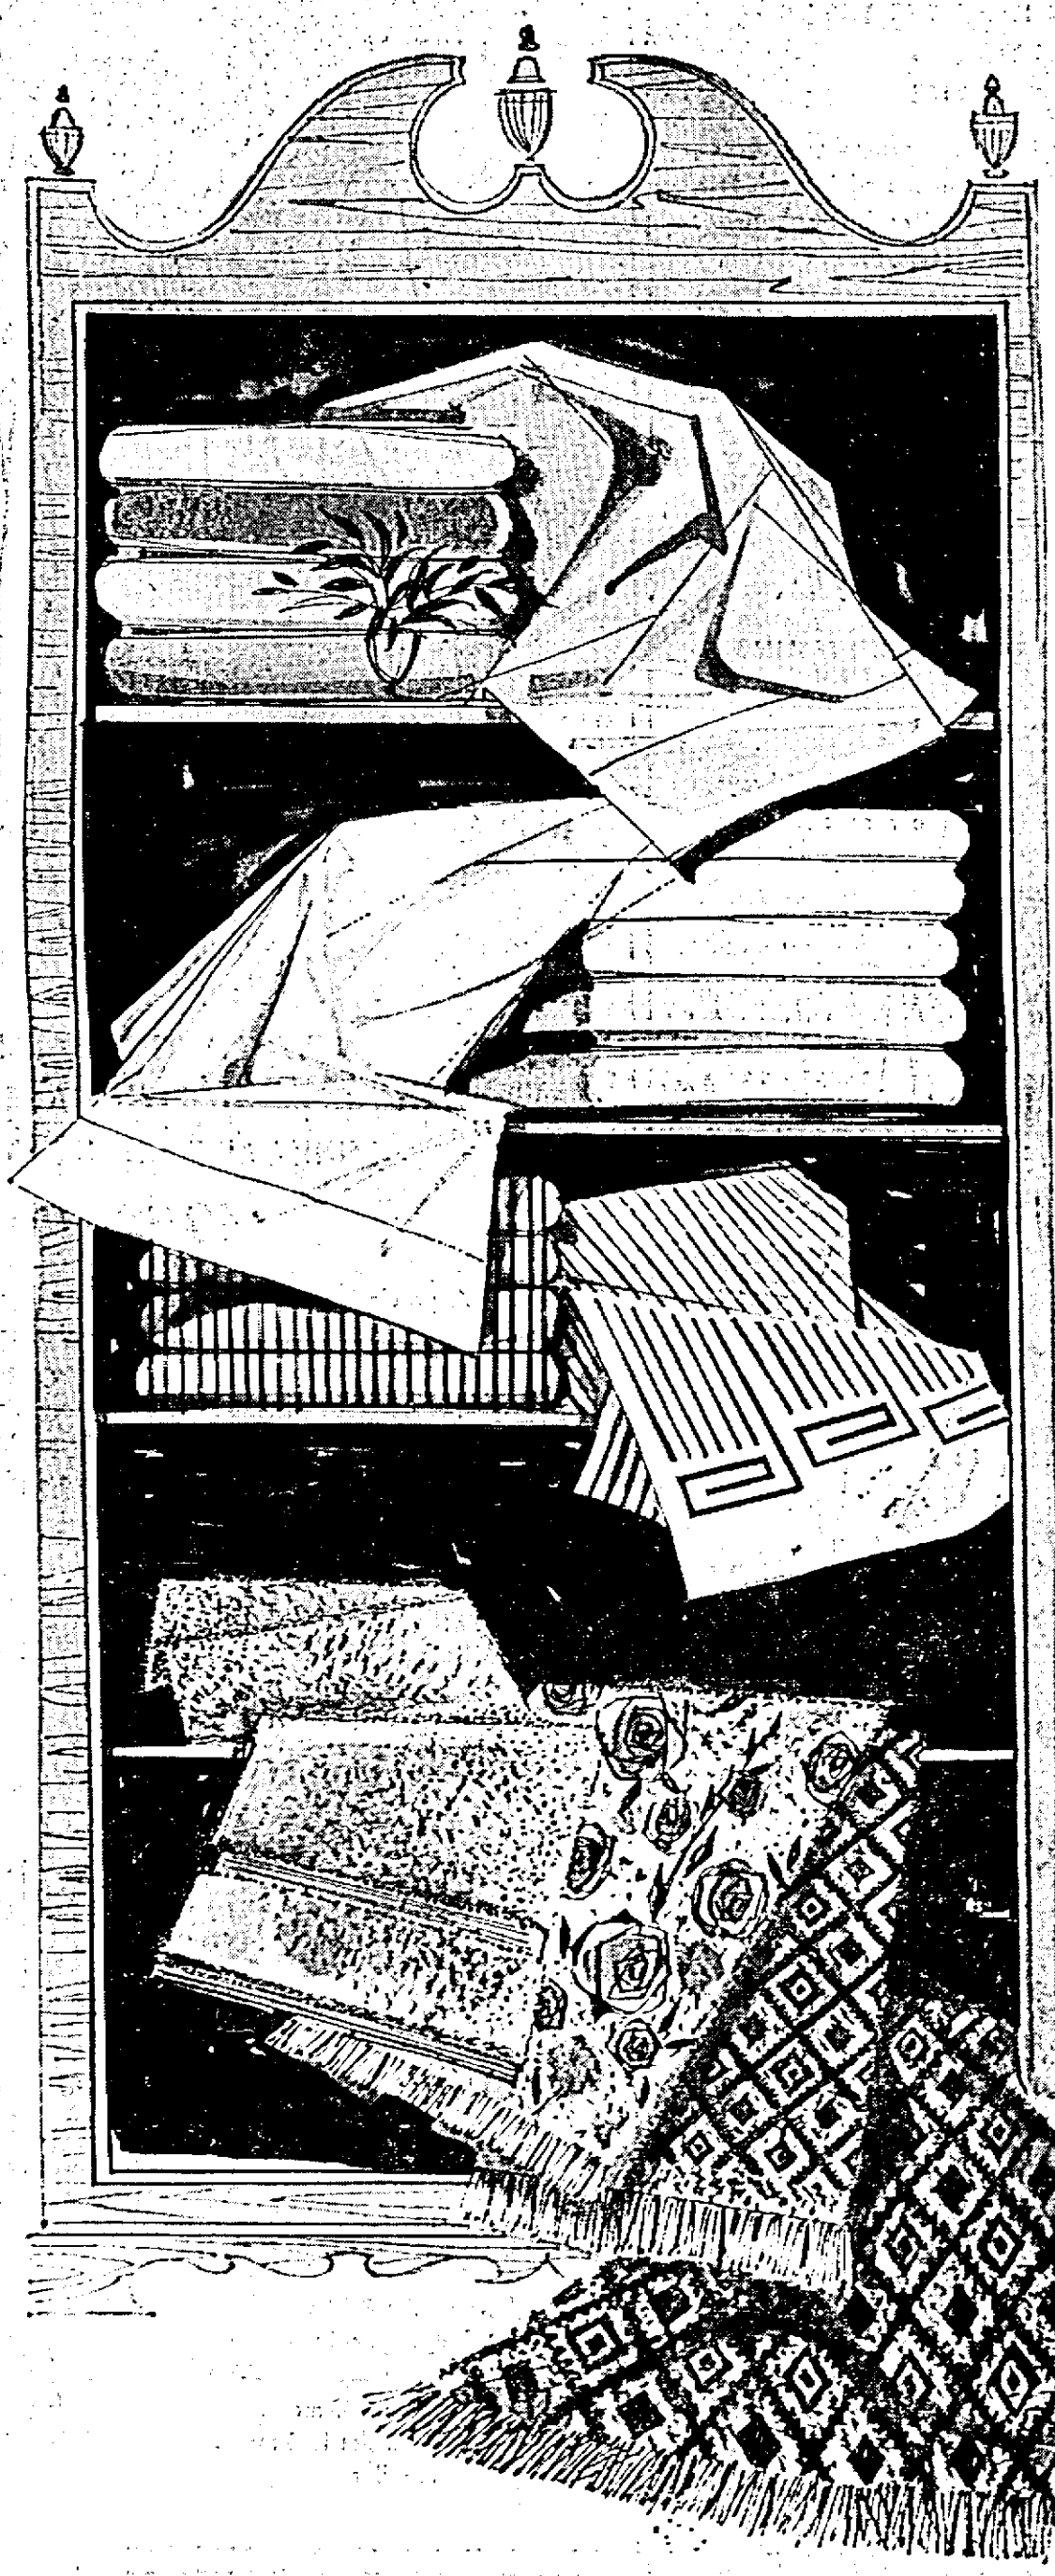

We are one of the busiest offices in Southern California, so if we cannot help you, be assured that we will not take your case.

The total charge is $3.00 for the first treatment and the examination. And if you see no improvement from the first treatment, you are under no obligation to return. Assure your appointment by calling 531-1301, 2067 Atlantic Ave., L. B. Dr. H. L. Hutchings, D.C., director.

Mart Bandits Grab $1,800 --Threaten 3

Sheriff's detectives Saturday were checking leads in the $1,800 armed robbery of a Lakewood market.

Three young, tough-talking gunmen, who threatened to shoot three persons, robbed the A & P Market at 4243 Woodruff Ave.

Clerk Harry Neil Prouse, 27, who was accosted by the trio as he entered a storeroom, told deputies one of the men threatened to blow his head off if he tried to get a good look at the bandit. Market manager Patrick James Tiedman, 40, was forced to open a safe from which the bandits got the cash as one of them held a .45-caliber pistol to his head.

As the robbers were preparing to make their getaway, Paul Dee Brooks, 56, arrived to deliver milk. One of the men threatened to kill him if he didn't get out of the market.

Probe Death of Pensioner

Fire investigators Saturday were probing the death of a 74-year-old Wilmington pensioner who died of aphyxiation in his smoke-filled room.

The body of Duke M. Voich was found on the floor of his home at 1651 N. Avalon Blvd., shortly before noon.

Officials said he apparently fell from his bed while trying to flee after a short-circuited electrical cord set fire to his mattress.

Firemen said Voich had a sunlamp clamped to a chair next to the bed. A faulty cord apparently set fire to the mattress and touched off a smoldering fire which filled the small room with acrid smoke.

Mart Bandits Grab $1,800 --Threaten 3

Sheriff's detectives Saturday were checking leads in the $1,800 armed robbery of a Lakewood market.

Three young, tough-talking gunmen, who threatened to shoot three persons, robbed the A & P Market at 4243 Woodruff Ave.

Clerk Harry Neil Prouse, 27, who was accosted by the trio as he entered a storeroom, told deputies one of the men threatened to blow his head off if he tried to get a good look at the bandit. Market manager Patrick James Tiedman, 40, was forced to open a safe from which the bandits got the cash as one of them held a .45-caliber pistol to his head.

As the robbers were preparing to make their getaway, Paul Dee Brooks, 56, arrived to deliver milk. One of the men threatened to kill him if he didn't get out of the market.

Probe Death of Pensioner

Fire investigators Saturday were probing the death of a 74-year-old Wilmington pensioner who died of aphyxiation in his smoke-filled room.

The body of Duke M. Voich was found on the floor of his home at 1651 N. Avalon Blvd., shortly before noon.

Officials said he apparently fell from his bed while trying to flee after a short-circuited electrical cord set fire to his mattress.

Firemen said Voich had a sunlamp clamped to a chair next to the bed. A faulty cord apparently set fire to the mattress and touched off a smoldering fire which filled the small room with acrid smoke.

New air-driven surgical instrument can cut bone without injuring surrounding tissue as it cuts eggshell without injury to membrane.

Medical Tools Cut Bone Like Butter

By BEN ZINSER
Medical Science Editor

High-speed, air-driven surgical instruments that cut through bone like a knife through butter were demonstrated at a scientific meeting Saturday.

Called Airtomes (air cutters), the devices make possible surgical techniques so precise and delicate that a surgeon can literally do sculpturing in bone.

A standard demonstration is to write one's name through the shell of a fresh egg without damaging the thin membrane that lies just beneath it.

Two of three models of the device were shown Saturday in New York City at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons.

• • • •

USING a feather touch, a surgeon can saw through a large leg bone, cut away the top of the skull for removal of a brain tumor, drill holes and insert screws in fractured bones, shape spinal bones for fusion, contour bones of the face, and perform many other intricate surgical procedures.

The two new instruments to be shown today are further improvements of a small, lightweight surgical drill-saw developed in 1958 by Dr. Robert M. Hall, an oral surgeon of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Surgeons using the air cutters say that they reduce the time required for bone operations as much as 80%.

CUTTING and shaping can be done so rapidly that adjacent bone cells are not damaged by heat or crushing.

Air surgery also has a safety feature, Dr. Hall says. Although the device cuts through bone like a knife through butter, it does not cut or tear the soft surrounnding tissues in the event that accidental contact should be made with them. The flesh is simply pushed aside by the rotating blade, he says.

In heart surgery the device has been used to sculpture away the hard calcium deposits that clog the valves of the heart in rheumatic heart disease.

• • • •

INTRODUCED to the medical profession a little more than a year ago, the instrument has been adopted by more than 800 hospitals throughout the nation, Dr. Hall says.

The three Airtomes now available include a drill-saw instrument, a device particularly adapted to cutting through the skull in brain operations and a heavy-duty surgical tool designed to drill holes for bone surgery, to ream bone, and to insert and remove pins, wires, bolts and screws in bone.

Dozens of drills, saws, burs and other attachments fit the three Airtomes and are interchangeable in seconds.

Quash Indictments, Order Rearrests

By BOB GEIVET

Two men accused of grand theft and other offenses in connection with a Newport Beach electronics plant they organized in 1960 won dismissal of a grand jury indictment Friday—and promptly were rearrested on orders of the judge who freed them.

Gordon Miles Copp, 42, and Owen J. McCormack, 39, were ordered to return to Judge William Murray's Superior Court on March 5 to answer whatever charges are then pending against them.

• • • •

THE COURT dismissed the grand jury indictments for one count of conspiracy in connection with sales of stock in the Orbitec Corp., 16 counts of grand theft, and six violations of the Corporate Securities Act involving sale of $186,000 in unregistered stocks.

Judge Murray ordered District Attorney Kenneth Williams to seek new charges against the men who were rearrested while still in court. Then the judge released them on their own recognizance.

Williams can seek another grand jury indictment or file charges in court and go through procedure of arraignment and preliminary hearing in a municipal court.

Williams can appeal Judge Murray's dismissal of the grand jury indictment on grounds that the statute of limitations had run in their case. The district attorney declined to reveal his future course.

• • • •

BOTH COPP and McCormack were indicted in August 1963, and then Copp went to Europe and McCormack to New York. Copp returned to the United States after the federal government revoked his passport, and he and McCormack returned to the West Coast to face the charges.

The unusual turn of events was under authority of a little-used section of law.

Attaches of Orange County courts said they could not recall such a procedure ever having been used before in that county.

Birch Police Aim Cited

By BOB DAVIS

John Birch Society members within the Santa Ana police department were responsible for most of the department's internal problems in 1964.

This is the opinion of Chief Edward J. Allen, and two police officers — former JBS members — testifying in Allen's behalf in the continuing City Personnel Board hearing for former police Lt. Loren Norton.

A charge that the JBS was responsible for the department's troubles was released to the press Nov. 5 by City Manager Carl Thornton. Chief Allen said he concurred with the claim.

• • • • •

THE STATEMENT was released the day before Norton and Capt. Fred Hopper, both 36, were fired by Allen on a series of charges including misconduct, dishonesty, insubordination, failure to observe departmental rules and failure to cooperate reasonably with their superiors.

Norton was additionally charged with soliciting membership in the JBS among officers while on duty. The eight-year police veteran was also identified as a JBS member.

Hopper, who was not connected to the JBS, was subsequently acquitted of the charges after a five-week hearing and was reinstated in the department.

• • • •

JOHN ROUSSELOT, public-relations director for the JBS, immediately denied Thornton's claim that the JBS was involved in the police matter, and said:

"If any of our members are participating in this action they are doing so without the backing and sanction of the society. And if they are acting improperly we will terminate their membership immediately."

Rousselot's statement resulted in an immediate city-police silence about the JBS until the Norton hearing started Dec. 29. In the three days of testimony since then, two officers, George King and Sgt. Kenneth Day, have testified:

"The JBS members in the police department, estimated to be 12 to 15, took over the leadership of the Police Benevolent Association with their aims to split the department into two factions and cause the ouster of the chief as a mental incompetent."

• • • • •

IN NOV. 7 statement, Rousselot said the alleged actions against the chief by JBS members are "completely contrary to the society's policies of upholding law and order."

"We just don't operate that way," he insisted.

A recent survey of 40 police departments across the United States by the Associated Press indicated none of the 40 police chiefs interviewed knew of any JBS members within their respective departments.

("Of course," many of the chiefs said, "we have no way to determine whether we have any JBS members or not.")

• • • •

ROUSSELOT Friday repeated that any JBS member acting improperly in the police matter would be kicked out immediately.

He said area leaders of the society have been watching the police hearing closely and have conducted a thorough investigation into the police JBS chapter to see if any anti-police matters were recorded in the minutes of any chapter meeting during the past six months.

"I know for a fact that no chapter or area leaders have condemned the Santa Ana police or investigated any action against the chief," Rousselot said.

• • • •

"WE WANT to be fair, and will wait until the conclusion of the Norton hearing before we make a decision to take any action. If the facts prove a JBS member wrong we will act then."

Rousselot added that Santa Ana druggist Paul Calhoun, area coordinator for the JBS, had advised the personnel board that Rousselot would be glad to testify about the society's views on police if it would shed any light on the Norton hearing.

Good Sailing Seen for LBJ's 'Great Society'

By HARRY W. SHARPE
United Press International

The new, heavily Democratic 89th Congress met last week in a climate auguring good sailing for President Johnson's charter for a "Great Society."

The President personally placed his legislative blueprint before the lawmakers. He touched nearly all bases, domestic and foreign, and said he would spell out the details in special messages before his Jan. 20 inauguration.

The first—on hospital insurance for the elderly plus means to curb major diseases — went up last week. It carried a billion dollar price tag. The health care section would be financed by higher Social Security taxes.

• • • •

JOHNSON also invited Russia's new leaders to visit the U.S. and discover for themselves America's economic vitality as well as its passion for peace. There was gratification in Moscow, but doubt the trip could be arranged this year.

He also said he plans to visit Western Europe and Latin America — a signal that he intends to take a personal, free-wheeling hand in diplomacy, once Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is installed in office.

As for troubled Southeast Asia, he declared grimly that the U.S. would stay in Communist-embattled South Viet Nam, where 356 Americans have died, until its Red invaders agree to leave their neighbors alone.

And finally, he became the first American president to suggest publicly that birth control might be necessary to deal with the worldwide population explosion which he said is outracing world resources. Like other chief executives, he has had the problem brought home to him by the bottomless pit of foreign aid spending.

• • • •

THE Planned Parenthood Federation promptly urged Johnson to order a $100 million, five-year crash program to seek and perfect birth control methods acceptable to all religious faiths.

In Congress all was not merry as both parties organized for the legislative and political wars ahead.

House Republicans, bent on staging a comeback after their party's election disaster, dumped their veteran leader, Rep. Charles A. Halleck, Ind., for a young "activist" — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, Mich. Ford supporters also were placed in other top party posts in a determined drive to give the GOP a new public image.

Ford, a conservative of sorts himself, denied this was rebellion against Barry Goldwater and the conservative forces the defeated presidential nominee represents. But Halleck was regarded as typical of the Goldwater image.

• • • •

THE Democratic power structure in the House remained unchanged though the party's lopsided majority enabled it to stack strategic committees with lawmakers dedicated to passing health care for the elderly, excise (sales) tax cuts, and other major bills on Johnson's urgent legislative slate. The Democrats also engineered rules changes intended to prevent Southern Democratic-Republican coalitions from bottling up administration bills.

The only change in the Senate leadership in either party was election of Sen. Russell B. Long, La., as Democratic whip succeeding Humphrey who on Jan. 20 becomes Senate president. Long is an arch foe of racial rights, but otherwise is regarded as liberal. A Southern fight against tightening rules to curb Senate filibusters marked his first few days in office.

The President's legislative agenda ranged from repeal of the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley Law to job-creating public works programs. Labor has made the repealer its major target.

Johnson concluded his message by declaring the nation is "free, restless, growing and full of hope —we are only at the beginning of the road to the Great Society."

REP. GERALD FORD
A Young 'Activist'

He dwelt at length on the national economy and the urgency of keeping it going full tilt. He appealed once again for wage and price restraint. His proposed excise tax cut would be intended to lift consumer spending. The pump-priming effects of last year's $11.5 billion tax cut admittedly are beginning to wear off.

He related developments the Labor Department reported that unemployment dropped during December to 4.9% of the labor force. The Defense Department's military budget for the new fiscal year was reported to total $49.1 billion. It will call among other things for manpower cuts and a reduced manned bomber force but a bigger nuclear-powered Navy.

The President strongly endorsed increased trade with the Soviet Union in talks with American businessmen just back from Moscow. He was quoted as saying "there is no better way to come to know each other than to engage in peaceful and profitable commerce together."

In the wake of this the FBI arrested Robert Glenn Thompson, Bay Shore, N.Y., fuel oil dealer and former U.S. airman, on charges of selling defense information to Soviet agents for $1,700. As an outgrowth of the case the State Department asked Boris Vladimorovich Karpovich, information counselor at the Russian embassy in Washington, to leave the country. A former Russian United Nations official, now in Moscow, also was accused.

In politics, GOP National Chairman Dean Burch tried to rally big name Republicans to his side in his battle to keep his $30,000-a-year job. Party moderates, disgruntled by Goldwater's election debacle, want Burch's scalp, plus control of party machinery.

The showdown will come at a national committee meeting in Chicago Jan. 22-23.

The new year's holiday period was the worst in U.S. history on the highways. More than 440 motorists died in accidents. Added to the Christmas holidays the toll passed 1,000. National Safety Council officials were aghast.

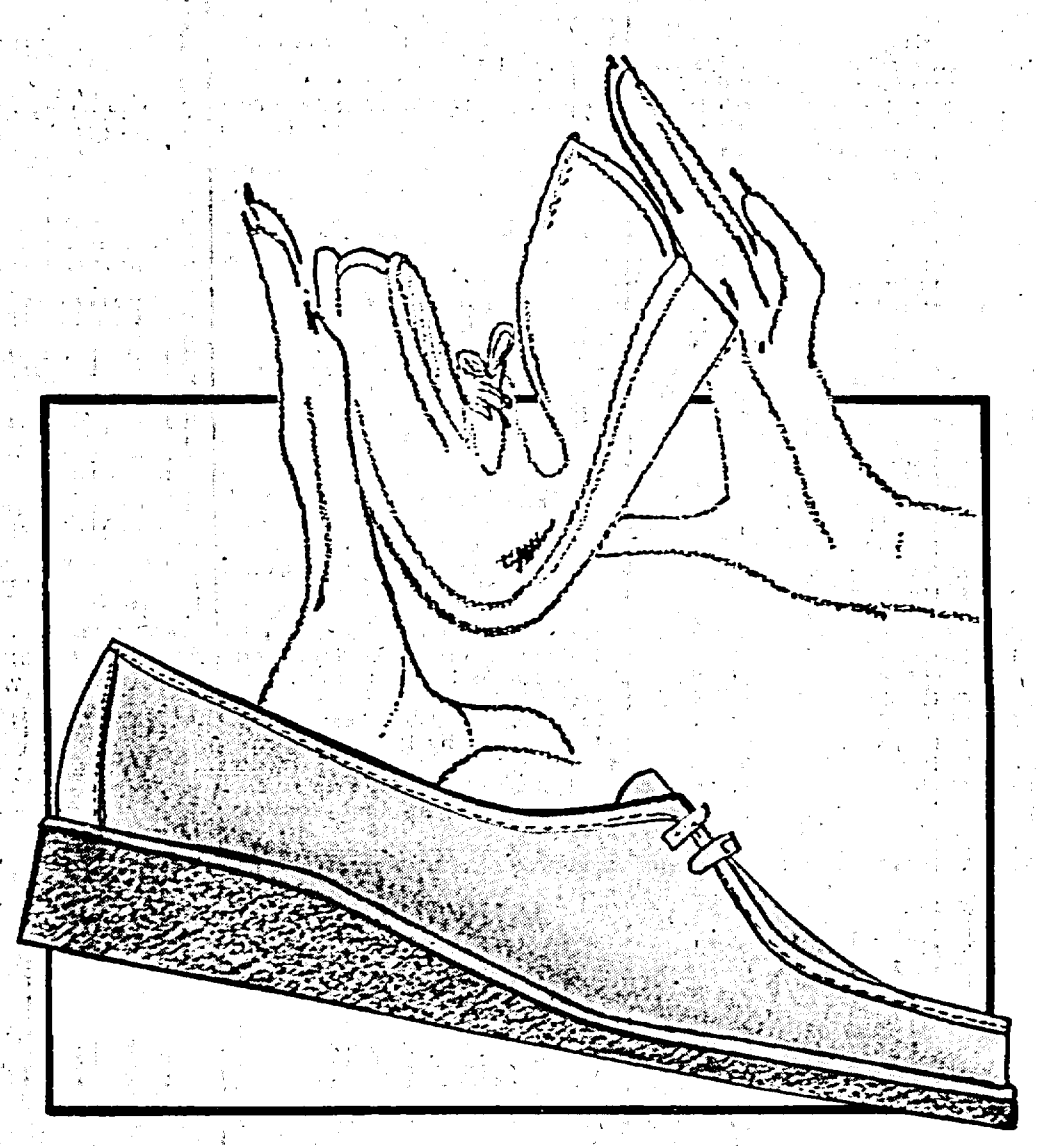

The Department of Justice filed the first suits under the 1964 Civil Rights Act to end racial discrimination in schools in Campbell County, Tenn., and Bossier Parish, La.

The steel industry broke off wage contract negotiations with the steel workers union at Pittsburgh until the union choses between rival candidates for president — incumbent David J. McDonald and I. W. Abel, union secretary-treasurer. The election is Feb. 9.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Good Sailing Seen for LBJ's 'Great Society'

By HARRY W. SHARPE
United Press International

The new, heavily Democratic 89th Congress met last week in a climate auguring good sailing for President Johnson's charter for a "Great Society."

The President personally placed his legislative blueprint before the lawmakers. He touched nearly all bases, domestic and foreign, and said he would spell out the details in special messages before his Jan. 20 inauguration.

The first—on hospital insurance for the elderly plus means to curb major diseases — went up last week. It carried a billion dollar price tag. The health care section would be financed by higher Social Security taxes.

* * * *

JOHNSON also invited Russia's new leaders to visit the U.S. and discover for themselves America's economic vitality as well as its passion for peace. There was gratification in Moscow, but doubt the trip could be arranged this year.

He also said he plans to visit Western Europe and Latin America — a signal that he intends to take a personal, free-wheeling hand in diplomacy, once Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey is installed in office.

As for troubled Southeast Asia, he declared grimly that the U.S. would stay in Communist-embattled South Viet Nam, where 356 Americans have died, until its Red invaders agree to leave their neighbors alone.

And finally, he became the first American president to suggest publicly that birth control might be necessary to deal with the worldwide population explosion which he said is outracing world resources. Like other chief executives, he has had the problem brought home to him by the bottomless pit of foreign aid spending.

* * * *

THE Planned Parenthood Federation promptly urged Johnson to order a $100 million, five-year crash program to seek and perfect birth control methods acceptable to all religious faiths.

In Congress all was not merry as both parties organized for the legislative and political wars ahead.

UNUSUAL AUTO is examined by prospective buyers at auction in Long Beach Saturday. The type 37 Bugatti was purchased, subject to court approval, by Navy Lt. (j.g.) Thomas Gunlock.

RARE BUGATTI AUTOS BID IN AT AUCTION

By PAUL WALLACE

A young Long Beach-based Navy officer Saturday suddenly found himself apparent owner of one of the rarest historic automobiles in the state — for $4,025.

Lt. (j.g.) Thomas Gunlock, an officer aboard the USS Bennington, bought the flawless restored Type 37 Bugatti grand prix two-seater at an auction involved in the estate of the late Dr. Milton Roth.

Dr. Roth, who practiced dentistry at 2240 Pacific Ave., Long Beach, was a longtime automobile enthusiast. He specialized in Bugattis, the custom French sports and luxury cars which were to the era between the two world wars what Ferrari has been in the postwar period.

* * * *

DR. ROTH, who died in October, 1963, of a heart attack at the age of 48, owned five of the rare Bugattis when he died.

They went on the block in the parking lot of the late dentist's office along with a 1959 Jaguar convertible, a 1949 Cadillac limousine, and a handsome, cycle-fendered 1949 Cadillac-engined Allard, a leading sports car road-racing contender 15 years ago.

Lt. Gunlock, a novice at collecting, plucked the plum of the auction as the first antique car he has owned. The auto was appraised before the auction at $9,500.

The young lieutenant, delighted with his purchase of the racy little blue two-seater with the distinctive Bugatti horseshoe-shaped radiator, admitted his previous rare-car activities had been confined to "mostly wishing."

The purchase of the mint-condition Type 37 — a racing car of the years around 1930—is subject to the approval of the probate court, however.

Since the bids on it and the other Bugattis were substantially under the appraised values, the estate executor may recommend rejection of some or all of the bids and try again.

Another outstanding car was the beautiful-bodied Type 57 Bugatti convertible. It was purchased tentatively for $2,850 by Paul Woudenberg of 1160 Bixby Road.

* * * *

SECOND top price was brought by a copper-fendered little two-seated Brescia Bugatti. It was sold to Ricketts Motors of Long Beach for $3,100.

The other two Bugattis went for $2,500 and $1,500. The eight cars brought a total of $16,995. Their appraised value was more than twice that figure.

After the auction, which failed to attract the wealthy out-of-town car collectors who were expected, Clyde Bronn, attorney for the estate, indicated that at least some of the bids probably would be recommended for rejection because they were too low.

All-Out War on Leukemia Tops '64 Medical News

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A crash program to find a cure of prevention for human leukemia highlighted news of medical research in 1964.

But terms like cold-knife surgery, laser, beams, hyperbaric chambers and ultrasound also occupied front-rank spots in the march of medicine.

There were new vaccines and new operations—and a report on a marvelous new drug that may prove to be the hottest item in medicine since penicillin.

There were setbacks, too—epidemic or outbreaks of old afflictions such as sleeping sickness, diphtheria and meningitis.

* * * *

AND THERE was medical controversy. Example: to vaccinate or not to vaccinate adults against polio.

The most significant word in medicine in 1964 was: virus.

Medical science came closer and closer to solving many of the riddles posed by the tiny micro-organisms.

Many medical scientists are almost certain now that viruses are responsible for the onset of human leukemia.

During 1964, human leukemia cells yields viruses or virus-like particles to several teams of scientific investigators.

* * * *

THE NEW findings raise hopes that further study will pin down the relationship between viruses and the disease.

Hopefully, an autileukemia vaccine may stem from all this research.

For if a specific virus is found to be responsible for the development of human leukemia, it should be possible to produce a vaccine to immunize against it.

New knowledge about leukemia prompted the National Cancer Institute to sparkplug a new multimillion-dollar research program with funds voted by Congress.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the American Medical Association announced that a vaccine against infectious hepatitis, a virus-caused liver ailment, may be on the horizon "if work carried out in 1964 is substantiated and extended."

An expeimental antiviral drug, amatadine, holds promise as an agent to prevent influenza. Preliminary research also indicates amantadine may be of value in the treatment of German measles.

The biggest breakthrough in virus-drug research was the development of methisazone, a compound that can prevent smallpox in unvaccinated persons who have been exposed to the disease.

The year's most promising drug was dimethyl sulfoxide, or DMSO, a liquid with potent skin-penetration properties. Early studies indicate it may be useful in treatment of arthritis, acne, headache, sinusitis, burns, perhaps even cancer.

* * * *

ALREADY, in human trials, DMSO has been able to give prompt relief to persons afflicted with excrutiatingly painful bursitis.

The powerful concentrated light beam of the laser — called the "death ray" by some — was used experimentally in the treatment of highly malignant skin cancer. The laser also was used for the first time in Long Beach in eye surgery — to repair a detached retina.

The "cold knife"—a probe made intensely cold by liquid nitrogen—was used in brain and pituitary surgery and now is being proposed as a new way to remove tonsils — by freezing them out.

Large tanks containing oxygen under pressure — hyperbaric chambers—continued to offer a variety of medical uses, including treatment of lockjaw and of gas gangrene. In some cases, drenching patients with oxygen thwarted gangrene to save limbs which might have otherwise have had to be amputated.

* * * *

ULTRASOUND moved into the hospital as a diagnostic tool. It is being used to scan various internal organs for defects, to detect bleeding in the cranium and to determine problems of pregnancy.

Epsom-salts enemas were found capable of curing babies of an often-fatal breathing disorder, hyaline membrane disease. The treatment draws off water from body tissues, resulting in dramatic recovery.

A drug prescribed mainly for female-organ infections was found able to curb craving for alcoholic beverages. Research is now under way to see if the drug, Flagyl, can help most alcoholics.

A new measles vaccine, the Schwarz vaccine, was developed and is expected to be on the market soon.

* * * *

A PEANUT-OIL preparation, Adjuvant 65, was found capable of beefing up the potency of influenza vaccine to provide longer-lasting immunity.

Denver researchers found they could prevent recurrence of kidney stones by prescribing magnesium tablets.

A Texas doctor reported that large doses of vitamin C can reduce the pain and disability associated with slipped disc in the low back.

A drug made from bilberries, Pourpranyl, improves night vision, French researchers reported. Also in France, doctors began using an enzyme, lysozyme, in preference to morphine as a pain-reliever.

* * * *

FOR THE first time a drug, thiabendazole, cured a case of human trichinosis.

Researchers discovered that one massive monthly dose of penicillin does a better job than small daily doses of penicillin in preventing strep-throat infections.

Doctors found that a drug, Pergonal, can render barren women superfertile.

A cream containing a sulfa drug reduced strikingly the death rate from infection among a large series of severely burned patient.

* * * *

SEVERAL patients with circulatory disorders were spared amputation of a leg, thanks to a new compound, Rheomacrodex.

An experimental drug, clofibrate, effectively lowers the levels of potentially dangerous blood fats, researchers reported.

Small daily doses of linseed oil may be able to prevent heart attacks by reducing blood stickiness, an eminent Norwegian physician suggested.

IRANIAN VISITOR GOES SHOPPING

'Just Give Me Your Money,' Con Man Said in Persian

By BILL HAZLETT

The City of Long Beach tackled some tough problems, including a language barrier, Saturday, to help a bewildered and frightened Iranian seaman victimized by a confidence game.

It all started about 1 p.m. when 35-year-old Esmail Baba - Khani - Moghadam, a chief petty officer from the Imperial Iranian Navy's minesweeper "Riazi" was arrested by a department-store security officer for shoplifting.

The facts seemed pretty clear. The sailor had been seen loading three shirts, two pairs of pants and two cigarette lighters into a shopping bag.

* * * *

WHEN HE left the store without paying, he was quite naturally arrested.

But, when Officer Jim Fontaine tried to question him it was discovered that Baba-Khani-Moghadam didn't speak a word of English.

Police solved this problem by contacting Shore Patrol Headquarters which found an officer from the Iranian ship who could speak English, to translate.

Under questioning by Lt. Parviz Ghadimi, the frightened prisoner told of meeting a man in the department store who spoke his language. The new-found friend offered to help Baba-Khani-Moghadam with his shopping.

In fact, the seaman said, the friend told him to go ahead with his selection, and he'd take care of paying — with Baba-Khani-Moghadam's money, of course.

The seaman turned over his money, and made his selections. When he was ready to leave the store, the seaman found his "friend" had gone, so he too left, only to be arrested.

* * * *

FACED with an "international incident," Police Lt. Bob Williams immediately contacted Patrol Lt. Don Tubbs and Tom Zeiger, chief deputy city prosecutor.

Zeiger, with the help of Iranian Lt. Ghadimi, worked up a release, and explained it to Baba-Khani-Moghadam.

The release, or rejection of complaint, was signed quickly, and the bewildered seaman was freed. The merchandise was returned to the store.

"Well, it was all in the interest of justice, and we're on friendly terms with Iran," Zeiger said.

After all, one of the police officers mused, Long Beach is known as "The International City."

Trouble With Radiator? May Be Mice

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England (AP) — The fourth time that banker Harry Rees' radiator boiled over, he boiled over.

"I was furious," he said. "The trouble was with the rubber tubing leading from the radiator to the engine. The garage kept replacing it."

A friend examined the hole in the rubber tubing and said:

"You've got a mouse in your car."

"He was right," said Rees. "I sprinkled poison around the tubing, and now I think I've killed him off. Anyhow, the radiator doesn't boil over."

A garageman said mice like certain types of anti-freeze and gnaw through the tubing to get it.

The young lieutenant, delighted with his purchase of the racy little blue two-seater with the distinctive Bugatti horse-shoe-shaped radiator, admitted his previous rare-car activities had been confined to "mostly wishing."

The purchase of the mint-condition Type 37 — a racing car of the years around 1930—is subject to the approval of the probate court, however.

Since the bids on it and the other Bugattis were substantially under the appraised values, the estate executor may recommend rejection of some or all of the bids and try again.

Another outstanding car was the beautiful-bodied Type 57 Bugatti convertible. It was purchased tentatively for $2,850 by Paul Woudenberg of 1160 Bixby Road.

* * * *

SECOND top price was brought by a copper-fendered little two-seated Brescia Bugatti. It was sold to Ricketts Motors of Long Beach for $3,100.

The other two Bugattis went for $2,500 and $1,500. The eight cars brought a total of $16,995. Their appraised value was more than twice that figure.

After the auction, which failed to attract the wealthy out-of-town car collectors who were expected, Clyde Bronn, attorney for the estate, indicated that at least some of the bids probably would be recommended for rejection because they were too low.

All-Out War on Leukemia Tops '64 Medical News

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A crash program to find a cure of prevention for human leukemia highlighted news of medical research in 1964.

But terms like cold-knife surgery, laser, beams, hyperbaric chambers and ultrasound also occupied front-rank spots in the march of medicine.

There were new vaccines and new operations—and a report on a marvelous new drug that may prove to be the hottest item in medicine since penicillin.

There were setbacks, too—epidemic or outbreaks of old afflictions such as sleeping sickness, diphtheria and meningitis.

* * * *

AND THERE was medical controversy. Example: to vaccinate or not to vaccinate adults against polio.

The most significant word in medicine in 1964 was: virus.

Medical science came closer and closer to solving many of the riddles posed by the tiny micro-organisms.

Many medical scientists are almost certain now that viruses are responsible for the onset of human leukemia.

During 1964, human leukemia cells yields viruses or virus-like particles to several teams of scientific investigators.

* * * *

THE NEW findings raise hopes that further study will pin down the relationship between viruses and the disease.

Hopefully, an autileukemia vaccine may stem from all this research.

For if a specific virus is found to be responsible for the development of human leukemia, it should be possible to produce a vaccine to immunize against it.

New knowledge about leukemia prompted the National Cancer Institute to sparkplug a new multimillion-dollar research program with funds voted by Congress.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the American Medical Association announced that a vaccine against infectious hepatitis, a virus-caused liver ailment, may be on the horizon "if work carried out in 1964 is substantiated and extended."

An expeimental antiviral drug, amatadine, holds promise as an agent to prevent influenza. Preliminary research also indicates amantadine may be of value in the treatment of German measles.

The biggest breakthrough in virus-drug research was the development of methisazone, a compound that can prevent smallpox in unvaccinated persons who have been exposed to the disease.

The year's most promising drug was dimethyl sulfoxide, or DMSO, a liquid with potent skin-penetration properties. Early studies indicate it may be useful in treatment of arthritis, acne, headache, sinusitis, burns, perhaps even cancer.

* * * *

ALREADY, in human trials, DMSO has been able to give prompt relief to persons afflicted with excrutiatingly painful bursitis.

The powerful concentrated light beam of the laser — called the "death ray" by some — was used experimentally in the treatment of highly malignant skin cancer. The laser also was used for the first time in Long Beach in eye surgery — to repair a detached retina.

The "cold knife"—a probe made intensely cold by liquid nitrogen—was used in brain and pituitary surgery and now is being proposed as a new way to remove tonsils — by freezing them out.

Large tanks containing oxygen under pressure — hyperbaric chambers—continued to offer a variety of medical uses, including treatment of lockjaw and of gas gangrene. In some cases, drenching patients with oxygen thwarted gangrene to save limbs which might have otherwise have had to be amputated.

* * * *

ULTRASOUND moved into the hospital as a diagnostic tool. It is being used to scan various internal organs for defects, to detect bleeding in the cranium and to determine problems of pregnancy.

Epsom-salts enemas were found capable of curing babies of an often-fatal breathing disorder, hyaline membrane disease. The treatment draws off water from body tissues, resulting in dramatic recovery.

A drug prescribed mainly for female-organ infections was found able to curb craving for alcoholic beverages. Research is now under way to see if the drug, Flagyl, can help most alcoholics.

A new measles vaccine, the Schwarz vaccine, was developed and is expected to be on the market soon.

* * * *

A PEANUT-OIL preparation, Adjuvant 65, was found capable of beefing up the potency of influenza vaccine to provide longer-lasting immunity.

Denver researchers found they could prevent recurrence of kidney stones by prescribing magnesium tablets.

A Texas doctor reported that large doses of vitamin C can reduce the pain and disability associated with slipped disc in the low back.

A drug made from bilberries, Pourpranyl, improves night vision, French researchers reported. Also in France, doctors began using an enzyme, Iysozyme, in preference to morphine as a pain-reliever.

* * * *

FOR THE first time a drug, thiabendazole, cured a case of human trichinosis.

Researchers discovered that one massive monthly dose of penicillin does a better job than small daily doses of penicillin in preventing strep-throat infections.

Doctors found that a drug, Pergonal, can render barren women superfertile.

A cream containing a sulfa drug reduced strikingly the death rate from infection among a large series of severely burned patient.

* * * *

SEVERAL patients with circulatory disorders were spared amputation of a leg, thanks to a new compound, Rheomacrodex.

An experimental drug, clofibrate, effectively lowers the levels of potentially dangerous blood fats, researchers reported.

Small daily doses of linseed oil may be able to prevent heart attacks by reducing blood stickiness, an eminent Norwegian physician suggested.

IRANIAN VISITOR GOES SHOPPING

'Just Give Me Your Money,' Con Man Said in Persian

By BILL HAZLETT

The City of Long Beach tackled some tough problems, including a language barrier, Saturday, to help a bewildered and frightened Iranian seaman victimized by a confidence game.

It all started about 1 p.m. when 35-year-old Esmail Baba - Khani - Moghadam, a chief petty officer from the Imperial Iranian Navy's minesweeper "Riazi" was arrested by a department-store security officer for shoplifting.

The facts seemed pretty clear. The sailor had been seen loading three shirts, two pairs of pants and two cigarette lighters into a shopping bag.

* * * *

WHEN HE left the store without paying, he was quite naturally arrested.

But, when Officer Jim Fontaine tried to question him it was discovered that Baba-Khani-Moghadam didn't speak a word of English.

Police solved this problem by contacting Shore Patrol Headquarters which found an officer from the Iranian ship who could speak English, to translate.

Under questioning by Lt. Parviz Ghadimi, the frightened prisoner told of meeting a man in the department store who spoke his language. The new-found friend offered to help Baba-Khani-Moghadam with his shopping.

In fact, the seaman said, the friend told him to go ahead with his selection, and he'd take care of paying — with Baba-Khani-Moghadam's money, of course.

The seaman turned over his money, and made his selections. When he was ready to leave the store, the seaman found his "friend" had gone, so he too left, only to be arrested.

* * * *

FACED with an "international incident," Police Lt. Bob Williams immediately contacted Patrol Lt. Don Tubbs and Tom Zeiger, chief deputy city prosecutor.

Zeiger, with the help of Iranian Lt. Ghadimi, worked up a release, and explained it to Baba-Khani-Moghadam.

The release, or rejection of complaint, was signed quickly, and the bewildered seaman was freed. The merchandise was returned to the store.

"Well, it was all in the interest of justice, and we're on friendly terms with Iran," Zeiger said.

After all, one of the police officers mused, Long Beach is known as "The International City."

Trouble With Radiator? May Be Mice

TUNBRIDGE WELLS, England (AP) — The fourth time that banker Harry Rees' radiator boiled over, he boiled over.

"I was furious," he said. "The trouble was with the rubber tubing leading from the radiator to the engine. The garage kept replacing it."

A friend examined the hole in the rubber tubing and said:

"You've got a mouse in your car."

"He was right," said Rees. "I sprinkled poison around the tubing, and now I think I've killed him off. Anyhow, the radiator doesn't boil over."

A zoologist said mice like certain types of antifreeze and gnaw through the tubing to get it.

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda reported that a journalist who was imprisoned on phony bribery charge has been released and officials who framed him punished.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper demanded sterner punishment for Party officials who helped railroad the newsman into prison.

The journalist was A. Gaskov, in the town of Armavir, in the Krasnodar region, whose column specialized in exposing corruption and inefficiency among town officials. He was convicted of seeking a bribe to keep an expose of an abortion mill operator out of the paper.

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda reported that a journalist who was imprisoned on phony bribery charge has been released and officials who framed him punished.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper demanded sterner punishment for Party officials who helped railroad the newsman into prison.

The journalist was A. Gaskov, in the town of Armavir, in the Krasnodar region, whose column specialized in exposing corruption and inefficiency among town officials. He was convicted of seeking a bribe to keep an expose of an abortion mill operator out of the paper.

D'oyly Carte Troupe Shines in Production of 'Pinafore'

By DANIEL CARIAGA

The second production of the D'oyly Carte Opera Company's current Los Angeles run is Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore," which opened Friday. I attended the Saturday matinee and found the production and performance on the same high level of the company's "Mikado," and, in fact, in several ways superior to that delightful show.

The chorus and orchestra were at their very best. The male singers, a handsome lot, really looked like sailors, and sang and acted with all the controlled vitality of a first-rate ensemble. The orchestra was excellent, especially its warm-voiced strings. Led by James Walker, whose baton is firm and understanding, the orchestra gave full value to the wonderful melodiousness of the British Verdi, Sir Arthur Sullivan.

The cast maintained these high standards. John Reed, as Sir Joseph Porter, is in title and in fact the company's principal comedian. His long experience in this part, instead of making his performance stilled, seems to have the opposite effect: it gives him freedom and spontaneity.

The two lovers, played by Ann Hood and David Palmer, could not have been better. They both posses beautiful voices, and faces to match, and their acting is of the highest order. Their one long scene together was a delight to both ear and eye. Lest someone think this performance took place in heaven, I must register disappointment in the wooden acting of Gillian Knight, who played Little Buttercup. Though her Buttercup is distinctly an improvement on her Katisha, and her fine contralto voice a real asset, Miss Knight's acting displays neither understanding nor projection. Someone seeing the show for the first time would certainly leave the theater knowing less of Buttercup than when he entered.

Completing the cast were Jeffrey Skitch as Captain Corcoran and Donald Adams as Dick Deadeye. Mr. Skitch's performance realized all the subtleties of the captain's character; his diction is particularly admirable. In an afternoon of otherwise perfect tempos, his second-act opening seemed a little fast to these American ears.

The striking quarterdeck set by Peter Goffin, and the lovely and effective back cloth by Joseph and Phil Harker pointed up how really excellent future scenery will have to be to compete with the interior of the Pavilion. Truly, with the Pavilion's facilities, so well utilized by the D'oyly Carte trope, and its matchless acoustics, I can imagine no finer hall for the presentation of musical theater.

Two to Attend Meetings on City Parking

Parking problems and solutions in three California cities will be viewed at close hand next week by two Long Beach officials assigned to gather material for a forthcoming report to the City Council by City Manager John R. Mansell.

President to 'Reason' With Europe

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief, I-P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—One thing emerged unmistakenably clear from President Johnson's State of the Union Message last Monday evening. He intends to grasp firmly in his own hands the reins of foreign policy.

There were some who thought he might slough off on Secretary of State Dean Rusk, or Vice-President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey all but the most major parts of conducting foreign policy. His recent speech should disabuse those who thought that way. The President is going to be a do-it-yourselfer in the international field.

Characteristically, he is going to do it on a face-to-face basis, in so far as possible. The President is not a man who enjoys disembodied concepts or abstract ideas. He likes to wrestle with real problems and with real people. "Come let us reason together" is one of his favorite phrases, as he seeks to persuade or dissuade or to change a viewpoint.

* * * * *

HE HAS BEEN all of his life remarkably successful in persuading people to see things his way and quite obviously he believes the same technique can work in the realm of foreign relations.

It won't be as easy as talking to recalcitrant senators or congressmen or American politicians, yet the President is going to give it a good try. His excursions into the field of personal diplomacy will take him to Western Europe where presumably he will visit Britain, France, West Germany, and possibly Italy where he would not only pay a call upon Italy's elected officers but would undoubtedly also have a visit with Pope Paul VI.

In adapting to the foreign field his method of "reasoning"—it is also known around here as "arm-twisting"—Johnson will encounter a couple of tough hombres. The toughest, of course, will be Gen. Charles de Gaulle who over the course of the Years has shown himself almost totally impervious to the reasoning of others.

Le Grand Charles does his own reasoning — and that's that. A host of the world's greatest persuaders have worked on the general and all of them have had to admit defeat. Maybe Johnson can do better, but at the moment, don't bet too much on it.

* * * *

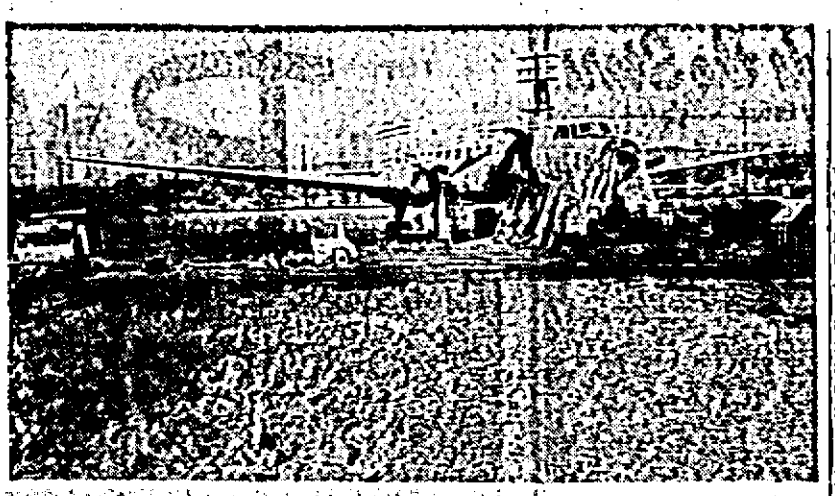

JOHNSON will also have to deal with German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard who for special reasons will be a much easier nut to crack than De Gaulle. Like Johnson, Erhard is having troubles with the Frenchman, so LBJ and the chancellor will have something in common right at the start. On top of that the Germans want to snuggle as close as possible to the United States which is the direct opposite of what De Gaulle wants Europe to do, so Johnson will probably find Germany a pleasant change from his visit to France.

On Johnson's agenda is a trip to Russia. While the Soviets haven't as yet taken formal cognizance of Johnson's expressed desire to visit Russia and to make an appearance on Russian TV, it is hardly likely that the President would have publicly mentioned this wish did he not have a pretty good idea that something would come of the whole project.

It is a little difficult to known precisely what the President hopes to achieve by his travel to the Soviet Union, but quite clearly his instinct is to want to meet Breshney and Kosygin and in old Southwestern style take their measure man-to-man.

The President is anxious too to pay a visit to Latin America. Rumors here have it that he hopes this year to go to Brazil, Peru, Chile, and conceivably Argentina. In those countries he will try to prod along the Alliance for Progress and to bolster the American image which is not always seen too favorably by some of those south of the border.

All in all it ought to be an interesting year with the President gallivanting in various directions, trying personally to bring the great society to other countries.

CRIPPLED PLANE UNDER REPAIR
United Air Lines Convair 340, damaged in an emergency landing near Saugus, is being repaired at the site. It will be flown out; a takeoff strip will be built.

Crippled Liner to Fly From Plowed Field

A crippled United Air Lines twin-engined airliner which landed safely in a plowed field near Saugus, Dec. 29 with 47 persons aboard will be repaired and flown from the field, a UAL spokesman said Saturday.

A 2,000-foot strip will be built to enable the liner to takeoff.

The craft, a Convair 340, sustained relatively little damage and, following repairs and precautionary changes of both engines, will be flown to United's maintenance base at San Francisco in about three weeks.

Cause of the emergency, an unusual simultaneous failure of both engines, is still being investigated, the spokesman said.

Main damage to the plane occurred when it struck an irrigation pump in landing, crushing a section of the starboard wing's landing edge. Both propellers also needed replacing and the fuselage bottom was dented. The fiberglass radar nose cone was shattered, also.

Schweitzer Statue

HELSINKI (UPI)—A bronze bust of Dr. Albert Schweitzer by sculptor Kalervo Kallio will leave soon for his jungle hospital at Lambarene for presentation on Schweitzer's 90th birthday Jan. 14, it was announced Saturday.

Gun Inventor Dies in Connecticut

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—Melvin M. Johnson Jr., business executive, research consultant and inventor of a light machine gun used in World War II, is dead at 55.

Johnson, a native of Boston and a longtime resident of New Haven, died in New York Friday. He is credited with inventing assorted automatic rifles, including the Johnson light machine gun used in World War II.

U Thant to Work on Dues Impasse

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI — Secretary-General U Thant returned to his office Saturday after a nine-day vacation and said he will "devote the whole of next week" to negotiations for settling the Soviet-U.S. dispute over peacekeeping assessments and assembly voting rights.

"I am not pessimistic," he told reporters.

Russ to Fire Big Rockets

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced Saturday that beginning Monday it will test-fire its largest space rockets at a Pacific Ocean target in the vicinity of America's Baker Islands.

The official Tass news agency said the series, lasting until March 1, would be aimed at testing new types of rockets and gathering unspecified experimental data.

* * * * *

THE official announcement pinpointed the target area about 1,500 miles southwest of Hawaii, between the Baker Islands and Britain's Christmas Island, and warned ships and planes to keep out.

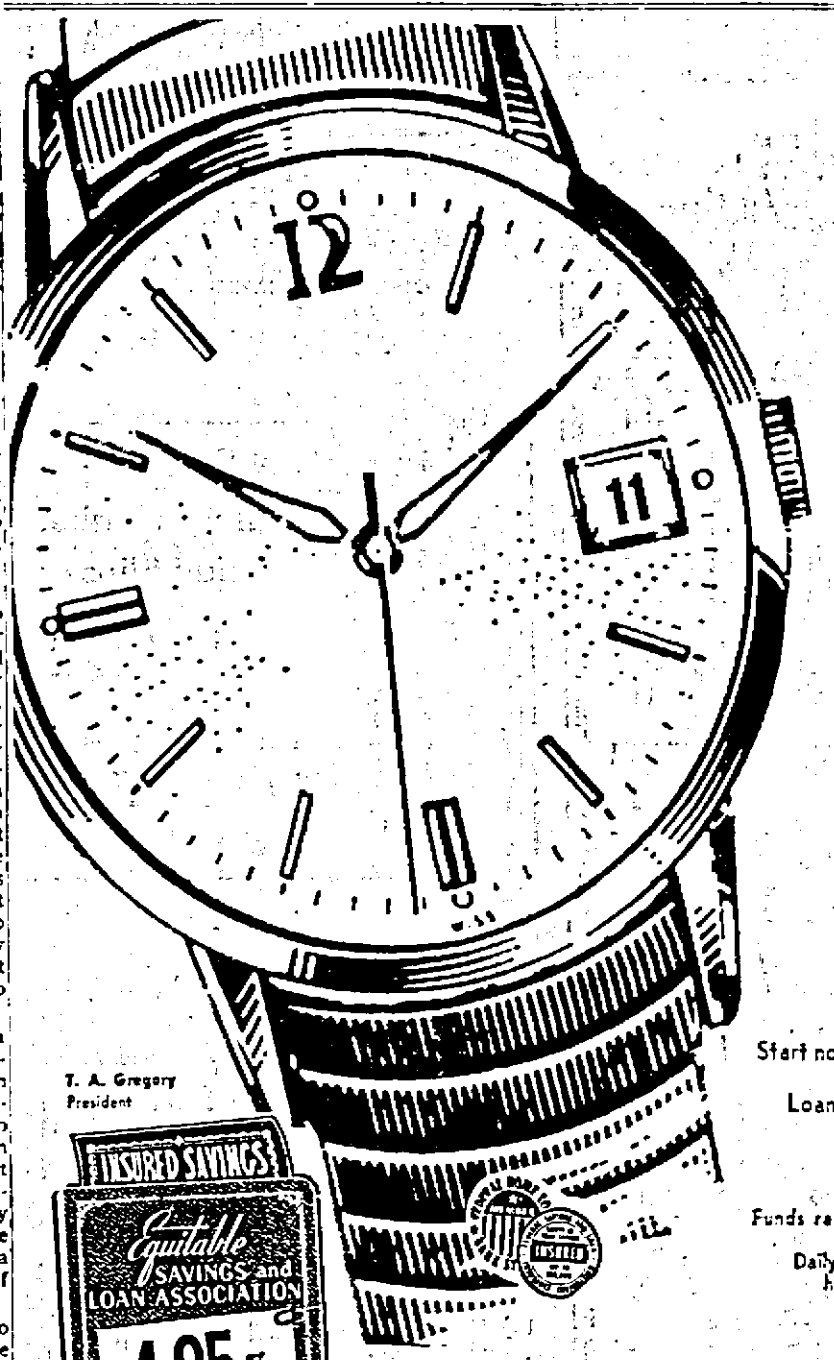

The target area was given as a circle with a radius of 65 miles.

Western experts voiced belief the rocket tests are not likely to herald any startling new space feat in the near future.

CRIPPLED PLANE UNDER REPAIR
United Air Lines Convair 340, damaged in an emergency landing near Saugus, is being repaired at the site. It will be flown out; a takeoff strip will be built.

Crippled Liner to Fly From Plowed Field

A crippled United Air Lines twin-engined airliner which landed safely in a plowed field near Saugus, Dec. 29 with 47 persons aboard will be repaired and flown from the field, a UAL spokesman said Saturday.

A 2,000-foot strip will be built to enable the liner to takeoff.

The craft, a Convair 340, sustained relatively little damage and, following repairs and precautionary changes of both engines, will be flown to United's maintenance base at San Francisco in about three weeks.

Cause of the emergency, an unusual simultaneous failure of both engines, is still being investigated, the spokesman said.

Main damage to the plane occurred when it struck an irrigation pump in landing, crushing a section of the starboard wing's landing edge. Both propellers also needed replacing and the fuselage bottom was dented. The fiberglass radar nose cone was shattered, also.

HELSINKI (UPI)—A bronze bust of Dr. Albert Schweitzer by sculptor Kalervo Kallio will leave soon for his jungle hospital at Lambarene for presentation on Schweitzer's 90th birthday Jan. 14, it was announced Saturday.

Gun Inventor Dies in Connecticut

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Melvin M. Johnson Jr., business executive, research consultant and inventor of a light machine gun used in World War II, is dead at 55.

Johnson, a native of Boston and a longtime resident of New Haven, died in New York Friday. He is credited with inventing assorted automatic rifles, including the Johnson light machine gun used in World War II.

U Thant to Work on Dues Impasse

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant returned to his office Saturday after a nine-day vacation and said he will "devote the whole of next week" to negotiations for settling the Soviet-U.S. dispute over peacekeeping assessments and assembly voting rights.

"I am not pessimistic," he told reporters.

Russ to Fire Big Rockets

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced Saturday that beginning Monday it will test-fire its largest space rockets at a Pacific Ocean target in the vicinity of America's Baker Islands.

The official Tass news agency said the series, lasting until March 1, would be aimed at testing new types of rockets and gathering unspecified experimental data.

* * * *

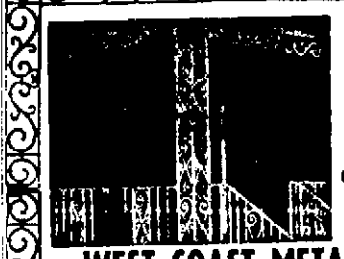

THE official announcement pinpoisted the target area about 1,500 miles southwest of Hawaii, between the Baker Islands and Britain's Christmas Island, and warned ships and planes to keep out.

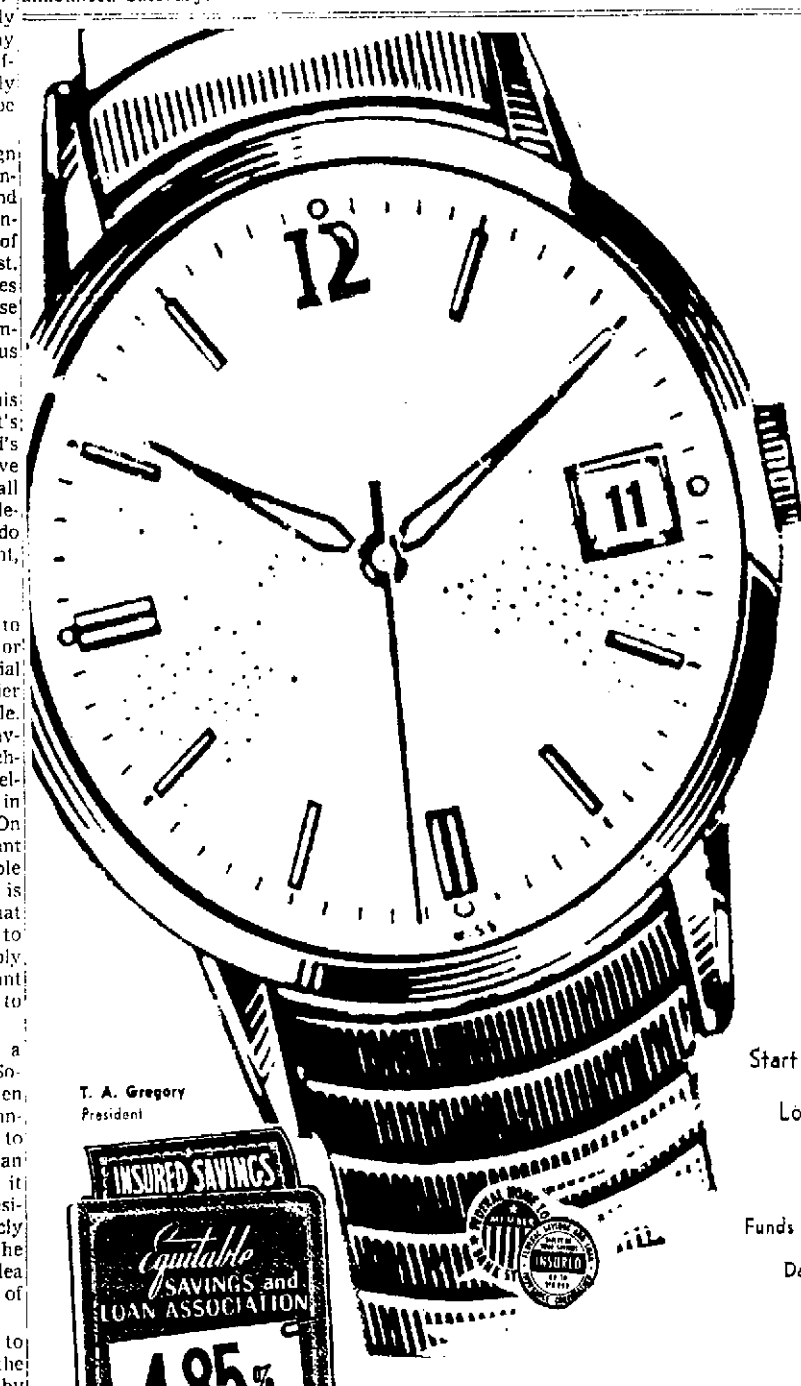

The target area was given as a circle with a radius of 65 miles.

Western experts voiced belief the rocket tests are not likely to herald any startling new space feat in the near future.

Japan's Vexed Premier Turns to Johnson

TOKYO (UPI) — Japan's newly inaugurated prime minister, Eisaku Sato, who arrives in Washington Monday on a hurry-up trip to talk with President Johnson, is a man facing deep political trouble at home.

That happens to be the major reason for this trip.

To Sato, the prestige of a pilgrimage to Washington—even at the inconvenience of a U.S. President busy preparing for inauguration and the start of a new Congress—is just what he needs to keep his grip on power at home.

His problems here are so grave that sources in the ruling Liberal-Democratic (conservative) Party say he may not last the summer in office. The problems fall into three categories:

—What to do about Communist China;

—What to do about the simultaneous depression and inflation that Japan's economy is undergoing;

—What to do about his arch-rival for power, State Minister Ichiro Kono.

* * * *

THE CHINA question has been toughest. But bad business conditions and the factional rivalry inside his party may be the ones that bring him down, if he falls.

Sato won office last Nov. 10 largely because big business, which makes and breaks conservative politicians in Japan, backed him.

The businessmen believed he could open the door on trade with China while following a diplomatic line which would avoid antagonizing America.

* * * *

THINGS have not worked out the way Sato or the businessmen thought, largely because of the Chinese themselves.

Almost the day he took over, China opened a steady cannonade of propaganda against him.

* * * *

THE CHINESE have been casting hints that they might go so far as to repeat their 1958 move of cutting off trade entirely.

Political sources here say this would be a death-blow for Sato.

But China is not Sato's only worry. Japan is in the midst of one of its worst business crises since World War II.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES

Time to Lean On Dependents

(Sixth in a series)
By RAY DE CRANE

PROBLEM: Your daughter, whose total support you furnished all year long marries on New Year's Eve. Can you claim her as a $600 dependency on your tax return?

Answer: Pop, you may be stuck. Since your daughter and her husband were married on the last day of the year they are treated by the tax collector as if they had been married all year long. This means she may file a joint return with her new husband or be listed as an exemption on his return. Should the newly married couple file in either of these two ways you may NOT list her as a dependent on your return.

The remedy: Make a deal with your son-in-law. It's perfectly legal. Assuming that your income is higher than your son-in-law's and therefore your tax rate higher, suggest that he file as if he were unmarried. In that way you can list your daughter as your dependent. Your savings on this $600 credit, will vary from $96 to $462, depending on whether you are in the 16% or 77% tax bracket. Offer to share your savings with him.

TWO OTHER QUESTIONS concerning dependency occur almost as frequently. This is the first:

"Mr son graduated from college last June. I paid all his expenses until graduation—tuition, clothes, housing, medical and dental care, spending money. After graduation he started to work and earned $1,500 through the end of the year. Can I claim him as a dependent? Can I at least get credit for the first six months?

Answer: You either get full credit or none at all. There is no such thing as getting a dependency credit for part of the year. Since your child qualified as a student by having attended college full time for at least five months of the year he may earn more than $600 and you may still claim him as a dependent PROVIDING you furnished the chief support.

NOW HOW DO YOU DETERMINE just who furnished the chief support? This is the time for work with a pencil and paper. Put a line through the middle of your sheet of paper running from top to bottom. On one side enter the expense of your contributions to his support. On the other side enter his $1,500 plus any other earnings he may have had for the year.

Your contributions will have to exceed his before he can be claimed. Start with the cost of his tuition, if any, then add room and board for the six months, clothing purchases, spending money, transportation, medical care and any other items of expense in his behalf.

If your total is greater than his, you can claim him on your return. If they are not you are out of luck.

THE OTHER FREQUENTLY asked dependency question goes like this:

"My mother lives in my home. She has no income other than her Social Security checks which amounted to $720 last year. She paid me no board. May I claim her as a dependent?"

Answer: Ordinarly anyone who has more than $600 gross income may not be listed as a dependent. (The exceptions are students and your children under 19.) It is true that Social Security is not considered a part of gross income but it is still spendable income.

Therefore the question revolves around who furnished chief support. Proceed as in the problem above and record the cost of support contributed by each. If your total is greater than your mother's $720 you may claim her as a dependent.

QUESTION: HOW IS THE TAX situation affected by a birth or death during the year?

Answer: A child born any time during the year—even on Dec. 31—entitles the supporting parents to a full year's $600 dependency credit. In the case of death the controlling factor is the status at the time of death. If the deceased person was a qualified dependent of the taxpayer until his death, the taxpayer may claim a full year's credit. Similarly, if a husband or wife dies during the year the surviving spouse may file a joint return and claim a full year's exemption credit for the deceased partner.

One final hint: A wife is never considered a dependent for income tax purposes even though she may have had no income. As a spouse she qualifies the taxpayer to the same $600 credit but in many other ways a spouse is given different tax treatment than a dependent.

For example, a dependent need not file a return until his gross income is $600 or more. A spouse will pay an income tax on her first dollar of income, whether it be on her own separate return or included with her husband's income on a joint return.

CARY GRANT AT 61

Won't Light Up Lady

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Cary Grant, who'll be 61 on Jan. 18, allowed me to visit him in his suite at the Plaza recently and ask him how he continues after all these years to have a romantic effect on girls from 8 to 80.

"How the hell would I know?" he said, his feet up on a coffee table.

"All right, I know what it is," I volunteered. "I've asked girls and women — and they say that besides your good looks and your physique, it's manners."

"I don't think that's true," Grant said. "What they might mean is 'consideration' which is not the same as manners."

* * * *

AND, GENTLY, he gave me a much-needed lesson in semantics.

"Manners," he explained, "would be to light a girl's cigarette. I won't do it. I won't help her poison herself. I won't light a lady's cigarette! So actually, I have bad 'manners.'"

"How long ago did you quit cigarettes?"

"About 12 years ago."

Grant, I could see, was thoroughly earnest.

* * * *

"MANNERS can be and too often are phony," he said. "People who have the best 'manners' have a false need to ingratiate themselves. People who bother to ingratiate themselves are basically insecure."

"Would you light a lady's cigar?" I asked. He grinned, arose, and walked around the suite. For the first time I noticed what I thought was a resemblance to Peter Lawford.

"Would you mix a drink for a lady?" I asked.

"I like the girl who gives me a drink — that's the woman I like!"

"Would you kiss a lady's hand in the United States"

"I don't kiss her hand in any state!" he laughed. "Oh, of course, there are certain women whose hand you kiss . . . by protocol."

Grant said he believes that truth is attractive to everybody, and that the actors who last longest are the non-hyprocrites who are themselves.

"Think of the ease with which Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin sing — and they pack them in, just being themselves."

* * * *

GRANT'S "Father Goose" picture is, he maintained, more the real Cary Grant than the clothes-horse Cary Grant in other films. What did he plan to do next?

"I don't think I plan. Things just happen."

"Oh, I hear that you plan carefully — that you always wind up owning the negative of your films?"

"I suppose that is planning," he admitted. "They can refuse. Then I find myself another studio."

"I think there's something else you've planned," I said. "I think you plan not to get married again."

Grant laughted. When eventually if I get married again, I won't be unproud of it, and I'll let you know!"

3 Dramas Cast Numerous Stars

New films opening Wednesday in area theaters include a trio of drama with casts chosen from the top of Hollywood's star list.

The motion pictures are "The Outrage," "Youngblood Hawke" and "Where Love Has Gone."

"The Outrage," cast includes Paul Newman, Lawrence Harvey, Claire Bloom, Edward G. Robinson, William Shatner, Howard Da Silva, Albert Salmi, Thomas Chalmers and Paul Fix.

The story, told from the viewpoint of four characters, has Paul Newman as a Mexican bandit who captures Claire Bloom and her husband, Laurence Harvey, deals with the varied versions of an assault and murder.

"YOUNGBLOOD HAWKE" is the film story of the novel by Herman Wouk, drama of an American writer's rise and fall.

The title role is played by James Franciscus; Suzanne Pleshette, the editor who helps him succeed; and Genevieve Page, as her rival.

"WHERE LOVE Has Gone," another film based on a novel —this one by Harold Robbins —is based on the story of a teenage girl who murders her mother's lover.

Joey Heatherton plays the teenager and the cast has Michael Connors, Susan Hayward and Betty Davis.

Looks Like 'Liz

MONICA LIND

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Looking like Elizabeth Taylor is "better than looking like Dracula's daughter," says 22-year-old Monica Lind, "but, frankly, I don't like it.

"People just seem to stare at me."

Monica is all Swede—even born in Stockholm —but looks as untypically Swedish as does the beautiful Miss Taylor.

There are other girls who resemble Miss Taylor, but Monica's likeness is more startling than most. Each has the same measurements — 36½-23-36. They are the same height and approximately the same weight.

But the greatest resemblance is in the smiles of the two.

This is what causes people to stare. Some even ask for autographs —and get mad when she signs her own name instead of Liz'.

One person who told Monica she resembles Miss Taylor was Eddie Fisher — who was once married to Liz.

Monica, once a model, is now a featured performer with the Folies Bergere at the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas.

Brings 'Oohs,' 'Ahs'

Her first appearance onstage nightly is always greeted by "oohs" and "ahs" from the audience because of the Taylor resemblance.

Only in the eyes is there a vast difference. Monica's are green, Liz' are deep purple. But that can't be noticed onstage.

Offstage, Monica wears sunglasses and a black diamond mink coat. This always startles people because Liz owns several coats like this.

CARY GRANT AT 61

Won't Light Up Lady

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Cary Grant, who'll be 61 on Jan. 18, allowed me to visit him in his suite at the Plaza recently and ask him how he continues after all these years to have a romantic effect on girls from 8 to 80.

"How the hell would I know?" he said, his feet up on a coffee table.

"All right, I know what it is," I volunteered. "I've asked girls and women — and they say that besides your good looks and your physique, it's manners."

"I don't think that's true," Grant said. "What they might mean is 'consideration' which is not the same as manners."

* * * *

AND, GENTLY, he gave me a much-needed lesson in semantics.

"Manners," he explained, "would be to light a girl's cigarette. I won't do it. I won't help her poison herself. I won't light a lady's cigarette! So actually, I have bad 'manners.'"

"How long ago did you quit cigarettes?"

"About 12 years ago."

Grant, I could see, was thoroughly earnest.

* * * *

"MANNERS can be and too often are phony," he said. "People who have the best 'manners' have a false need to ingratiate themselves. People who bother to ingratiate themselves are basically insecure."

"Would you light a lady's cigar?" I asked. He grinned, arose, and walked around the suite. For the first time I noticed what I thought was a resemblance to Peter Lawford.

"Would you mix a drink for a lady?" I asked.

"I like the girl who gives me a drink — that's the woman I like!"

"Would you kiss a lady's hand in the United States"

"I don't kiss her hand in any state!" he laughed. "Oh, of course, there are certain women whose hand you kiss . . . by protocol."

Grant said he believes that truth is attractive to everybody, and that the actors who last longest are the nonhypocrites who are themselves.

"Think of the ease with which Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin sing — and they pack them in, just being themselves."

* * * *

GRANT'S "Father Goose" picture is, he maintained, more the real Cary Grant than the clothes-horse Cary Grant in other films. What did he plan to do next?

"I don't think I plan. Things just happen."

"Oh, I hear that you plan carefully — that you always wind up owning the negative of your films?"

"I suppose that is planning," he admitted. "They can refuse. Then I find myself another studio."

"I think there's something else you've planned," I said. "I think you plan not to get married again."

Grant laughted. When eventually if I get married again, I won't be unproud of it, and I'll let you know!"

* * * *

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: An Eskimo father was in an igloo reading to his son: "Little Jack Horner sat in a corner . . ." and the kid asked, "Hey, Dad — what's a corner?"

3 Dramas Cast Numerous Stars

New films opening Wednesday in area theaters include a trio of drama with casts chosen from the top of Hollywood's star list.

The motion pictures are "The Outrage," "Youngblood Hawke" and "Where Love Has Gone."

"The Outrage," cast includes Paul Newman, Lawrence Harvey, Claire Bloom, Edward G. Robinson, William Shainer, Howard Da Silva, Albert Salmi, Thomas Chalmers and Paul Fix.

The story, told from the viewpoint of four characters, has Paul Newman as a Mexican bandit who captures Claire Bloom and her husband, Laurence Harvey, deals with the varied versions of an assault and murder.

* * * *

"YOUNGBLOOD HAWKE" is the film story of the novel by Herman Wouk, drama of an American writer's rise and fall.

The title role is played by James Franciscus; Suzanne Pleshette, the editor who helps him succeed; and Genevieve Page, as her rival.

* * * *

"WHERE LOVE Has Gone," another film based on a novel —this one by Harold Robbins —is based on the story of a teenage girl who murders her mother's lover.

Joey Heatherton plays the teenager and the cast has Michael Connors, Susan Hayward and Betty Davis.

Looks Like 'Liz

MONICA LIND

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Looking like Elizabeth Taylor is "better than looking like Dracula's daughter," says 22-year-old Monica Lind, "but, frankly, I don't like it.

"People just seem to stare at me."

Monica is all Swede—even born in Stockholm —but looks as untypically Swedish as does the beautiful Miss Taylor.

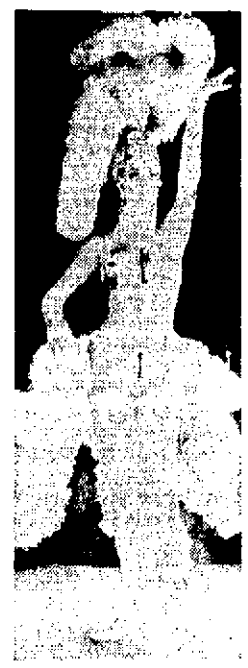

There are other girls who resemble Miss Taylor, but Monica's likeness is more startling than most. Each has the same measurements — 36½-23-36. They are the same height and approximately the same weight.

But the greatest resemblance is in the smiles of the two.

This is what causes people to stare. Some even ask for autographs —and get mad when she signs her own name instead of Liz'.

One person who told Monica she resembles Miss Taylor was Eddie Fisher — who was once married to Liz.

Monica, once a model, is now a featured performer with the Folies Bergere at the Tropicana Hotel in Las Vegas.

Brings 'Oohs,' 'Ahs'

Her first appearance onstage nightly is always greeted by "oohs" and "ahs" from the audience because of the Taylor resemblance.

Only in the eyes is there a vast difference. Monica's are green, Liz' are deep purple. But that can't be noticed onstage.

Offstage, Monica wears sunglasses and a black diamond mink coat. This always startles people because Liz owns several coats like this.

Daughter of a well-to-do La Jolla, Calif., family, Monica bought her coat herself before coming to Las Vegas.

"In Las Vegas," she comments, "the coat brings more stares than the Taylor resemblance."

Switch to O'Neill Brings a 'Winner'

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

Community Playhouse has re-charted its course in comedy fare and come up with Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!"

The O'Neill presentation Friday also launched another admirable achievement with the playhouse use of a guest director, Nat Adler, a theater man both gifted and long in experience.

The glad tidings are that having found that in at least one play of O'Neill — "Ah, Wilderness" — there was nothing to fear (even Freud himself) the Community folk have struck both box-office oil, and have not insulted the adult ego in accomplishing this.

• • • •

SO THAT Frank Keith and his cast do not get the idea that the whole O'Neill work went perfectly, let's say right now that it takes familiarity with O'Neill to breed content —even if one is doing one of his plays closer to Booth Tarkington than to Aeschylus.

And from the tendency of nearly all the cast — except Linda Crain (Belle) and rapidly improving Gayle Shadduck (Muriel McComber) — to read all the lines as if they were from Monday's laundry list, it was evident that O'Neill was indeed a strange interlude into their lives.

Also, director Nat Adler, who should know better, made his entrances to scenes lag too much and paced that famous Fourth of July dinner with the tedious nonchalance of a man fixing a flat tire while surrounded by exploding firecrackers.

So much for the minor grumbles.

• • • •

WHILE ONE could not expect the fine comic texture of a George M. Cohan who originated the lead role of Nat Miller, newspaper publisher, the local entry, Frank Keith, made his best impression yet on this observer. He still has the curious habit of forehead-shrinking while registering perplexity or inflecting a line.

But his re-telling of that rescue swimming story and his hesitancy in setting a growing son on the right path indicate that if pushed, genial Keith could plunge into a heads-up comedy style. As Ethel Arntzen is solid — we mean her acting — throughout, but was the main offender in not giving sufficient theatrical (not elocution) color to her lines. Her dignified presence on stage in period dress secured the nostalgic feeling of life in a small Connecticut town in 1906.

Tony Parker (Richard) made a believable character of the American youth with the growing pains who corrupted his soul through the senses by becoming addicted to Swinburne, Wilde, Ibsen and Omar Khayyam — poets whom he flamingly threw at his uncooperative girl friend, Miss Shadduck a natural charmer as Muriel in that too-much moonlight-bathed beach scene.

• • • •

O'NEILL wrote the best drunk scene ever for Essie's brother, Sid, during that famous bluefish dinner. Jess May eats it up — the scene— not the dinner. He really knows how to get drunk backwards.

Linda Crain as the street-walker Belle who could not be reformed, and Virginia Dial's engaging maid, Nora, Florence Wagner (Lily) came through fine in some of the stock scenes. But watch young Dennis King (Arthur). He not only has a famous theatrical name, but good presence, voice and looks.

Adler showed he deserved his guest shot — and with more fireworks style during the expected overlong O'Neill scenes he could make everybody say "ah" to this production of a play as idyllic and innocent as the kiss Richard placed on his father's cheek in that reunion scene at the end.

Guests Locked Out at Gaynor Party

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—During the holidays, Mitzi Gaynor and her husband, Jack Bean, worked for days to get ready for one of the plush parties of the season.

Anybody who is anybody was invited. And like most parties, all showed up at once.

Mitzi herself was at the door when the rush came. She pulled on the door knob and it came off, locking the door.

While guests stood outside a good 15 minutes, causing a minor traffic jam, Mitzi, Bean and a couple of servants worked feverishly to get the knob back working.

But everybody finally got in—and had a ball.

James Michener 'Hawaii' Feb. Filming Schedule

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Filming begins Feb. 22 on James Michener's epic novel "Hawaii" but not in tropic waters.

Only Hollywood would start a story about Hawaii on a location 150 miles north of the Arctic Circle.

First shooting will be at Bodo, a small Norwegian coastal village. The dramatic, desolate scenery with its wild craggy mountains and fjords, its icy glaciers and turbulent currents will simulate Michener's vivid description of the stormy voyage of the missionaries from New England around Cape Horn and the Straits of Magellan.

Why not Cape Horn, itself?

"I don't think we would ever make it to Hawaii," says producer Walter Mirisch.

Guests Locked Out at Gaynor Party

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—During the holidays, Mitzi Gaynor and her husband, Jack Bean, worked for days to get ready for one of the plush parties of the season.

Anybody who is anybody was invited. And like most parties, all showed up at once.

Mitzi herself was at the door when the rush came. She pulled on the door knob and it came off, locking the door.

While guests stood outside a good 15 minutes, causing a minor traffic jam, Mitzi, Bean and a couple of servants worked feverishly to get the knob back working.

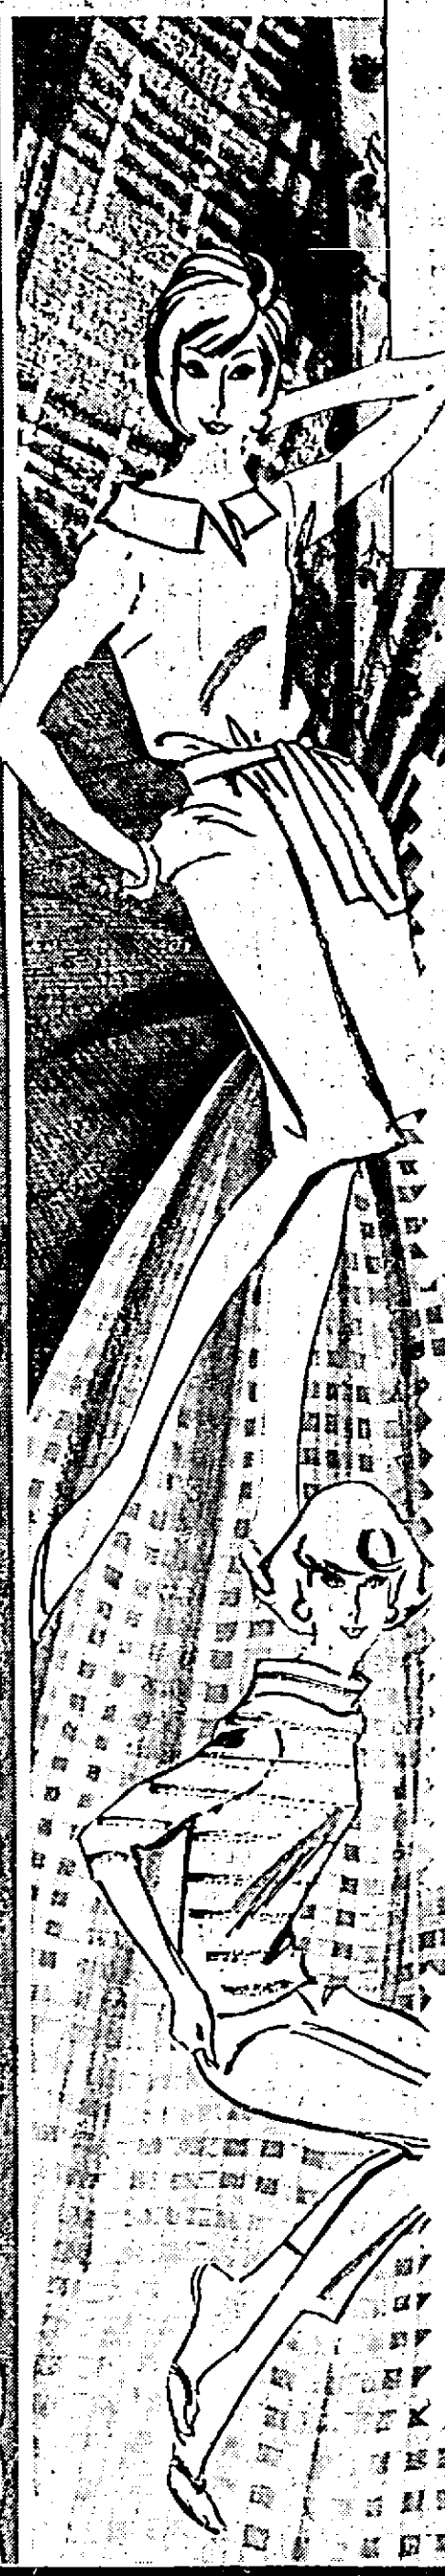

But everybody finally got in—and had a ball.

EVEN in troubled situations, the Yankee sense of humor inevitably shows up, as is indicated by some good stories brought back by the Long Beach-based USS Bennington people after their Christmas rescue mission to the flood-ravaged Humboldt County area.

On Christmas morn, for instance, a seal was sighted, swimming beside the great ship as it approached the rescue area. This was, of course, immediately dubbed "a Christmas seal."

Helicopters flew from the Bennington to succor flood victims, and from this came a couple of yarns — funny, and worth relating, but likely untrue.

One was about a helicopter pilot who looked down and saw a man standing by a burning house. He landed in the yard and called out asking if the farmer needed help.

"Don't want any," replied the farmer. "I haven't got flood insurance."

Finally, there was the helicopter pilot who landed on an isolated farm and was met by the farmer's wife. Asked what supplies they needed, she requested that he bring her some anti-pregnancy pills.

DONT let these stories give a frivolous color to your idea of the Bennington's service to the rescue area. It did a great job, serving as base for innumerable rescue missions that helped ease the effects of a major disaster.

Just getting started on the voyage proved a major triumph for the Navy ship, a big carrier. The emergency call came just before Christmas when the ship's company was widely scattered. Remarkably the Bennington people were located and notified and it steamed away on schedule.

Rescue efforts were badly hampered by fog and storms. Capt. Marvin Barnett of the Bennington gives warm credit to the relief agencies such as Red Cross, Salvation Army, etc. and has nothing but praise for the work of the helicopter crews and others on the ship.

Capt. Barnett opines that one of the serious long-range effects of the disaster may be its negative impact on morale of the population of the northern California region. Many of the people up there lost everything in the 1955 flood, rebuilt and now have been again wiped out.

It's a sad story, and the skipper's point is well made. On the hopeful side, I recall the people I've known in disaster areas who took it on the chin again and again, and came back with heads up. With some people, hardship brings out the best.

ENOLA Chamberlain picked up an old Beach Combing (1959 vintage) the other day and read an item about a certain Long Beach phone number which, if called, would bring the recital of a prayer.

She dialed the number and got a woman on the line who was a little puzzled at what was expected of her. No prayer, she said, is given out from that number.

A lot of things can happen in five years. If you're an old column keeper, please ignore any 1959 phone numbers listed therein.

DRIFTWOOD — Memorial Hospital would like to have a sign on the new San Diego Frwy. indicating where to turn off to get to it. Pacific Christian College on E. Seventh St. is also interested. So far, there has been no encouragement for either from highway authorities . . . Floy McComb agrees that a Christmas tree stuck in a rubbish can is a dismal sight. In her family, they have a New Year's Day ritual, cutting the tree into hearth-size pieces and burning it in the fireplace. Judd Van Pelt of Wilmington finds it so disturbing to take down the family tree that he just leaves it there until it's about ready to fall apart.

MAJOR AREA SEA SEARCHES RECALLED

Coast Guard Says Marine Deaths Jumped to 'Alarming 46' Last Year

Marine deaths in the 11th Coast Guard District jumped from nine in 1963 to an "alarming 46" in 1964, according to Rear Adm. Ned W. Sprow, commander of the district headquarters in Long Beach.

Adm. Sprow, reviewing the year's activities, noted a slight decrease in the total number of search and rescue cases, however.

"Out of the 2,660 cases for the year," he said, "our busiest month was August with 407 cases." Involved in the year's cases, he said, were cargo and property valued at nearly $21 million.

• • • •

SPROW, whose district includes a land area of more than 200,000 square miles and an ocean area of nearly 2½ million square miles, recalled some of the major sea searches in Southern California waters. They were:

— The search for the 41-year-old grandmother who was killed during a balloon race over the Catalina Channel in January.

— The unsuccessful search for a Douglas DC4 which disappeared on a flight from Honolulu to Los Angeles in March.

— The May search for a man and his three sons who disappeared in their 17-foot outboard boat on a trip from Santa Barbara. Only a seat cushion was found.

— Participation in the rescue of the Sandanger in May, in which 10 of 55 persons died in the fire at sea.

• • • •

NATIONWIDE the Coast Guard saved nearly 3,000 lives and rescued ships and cargo valued at more than $2.1 billion, according to Adm. E. J. Roland.

Adm. Roland cited the major Coast Guard activities through 1964 as:

— Maintaining a Cuban patrol in which more than 1,000 refugees who fled the Castro regime were picked up by Coast Guard ships and aircraft, bringing the five-year total to over 6,000 saved.

— Broadening its participation in the national oceanographic effort by equipping half of its major cutters with modern instruments used to unlock the secrets of the ocean.

— Widespread modernization of equipment including the addition of modern 210-foot cutters.

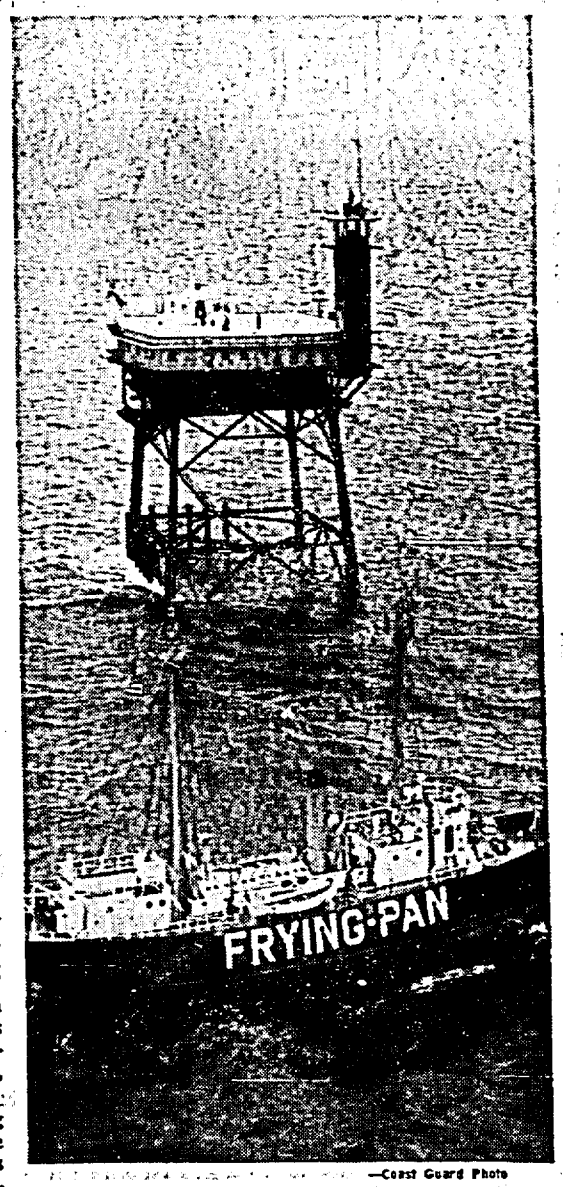

• • • •

OTHER activities:

—Maintenance of more than 42,000 navigation aids including an atomic-powered buoy and lighthouse, and a series of long - range - navigation stations. It also operates an atom-powered lighthouse in Chesapeake Bay, Md.

— Recreational boating safety programs, and the training of reserve units for port security and other assignments.

— Inspection of merchant ships (5,644) and miscellaneous inspections (27,886) and review of 36,605 merchant vessel plans, all to ensure a safe merchant fleet.

East 2nd Street Link Opens Soon

Road Will Be Ready This Week

Any day now, the "formal" opening of the section of road between East 2nd Street, Long Beach, and Westminster Avenue, Orange County, will be "for real."

Orange County road engineers said they had expected to open the road last week, but the rains came and held up sign painting.

The expected opening now is Tuesday or Wednesday.

There will be no more formalities. The "dedication," with fanfare, took place Dec. 13 when the ribbon "opening the road" was snipped. However, there was a slip—there was a little section of the road that wasn't completed at the time.

• • • •

THE ROAD now is finished —except for painting stripes and signs. Signs were to be painted last week—but the rains came and held up the work.

The $1,500,000 federal aid secondary road—built with federal, state, Los Angeles and Orange County funds—links East 2nd Street at Pacific Coast Highway with Orange County and climaxes 10 years of effort for a southerly entrance into inland Orange County. The length of the four-lane road is 1.88 miles.

No further ceremonies marking opening of the road are scheduled, said the State Division of Highways. "As soon as the road is ready barriers will be removed," a spokesman said.

Drop Arson Case Against L.B. Man

A superior court judge in Indio Friday dismissed arson charges against a Long Beach building contractor in connection with a fire that damaged his motel in Palm Springs.

Edward Tizzard, 47, of 5286 E. Parque, Apt. 4, was ordered released for insufficient evidence and lack of motive.

A fire caused $20,000 damage to Tizzard's 15-unit resort motel Sept. 18. The lodge is valued at $100,000.

Tizzard was represented by attorneys Frank Macepeace of Long Beach and John Roberts of Riverside.

Two Library Scholarships Announced

Two Public Library employes have been awarded Inez Dean Scholarships to complete training. Mildred Snider, chairman of the fund, announced Saturday.

They are Jolan Szontagh and Richard A. Lyders. Both are library trainees completing work necessary for master degrees in library science at the University of Southern California.

'Slaughter Alley' Deaths Hit Record

The number of deaths from auto accidents in notorious "Slaughter Alley," 18.4-mile stretch of road between San Clemente and Oceanside on Highway 101, rose to a record high of 39 last year.

The California Highway Patrol office at Oceanside said the previous high for number of deaths in this area was 29 in 1962.

The total number of accidents involving one or more vehicles last year was 17, as compared with 16 for the previous year, but the deaths in 1964 increased more than 60%.

LONG HIKE

Travels 25,000 'Thumb-Miles'

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

For six incredible months, 21-year-old Bill Parmenter of Belmont Shore followed his thumb from one adventure to another.

Carrying only a battered suitcase, a box camera and $500 in cash, the UCLA senior, a resident of 134 Pomona Ave., hitch-hiked to the southernmost tip of South America and back.

In all, Parmenter, who began the trek in early June and finished in late December, traveled more than 25,000 miles.

AT ONE POINT he nearly froze to death during a blizzard at the 16,500 foot level of Mt. Misti in the Andes and, at another, was turned back from an attempt to follow the Amazon River by impenetrable jungle.

He skied with Peace Corps workers at Santiago, skindived at Cabo Frio where he sold his fish to the natives and explored the Inca ruins at Cuzco, Peru.

"I slept where I could find free lodging, mostly in police stations," says Parementer, "and ate what the people did."

ABOUT ONCE A WEEK, he took a paid accommodation in a hotel or cantina.

The steady diet of rice, beans and yucca plant caused his some difficulty but he found the food nourishing, tasty and filling.

He estimates he flagged down somewhere near 350 rides "mostly trucks because there is little auto travel on the roads."

On the return leg he hitched rides with civilian and commercial planes on three occasions and reached Los Angeles with $55 still in his denim pockets.

At the beginning he printed the legend "Peace Corps" on his suitcase "because I thought it would get me rides easier."

He rubbed the words out when he found "about the only persons I ran into who could read English were Peace Corps members and they objected to it."

PARMENTER, whose only other hitchhike adventure was a trip, at 16, to San Francisco found both the people and the authorities friendly and helpful.

"Policemen got me most of my truck rides," he explained.

"I think the reason the people were so hospitable was because I was a poor man even by their standards."

Carrying only two pairs of trousers, a jacket and raincoat, "I got pretty dirty and rundown looking," he said.

Parmenter, who speaks fluent, mile-a-minute Spanish, found most Latin Americans wanted to talk about President Kennedy's assassination.

"Almost no one believed that Oswald killed the President while working alone," he said.

THROUGHOUT THE TRIP, young Parmenter kept a diary which grew to more than 400 pages of closely written observations and experiences by journey's end.

"If the trip taught me anything," he concluded, "it was a better understanding of the people and their land.

"While their way of life may not be as productive as ours, they seem more interested in peace and in interpersonal relationships."

Steady Rains Bring Aid to Underground Supply

The frequent rains for this season have had a beneficial effect on underground water supplies.

Though statistics for downtown Los Angeles, Long Beach and many other municipalities in the Los Angeles basin show the season total still lagging behind last year's, the County Flood Control District explains there's been more replenishment of the important underground supply for these reasons:

1. At all 14 reservoirs maintained by the district, the rainfall total is higher, not lower, than last year's at the same date. This is explained by rainfall patterns, which are heavier in foothill areas where most of the reservoirs are located. Fuller reservoirs allow the diverting of more water to the basin's many "spreading grounds," from where it seeps through porous soil to add to the underground supply.

2. The nature of this season's rainfall has been less violent and more spread out than last season's, when two November storms accounted for most of the total. As any homeowner knows, the slower, steadier rains have a more lasting, soaking effect, even in the Long Beach and South Bay areas, where the soil has a little too much clay composition to be very porous.

Unless someone "turns off the tap" during the rest of the season, the outlook is very good for finding an improved underground table level come checking time in May and June, officials said.

Crime-Commission Plethora in County

By DON BRACKENBURY
L.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Los Angeles County is up to its neck in crime commissions, but if the supervisors want to appoint another, they have the authority.

This seems to be a layman's interpretation of a report which will be submitted to the supervisors Tuesday.

The report, prepared by Chief Administrative Officer L. S. Hollinger and County Counsel Harold W. Kennedy, lists 15 county commissions, committees or agencies which exist to combat various aspects of delinquency or crime.

• • • •

SEVERAL state committees also are studying the problem, the report said.

It points out that Assemblyman George Deukmejian of Long Beach introduced a bill in 1963 to create a California Council on Law Enforcement. Although it was not approved, Deukmejian has indicated he intends to present a similar bill this year.

Last month, on motion of Supervisor Frank G. Bonelli, the supervisors asked Hollinger and Kennedy to report on steps necessary to establish a County Juvenile Delinquency and Crime Commission.

Bonelli proposed that an 11-man commission be formed by having each supervisor name two members. The 11th man would be the immediate past foreman of the County Grand Jury.

• • • •

HOLLINGER and Kennedy said the board may create, either by ordinance or resolution, a crime commission. If members are to be paid or get expenses, the action would have to be by ordinance, they explained.

Such a commission could be advisory to the supervisors, or could coordinate other agencies in combating juvenile or adult delinquency, the report said.

The commission could not, however, be given any powers which are the responsibilities of other county officers. It could not, for example, have responsibility for detection of crime, apprehension of criminals, enforcement of the law, prosecution of criminals, investigation and supervision of probationers or the detention, care and treatment of juveniles.

• • • •

ALL THESE functions, Hollinger and Kennedy explained, are vested by statute in the sheriff, district attorney and probation officer.

Supervisors could not give the proposed crime commission power to subpoena witnesses.

Hollinger and Kennedy said their study into the problem brought forth "several pro and con statements" about the new commission and "what another citizens committee could do that cannot or is not already being done by existing departments or citizen commissions."

• • • •

THE REPORT noted that the new district attorney, Evelle J. Younger, last Monday announced he was beginning a six-month investigation of crime in the county.

New Group of Leaders at Naples

Jim Abbott will head a slate of new officers of Naples Improvement Association to be installed at an awards banquet in the Edgewater Inn Jan. 16.

Awards will be presented to winning floats and lighting displays in the Naples Christmas Pageant.

The other new officers include Don Cameron, first vice president; Victor Barry, second vice president; Louise Rickard, recording secretary; Marion Henderson, corresponding secretary, and Jim Heartwell, treasurer.

New members of the board of directors are Dick Oswald, Dan Wilson and Lee Woodman.

Ex-Congressman Birch Group Speaker

Former Congressman Donald L. Jackson, D-California, will speak on "A Challenge to Action" in a speech sponsored by the John Birch Society Friday at 8 p.m. in the J. H. McGaugh Intermediate School, Seal Beach.

The meeting is sponsored by the Rossmoor, Los Alamitos, Leisure World and Seal Beach Birch chapters. Admission will be $1.

City's Convention Bureau to Install New Officers

New officers of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau will be installed Wednesday at a dinner to be held in Mr. C's Restaurant.

Henry Powell, owner of the Beach Terrace Manor, will serve as president for 1965 of the bureau, which is charged with the securing of conventions for the City of Long Beach. This is Powell's second term as president.

Other officers to be installed are Al Schmidt, General Telephone Co., first vice president; Bill Began, attorney, 2nd vice president; Don Ohl, Independent, Press-Telegram, treasurer, and Vicki Hughes, florist, secretary.

Bob Lichtenhan, manager of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau, will preside.

Garden Club to Hear Talk on Orchids

Donald M. Okano, of Okano Nurseries, will speak on the care and culture of orchids and cymbidiums at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Long Beach Garden Club, 208 Linden Ave.

EVEN in troubled situations, the Yankee sense of humor inevitably shows up, as is indicated by some good stories brought back by the Long Beach-based USS Bennington people after their Christmas rescue mission to the flood-ravaged Humboldt County area.

On Christmas morn, for instance, a seal was sighted, swimming beside the great ship as it approached the rescue area. This was, of course, immediately dubbed "a Christmas seal."

Helicopters flew from the Bennington to succor flood victims, and from this came a couple of yarns — funny, and worth relating, but likely untrue.

One was about a helicopter pilot who looked down and saw a man standing by a burning house. He landed in the yard and called out asking if the farmer needed help.

"Don't want any," replied the farmer. "I haven't got flood insurance."

Finally, there was the helicopter pilot who landed on an isolated farm and was met by the farmer's wife. Asked what supplies they needed, she requested that he bring her some anti-pregnancy pills.

DON'T let these stories give a frivolous color to your idea of the Bennington's service to the rescue area. It did a great job, serving as base for innumerable rescue missions that helped ease the effects of a major disaster.

Just getting started on the voyage proved a major triumph for the Navy ship, a big carrier. The emergency call came just before Christmas when the ship's company was widely scattered. Remarkably the Bennington people were located and notified and it steamed away on schedule.

Rescue efforts were badly hampered by fog and storms. Capt. Marvin Barnett of the Bennington gives warm credit to the relief agencies such as Red Cross, Salvation Army, etc. and has nothing but praise for the work of the helicopter crews and others on the ship.

Capt. Barnett opines that one of the serious long-range effects of the disaster may be its negative impact on morale of the population of the northern California region. Many of the people up there lost everything in the 1955 flood, rebuilt and now have been again wiped out.

It's a sad story, and the skipper's point is well made. On the hopeful side, I recall the people I've known in disaster areas who took it on the chin again and again, and came back with heads up. With some people, hardship brings out the best.

ENOLA Chamberlain picked up an old Beach Combing (1959 vintage) the other day and read an item about a certain Long Beach phone number which, if called, would bring the recital of a prayer.

She dialed the number and got a woman on the line who was a little puzzled at what was expected of her. No prayer, she said, is given out from that number.

A lot of things can happen in five years. If you're an old column keeper, please ignore any 1959 phone numbers listed therein.

DRIFTWOOD — Memorial Hospital would like to have a sign on the new San Diego Frwy. indicating where to turn off to get to it. Pacific Christian College on E. Seventh St. is also interested. So far, there has been no encouragement for either from highway authorities . . . Floy McComb agrees that a Christmas tree stuck in a rubbish can is a dismal sight. In her family, they have a New Year's Day ritual, cutting the tree into hearth-size pieces and burning it in the fireplace. Judd Van Pelt of Wilmington finds it so disturbing to take down the family tree that he just leaves it there until it's about ready to fall apart.

MAJOR AREA SEA SEARCHES RECALLED

Coast Guard Says Marine Deaths Jumped to 'Alarming 46' Last Year

Marine deaths in the 11th Coast Guard District jumped from nine in 1963 to an "alarming 46" in 1964, according to Rear Adm. Ned W. Sprow, commander of the district headquarters in Long Beach.

Adm. Sprow, reviewing the year's activities, noted a slight decrease in the total number of search and rescue cases, however.

"Out of the 2,660 cases for the year," he said, "our busiest month was August with 407 cases." Involved in the year's cases, he said, were cargo and property valued at nearly $21 million.

* * * *

SPROW, whose district includes a land area of more than 200,000 square miles and an ocean area of nearly 2½ million square miles, recalled some of the major sea searches in Southern California waters. They were:

— The search for the 41-year-old grandmother who was killed during a balloon race over the Catalina Channel in January.

— The unsuccessful search for a Douglas DC4 which disappeared on a flight from Honolulu to Los Angeles in March.

— The May search for a man and his three sons who disappeared in their 17-foot outboard boat on a trip from Santa Barbara. Only a seat cushion was found.

— Participation in the rescue of the Sandanger in May, in which 10 of 55 persons died in the fire at sea.

* * * *

NATIONWIDE the Coast Guard saved nearly 3,000 lives and rescued ships and cargo valued at more than $2.1 billion, according to Adm. E. J. Roland.

Adm. Roland cited the major Coast Guard activities through 1964 as:

— Maintaining a Cuban patrol in which more than 1,000 refugees who fled the Castro regime were picked up by Coast Guard ships and aircraft, bringing the five-year total to over 6,000 saved.

— Broadening its participation in the national oceanographic effort by equipping half of its major cutters with modern instruments used to unlock the secrets of the ocean.

— Widespread modernization of equipment including the addition of modern 210-foot cutters.

* * * *

OTHER activities:

—Maintenance of more than 42,000 navigation aids including an atomic-powered buoy and lighthouse, and a series of long - range - navigation stations. It also operates an atom-powered lighthouse in Chesapeake Bay, Md.

— Recreational boating safety programs, and the training of reserve units for port security and other assignments.

— Inspection of merchant ships (5,644) and miscellaneous inspections (27,886) and review of 36,605 merchant vessel plans, all to ensure a safe merchant fleet.

East 2nd Street Link Opens Soon

Road Will Be Ready This Week

Any day now, the "formal" opening of the section of road between East 2nd Street, Long Beach, and Westminster Avenue, Orange County, will be "for real."

Orange County road engineers said they had expected to open the road last week, but the rains came and held up sign painting.

The expected opening now is Tuesday or Wednesday.

There will be no more formalities. The "dedication," with fanfare, took place Dec. 13 when the ribbon "opening the road" was snipped. However, there was a slip—there was a little section of the road that wasn't completed at the time.

* * * *

THE ROAD now is finished—except for painting stripes and signs. Signs were to be painted last week—but the rains came and held up the work.

The $1,500,000 federal aid secondary road—built with federal, state, Los Angeles and Orange County funds—links East 2nd Street at Pacific Coast Highway with Orange County and climaxes 10 years of effort for a southerly entrance into inland Orange County. The length of the four-lane road is 1.88 miles.

No further ceremonies marking opening of the road are scheduled, said the State Division of Highways. "As soon as the road is ready barriers will be removed," a spokesman said.

'Slaughter Alley' Deaths Hit Record

The number of deaths from auto accidents in notorious "Slaughter Alley," 18.4-mile stretch of road between San Clemente and Oceanside on Highway 101, rose to a record high of 39 last year.

The California Highway Patrol office at Oceanside said the previous high for number of deaths in this area was 29 in 1962.

The total number of accidents involving one or more vehicles last year was 17, as compared with 16 for the previous year, but the deaths in 1964 increased more than 60%.

LONG HIKE

Travels 25,000 'Thumb-Miles'

By LOU JOBST
Marine Editor

For six incredible months, 21-year-old Bill Parmenter of Belmont Shore followed his thumb from one adventure to another.

Carrying only a battered suitcase, a box camera and $500 in cash, the UCLA senior, a resident of 134 Pomona Ave., hitch-hiked to the southernmost tip of South America and back.

In all, Parmenter, who began the trek in early June and finished in late December, traveled more than 25,000 miles.

AT ONE POINT he nearly froze to death during a blizzard at the 16,500 foot level of Mt. Misti in the Andes and, at another, was turned back from an attempt to follow the Amazon River by impenetrable jungle.

He skied with Peace Corps workers at Santiago, skindived at Cabo Frio where he sold his fish to the natives and explored the Inca ruins at Cuzco, Peru.

"I slept where I could find free lodging, mostly in police stations," says Parementer, "and ate what the people did."

ABOUT ONCE A WEEK, he took a paid accommodation in a hotel or cantina.

The steady diet of rice, beans and yucca plant caused his some difficulty but he found the food nourishing, tasty and filling.

He estimates he flagged down somewhere near 350 rides "mostly trucks because there is little auto travel on the roads."

On the return leg he hitched rides with civilian and commercial planes on three occasions and reached Los Angeles with $55 still in his denim pockets.

At the beginning he printed the legend "Peace Corps" on his suitcase "because I thought it would get me rides easier."

He rubbed the words out when he found "about the only persons I ran into who could read English were Peace Corps members and they objected to it."

PARMENTER, whose only other hitchhike adventure was a trip, at 16, to San Francisco found both the people and the authorities friendly and helpful.

"Policemen got me most of my truck rides," he explained.

"I think the reason the people were so hospitable was because I was a poor man even by their standards."

Carrying only two pairs of trousers, a jacket and raincoat, "I got pretty dirty and rundown looking," he said.

Parmenter, who speaks fluent, mile-a-minute Spanish, found most Latin Americans wanted to talk about President Kennedy's assassination.

"Almost no one believed that Oswald killed the President while working alone," he said.

THROUGHOUT THE TRIP, young Parmenter kept a diary which grew to more than 400 pages of closely written observations and experiences by journey's end.

"If the trip taught me anything," he concluded, "it was a better understanding of the people and their land.

"While their way of life may not be as productive as ours, they seem more interested in peace and in interpersonal relationships."

Steady Rains Bring Aid to Underground Supply

The frequent rains for this season have had a beneficial effect on underground water supplies.

Though statistics for downtown Los Angeles, Long Beach and many other municipalities in the Los Angeles basin show the season total still lagging behind last year's, the County Flood Control District explains there's been more replenishment of the important underground supply for these reasons:

1. At all 14 reservoirs maintained by the district, the rainfall total is higher, not lower, than last year's at the same date. This is explained by rainfall patterns, which are heavier in foothill areas where most of the reservoirs are located. Fuller reservoirs allow the diverting of more water to the basin's many "spreading grounds," from where it seeps through porous soil to add to the underground supply.

2. The nature of this season's rainfall has been less violent and more spread out than last season's, when two November storms accounted for most of the total. As any homeowner knows, the slower, steadier rains have a more lasting, soaking effect, even in the Long Beach and South Bay areas, where the soil has a little too much clay composition to be very porous.

Unless someone "turns off the tap" during the rest of the season, the outlook is very good for finding an improved underground table level come mitos, Leisure World and Seal checking time in May and June, officials said.

A superior court judge in Indio Friday dismissed arson charges against a Long Beach building contractor in connection with a fire that damaged his motel in Palm Springs.

Edward Tizzard, 47, of 5286 E. Parque, Apt. 4, was ordered released for insufficient evidence and lack of motive.

A fire caused $20,000 damage to Tizzard's 15-unit resort motel Sept. 18. The lodge is valued at $100,000.

Tizzard was represented by attorneys Frank Macepeace of Long Beach and John Roberts of Riverside.

Public Shouldn't Have to Support Forum for Reds

THE DECISION BY Dr. Carl McIntosh, president of California State College at Long Beach, to let a Communist use the campus as a propaganda forum is most unfortunate. It places tax-supported facilities at the disposal of those who would undermine the political, economic, and moral structure of American society. Such use is not in the public interest, and we doubt that it meets with the approval of the majority of taxpayers.

DR. McINTOSH IS NOT, of course, in sympathy with communism; he merely believes that the professors and students have a right to hear Communists—and that to refuse to give a Communist a campus platform implies distrust of the ability of campus people to recognize and resist subversive propaganda.

We also think the students and professors have a right to listen to Communists if they want to—but not on the time and at the expense of California taxpayers. If the Communists want to speak and the students and professors feel a compulsion to listen, let them arrange between them a suitable off-campus place to conduct their meeting. Why should the people of the state of California offer Communist propagandists a captive audience at public expense?

There has been a great deal of irrelevant talk recently about scholastic integrity, free speech, and the right to hear. Scholastic integrity does not require a college to play the dupe to crackpots or extremists. Free speech and the right to know do not require a college to furnish a lectern and an audience of impressionable young minds for the benefit of a Communist speaker.

★ ★ ★ ★

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT has identified communism as a hostile and aggressive force which endangers the freedom of the world. The threat is so great that this nation has spent billions of dollars and will spend billions of dollars more to combat it. One of the means by which communism expects to spread its influence is through propaganda. Of late, according to the FBI, Communists have been particularly active against colleges and universities.

When we deliberately throw the college gates open to Communists, when we honor them with official recognition, we work against our own best interests. College authorities are under no moral or legal obligation to permit Communist speakers on the campus. They do, on the other hand, have an obligation to the welfare of the state and to the opinion of the people who pay the taxes which build colleges.

New Douglas Jet

LONG BEACH ENTERS the new year with most encouraging prospects as the result, unsurprisingly, of the activities of Douglas Aircraft Co.

Next Tuesday, Douglas rolls out its new DC-9 jet transport for public inspection. The first public appearance of this aircraft will be genuine cause for celebration. For the design and assembly of the DC-9 will create 6,000 new jobs and an additional payroll of $42,000,000 at the local division of Douglas Aircraft. Douglas already employs 14,000 persons and has an investment of about $365,000,000 near Long Beach Airport.

The new project will have direct economic impact throughout the area. Since it is a commercial rather than a government project it will provide the additional benefit of tax revenue.

Douglas, the largest industrial complex in the area, again shows why it ranks as one of the several top aircraft companies in the world. Southern California in general and Long Beach in particular are proud to claim this great company as their own.

Non-Atom Trigger Is Scary Key to Poor Man's H-Bomb

I, P-T Political Editor

DESIRE, to the tune of $2 to $3 billion, can buy nuclear club membership for any industrialized country. Five in the world are current members: The United States, Russia in 1949, Great Britain in 1952, France in 1960 and Red China in 1964.

The name of this deadly game has changed from "Monopoly" when it was ours alone to "Proliferation." Congressman Craig Hosmer of Long Beach discusses some fascinating problems of proliferation of nuclear weapons in the current Washington Report of the American Security Council.

HOUSER

Most interesting, if frightening prospect, is the possible development of a "poor man's H-bomb." This all-fusion weapon, a pure hydrogen bomb, would mean, according to Hosmer, that the "world's vast supply of hydrogen will become available for unlimited manufacture of a truly 'poor man's H-bomb."

He explains it this way: Today's H-bombs require the great heat and energy from a plutonium or enriched uranium trigger bomb to start the thermonuclear process of hydrogen fusion. But if a non-atomic means to initiate hydrogen fusion can be found, the entire plutonium or enriched uranium requirement would be unnecessary.

This non-atomic technique for triggering hydrogen fusion could come in the shape of some future refinement of the laser beam. Lasers are now capable of focusing great energy on a given point at a precise time. This "or some other exotic technique" cannot be ruled out, in Hosmer's view.

Until that development, however, there are now some natural and some artificial deterrents to proliferation of the nuclear club. One artificial deterrent suggestion is the joining of the two senior nuclear powers—United States and Russia—in a threat of massive retaliation against any third power firing a nuclear weapon in anger.

A NATURAL deterrent is in the general unavailability of plutonium and enriched uranium. But this deterrent may be shortlived and Hosmer recommends that a presidential task force on the proliferation threat should expose the fact.

Key to a greater availability of enriched uranium is the centrifuge process. The centrifuge separates uranium's fissionable U235 isotopes from non-fissionable U238 atoms in natural uranium. This highly sophisticated centrifuge requires tough new materials which are now available and, says Hosmer, "Practical uranium centrifuges are just on the horizon if, in fact, they are not already here. These devices will require neither the great capital investment nor the large physical plants associated with gaseous diffusion"—the method used by our plants at Oakridge and elsewhere.

HOSMER URGES meeting the proliferation problem headon rather than efforts by the great powers at slowing down centrifuge progress. He says the "genie is out of the bottle, or so close to it that efforts to ram it back in seem increasingly futile."

It is futile, he suggests, to try to "uninvent the wheel. . . . Possibly the President's task force could perform its best service by declaring this fact and calling for intelligent examination of the proliferation problem as it actually is rather than, as so many, close their minds and hopefully wish it to be."

N.Y. Plan Rivals 'Great Society'

WASHINGTON — The "Great Society" has a competitor. Nobody would have suspected, after listening to the President's address last Monday night, that there are any states in the union. For they were not mentioned as partners in his plans for Utopia. In fact, the whole message ignored the contribution that 50 states can make to a "Great Society."

NELSON ROCKEFELLER

Now, however, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has projected a "Great Society" for the state of New York. It is even more specific than President Johnson's plan, though it is confined to a single state, which happens to be one of the most populous and the richest in the union.

The Governor's message to a joint session of the New York State legislature on Wednesday reveals that benefits are to be extended in almost every field under the sun, beginning with water-pollution control and water supply and continuing through practically every phase of public activity.

There is a section devoted to transportation, covering commuter service, "full crew" laws and mergers on the railroads, plus accelerated highway construction.

A whole chapter deals with "human and social concerns," starting out with education, both in the elementary and secondary schools and in higher education, and including an elaborate statewide educational television network and a state conference on library programs. There are proposals for increasing funds for low-income public housing, for middle-income housing and for rent assistance, while continuing rent control.

A special message is promised on holding down health costs, while another committee is looking into means of halting rising welfare costs, even as additions are made to the next budget for these purposes.

So that nothing will be missed, other proposals cover such things as more protection for workers, special centers for the training and guidance of women, the development of more playgrounds and recreation facilities, protecting the consumer, and even incorporating the Council on the Arts into the regular structure of the state government as a permanent agency.

The New York governor doesn't use the words "Great Society," but he speaks of an abiding purpose "to prove the creative power of free men to direct their own destiny in a revolutionary world of change."

One wonders, after reading Gov. Rockefeller's message, just why it was necessary for President Johnson to give a long list of federal programs to be paid for by all the nation's taxpayers, when the states themselves are fully cognizant of these same necessities and can raise the money to pay for them.

Education, for example, has long been a responsibility of the states. But just because some states have been unable to put as much money into education as the richer states — or have been reluctant to use their own funds when they thought Uncle Sam would provide the money needed — education has not received all the benefits that might be expected in a prosperous country.

But so far as a state version of the "Great Society" is concerned, Gov. Rockefeller has presented the most elaborate program anyone has set forth. Incidentally, it means a change in his own policy of the past, for usually he has been in favor of a "pay as you go" administration. But now he admits that at least part of the money needed for these purposes will have to be borrowed.

Politically speaking, the program of Gov. Rockefeller is bound to help him in his aspirations for the presidency in 1968. For, by that time, it is assumed that the voters will not be so much concerned with how many times a man may have been married but with how much government money can be poured into their respective states, and Gov. Rockefeller shows he is very sensitive indeed to public needs.

Certainly, in these days when "extremism" is synonymous with such old-fashioned things as "balanced budgets" and "fiscal responsibility," the New York Governor can readily qualify as a "moderate," which seems to be, among both Republicans and Democrats, the present-day designation of believers in "deficit spending," whereby an artificial prosperity is created and maintained — at least for a while.

One-House System Can Do Better Job

EDITOR:

By reapportioning the State Senate, forming a second body whose basis is population, we would be merely increasing the number of legislators in the Assembly while actually the only difference would be their title and pay.

I advocate that the people of California should change from a bicameral to a unicameral legislature and accomplish this by merely retiring these no-longer needed legislators as lame-ducks until their terms of office are over.

Californians would gain considerably by this action in economy in government and a smaller legislature could resolve some of these propositions that require the voter to perform the legislative duties of public servants.

EDITOR:

Well, they've done it again! The Communists have scored another goal. Once again an educator(?) has bowed to the pressures of the Reds and opened the doors of a tax-supported institution and allowed one of the enemies of the United States to expound his doctrines on the campus of our state college.

OUR state college? Now its ours, but I wonder for how long.

Makes one sick to the stomach to read how the regents of the University of California pussyfoot and refuse to clamp down on the agitators. Not difficult to see who is afraid of the "Big Bad Russian Bear."

Says LBJ Made 'Santa' Speech

EDITOR:

I often wonder who Santa Claus was. Turning on my radio last Monday night to listen to the President's speech, I found out.

A word to the Republicans from a Democrat (I am a registered Democrat): Hurry up and get your party organized so we may have the two-party system again. And I hope you may nominate a man such as Gov. Romney of Michigan; a true conservative, a good business man, a good governor and he has that Mormon honesty. He would make a good President for '68.

UC Students Ask For Nothing New

EDITOR:

Many of your editorial points on the subject of "Peace at UC?" were well made . . . only your conclusion was a bit awry.

Insofar as political activities on campus interfere with the educational process, a case can be made against them. And it follows, of course, that the times and places of such activities must be regulated by the administration so as to minimize such interference.

You inexplicably ignored a student outcry against "double jeopardy," by which they meant that a student who is arrested for sit-ins and is punished by the authorities, should not have to face still another "court" at the university, much less lose his standing as a student. If he pays his "debt" to society for an infraction of the law, he does not owe any extra debt to the university.

However, your points were well taken on the whole. They would have led to the conclusion you reached (that it was all caused by demagogues and crackpots)—except for one small thing: the students were not asking for any rights that are not already possessed at dozens of large universities around the nation. These UC students were not breaking new ground; on the contrary, they were magnificent in their insistence on their rights as adults and citizens. I do not imply they had all the right on their side; I am merely pointing out that they were not, as you implied, all wrong.

Gov. Brown's Program in Trouble

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The Brown administration legislative program is in deep trouble—even before it is fully unfolded.

Best indication: the frosty reception from legislators last Tuesday when Gov. Brown read his message. Lawmakers applauded only once, contrasting markedly with the repeated congressional applause for President Johnson a day earlier.

No. 1 sore spot for legislators: tax gimmickry which puts state lawmakers on the fiscal firing line.

One administration "bare bones" budget is to be proposed, and that is just fine with lawmakers. But there also are to be a batch of other "suggestions" for programs with no accompanying budget proposal detailing specifically how to finance them.

Republicans already have served notice that they will attempt to pick off some of the morsels from an anticipated $3.8 billion Brown Administration spending program — ballyhooed as a "bare-bones" budget because it contains no new major state-financed programs.

At first blush, most legislators are inclined to pass some form of the stripped-down budget. But other administration programs are likely to be dumped unless Gov. Brown proposes specific companion revenue-raising measures for each new program he suggests.

GOV. BROWN

Thus the latest bone-rattling budget game in Sacramento is to come up with appropriate new taxes for the secondary spending ideas.

• • • •

LAWMAKERS and civil servants have all the fun on this taxing sport. But if they opened the tax brainstorming to all comers, you might match up some of these taxes for broadened spending programs. Some possibilities:

EXPANDED MENTAL HEALTH PROGRAMS — A progressive tax on brains based on the level of a taxpayer's IQ. The smarter you are, the more you are soaked.

BROADENED PRISON REHABILITATION PROGRAM—Widening the sales tax to include gross receipts of bank robbers, safe crackers and confidence men.

SPEED-UP IN COLLEGE BUILDING—A head tax on campus rioters plus a $1,000 fee for University of California demonstration permits.

CALIFORNIA WORLD'S FAIR FINANCING — A 10 per cent tax on fees of consultants who are hired to tell the fair board that there should be a world's fair.

GO-AHEAD NOW ON NEW GOVERNOR'S MANSION—To be financed by a special tax on press releases from politicians who hint they would like to be governor.

$100,000 BILL FOR REDECORATING THE SENATE LAVISHLY—A special tax on all residents of upper houses in California.

THE $3.8 BILLION BARE-BONES BUDGET — Obviously a reference to a bill by Assemblyman Joe Gonsalves which would allow Norwalk to ban topless swimsuits. A tax on California bare bosoms could solve all of the state's bare-bones budget problems. The Gonsalves bill could be the sleeper in the whole 1965 session.

This is the greatest season for bare bones since Halloween!

EDITORIAL

Public Shouldn't Have to Support Forum for Reds

THE DECISION BY Dr. Carl McIntosh, president of California State College at Long Beach, to let a Communist use the campus as a propaganda forum is most unfortunate. It places tax-supported facilities at the disposal of those who would undermine the political, economic, and moral structure of American society. Such use is not in the public interest, and we doubt that it meets with the approval of the majority of taxpayers.

DR. McINTOSH IS NOT, of course, in sympathy with communism; he merely believes that the professors and students have a right to hear Communists—and that to refuse to give a Communist a campus platform implies distrust of the ability of campus people to recognize and resist subversive propaganda.

We also think the students and professors have a right to listen to Communists if they want to—but not on the time and at the expense of California taxpayers. If the Communists want to speak and the students and professors feel a compulsion to listen, let them arrange between them a suitable off-campus place to conduct their meeting. Why should the people of the state of California offer Communist propagandists a captive audience at public expense?

There has been a great deal of irrelevant talk recently about scholastic integrity, free speech, and the right to hear. Scholastic integrity does not require a college to play the dupe to crackpots or extremists. Free speech and the right to know do not require a college to furnish a lectern and an audience of impressionable young minds for the benefit of a Communist speaker.

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT has identified communism as a hostile and aggressive force which endangers the freedom of the world. The threat is so great that this nation has spent billions of dollars and will spend billions of dollars more to combat it. One of the means by which communism expects to spread its influence is through propaganda. Of late, according to the FBI, Communists have been particularly active against colleges and universities.

When we deliberately throw the college gates open to Communists, when we honor them with official recognition, we work against our own best interests. College authorities are under no moral or legal obligation to permit Communist speakers on the campus. They do, on the other hand, have an obligation to the welfare of the state and to the opinion of the people who pay the taxes which build colleges.

New Douglas Jet

LONG BEACH ENTERS the new year with most encouraging prospects as the result, unsurprisingly, of the activities of Douglas Aircraft Co.

Next Tuesday, Douglas rolls out its new DC-9 jet transport for public inspection. The first public appearance of this aircraft will be genuine cause for celebration. For the design and assembly of the DC-9 will create 6,000 new jobs and an additional payroll of $42,000,000 at the local division of Douglas Aircraft. Douglas already employs 14,000 persons and has an investment of about $365,000,000 near Long Beach Airport.

The new project will have direct economic impact throughout the area. Since it is a commercial rather than a government project it will provide the additional benefit of tax revenue.

Douglas, the largest industrial complex in the area, again shows why it ranks as one of the several top aircraft companies in the world. Southern California in general and Long Beach in particular are proud to claim this great company as their own.

N.Y. Plan Rivals 'Great Society'

WASHINGTON — The "Great Society" has a competitor. Nobody would have suspected, after listening to the President's address last Monday night, that there are any states in the union. For they were not mentioned as partners in his plans for Utopia. In fact, the whole message ignored the contribution that 50 states can make to a "Great Society."

Now, however, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has projected a "Great Society" for the state of New York. It is even more specific than President Johnson's plan, though it is confined to a single state, which happens to be one of the most populous and the richest in the union.

The Governor's message to a joint session of the New York State legislature on Wednesday reveals that benefits are to be extended in almost every field under the sun, beginning with water-pollution control and water supply and continuing through practically every phase of public activity.

There is a section devoted to transportation, covering commuter service, "full crew" laws and mergers on the railroads, plus accelerated highway construction.

A whole chapter deals with "human and social concerns," starting out with education, both in the elementary and secondary schools and in higher education, and including an elaborate statewide educational television network and a state conference on library programs. There are proposals for increasing funds for low-income public housing, for middle-income housing and for rent assistance, while continuing rent control.

A special message is promised on holding down health costs, while another committee is looking into means of halting rising welfare costs, even as additions are made to the next budget for these purposes.

So that nothing will be missed, other proposals cover such things as more protection for workers, special centers for the training and guidance of women, the development of more playgrounds and recreation facilities, protecting the consumer, and even incorporating the Council on the Arts into the regular structure of the state government as a permanent agency.

The New York governor doesn't use the words "Great Society," but he speaks of an abiding purpose "to prove the creative power of free men to direct their own destiny in a revolutionary world of change."

One wonders, after reading Gov. Rockefeller's message, just why it was necessary for President Johnson to give a long list of federal programs to be paid for by all the nation's taxpayers, when the states themselves are fully cognizant of these same necessities and can raise the money to pay for them.

Education, for example, has long been a responsibility of the states. But just because some states have been unable to put as much money into education as the richer states — or have been reluctant to use their own funds when they thought Uncle Sam would provide the money needed — education has not received all the benefits that might be expected in a prosperous country.

But so far as a state version of the "Great Society" is concerned, Gov. Rockefeller has presented the most elaborate program anyone has set forth. Incidentally, it means a change in his own policy of the past, for usually he has been in favor of a "pay as you go" administration. But now he admits that at least part of the money needed for these purposes will have to be borrowed.

Politically speaking, the program of Gov. Rockefeller is bound to help him in his aspirations for the presidency in 1968. For, by that time, it is assumed that the voters will not be so much concerned with how many times a man may have been married but with how much government money can be poured into their respective states, and Gov. Rockefeller shows he is very sensitive indeed to public needs.

Certainly, in these days when "extremism" is synonymous with such old-fashioned things as "balanced budgets" and "fiscal responsibility," the New York Governor can readily qualify as a "moderate," which seems to be, among both Republicans and Democrats, the present-day designation of believers in "deficit spending," whereby an artificial prosperity is created and maintained — at least for a while.

Non-Atom Trigger Is Scary Key to Poor Man's H-Bomb

I, P-T Political Editor

DESIRE, to the tune of $2 to $3 billion, can buy nuclear club membership for any industrialized country. Five in the world are current members: The United States, Russia in 1949, Great Britain in 1952, France in 1960 and Red China in 1964.

The name of this deadly game has changed from "Monopoly" when it was ours alone to "Proliferation." Congressman Craig Hosmer of Long Beach discusses some fascinating problems of proliferation of nuclear weapons in the current Washington Report of the American Security Council.

HOUSER

Most interesting, if frightening prospect, is the possible development of a "poor man's H-bomb." This all-fusion weapon, a pure hydrogen bomb, would mean, according to Hosmer, that the "world's vast supply of hydrogen will become available for unlimited manufacture of a truly 'poor man's H-bomb."

He explains it this way: Today's H-bombs require the great heat and energy from a plutonium or enriched uranium trigger bomb to start the thermonuclear process of hydrogen fusion. But if a non-atomic means to initiate hydrogen fusion can be found, the entire plutonium or enriched uranium requirement would be unnecessary.

This non-atomic technique for triggering hydrogen fusion could come in the shape of some future refinement of the laser beam. Lasers are now capable of focusing great energy on a given point at a precise time. This "or some other exotic technique" cannot be ruled out, in Hosmer's view.

Until that development, however, there are now some natural and some artificial deterrents to proliferation of the nuclear club. One artificial deterrent suggestion is the joining of the two senior nuclear powers—United States and Russia—in a threat of massive retaliation against any third power firing a nuclear weapon in anger.

A NATURAL deterrent is in the general unavailability of plutonium and enriched uranium. But this deterrent may be shortlived and Hosmer recommends that a presidential task force on the proliferation threat should expose the fact.

Key to a greater availability of enriched uranium is the centrifuge process. The centrifuge separates uranium's fissionable U235 isotopes from non-fissionable U238 atoms in natural uranium. This highly sophisticated centrifuge requires tough new materials which are now available and, says Hosmer, "Practical uranium centrifuges are just on the horizon if, in fact, they are not already here. These devices will require neither the great capital investment nor the large physical plants associated with gaseous diffusion"—the method used by our plants at Oakridge and elsewhere.

HOSMER URGES meeting the proliferation problem headon rather than efforts by the great powers at slowing down centrifuge progress. He says the "genie is out of the bottle, or so close to it that efforts to ram it back in seem increasingly futile."

It is futile, he suggests, to try to "uninvent the wheel. . . . Possibly the President's task force could perform its best service by declaring this fact and calling for intelligent examination of the proliferation problem as it actually is rather than, as so many, close their minds and hopefully wish it to be."

'Who Said Vaudeville Is Dead?'

DREW PEARSON

How LBJ Got in the Television Business

WASHINGTON—During the closing days of the recent election, an interesting private conversation with LBJ took place in the presidential suite of the Cherry Plaza Hotel in Orlando, Fla.

PEARSON

President Johnson had spent a hectic day speaking in Miami and Tampa. Arriving in Orlando about 11 p.m., he relaxed, necktie off, collar unbuttoned, feet outstretched, with Martin Anderson, publisher of the Orlando Sentinel. The two talked about the man they knew best and who had helped make them what they are—Charles E. Marsh.

Marsh at that time lay paralyzed and dying. It was doubtful if he could live out the election campaign to see his protege elected President.

Anderson and Johnson recalled many things about Marsh, how he had helped to finance Lyndon's first campaign for the House of Representatives. How he had sold the Orlando Sentinel to Anderson for nothing down and at a price that enabled Anderson to pay off within a reasonable period of time. I recalled how when I had reported that Marsh had advanced money for Johnson's campaign, Jesse Jones, then head of the RFC, had pressured a Texas bank to call Marsh's $50,000 loan. The President remembered this vividly.

But the most interesting recollection of the evening was regarding the acquisition of the Johnson TV property in Austin, for which the Republicans were then castagating the President.

The President said that a good many years ago when he was a young congressman, Charlie Marsh had told him: "Lyndon, you must come up for re-election every two years. Some day politics may catch up with you and you may not win. I've got a piece of land out there at the Lake Austin Dam which cost me $8,000, and I'll sell it to your wife for $8,000. It will eventually increase in value."

Johnson bought the land, held it for around twenty years, and sold it for $330,000. Marsh, who was not only Johnson's political adviser, but his financial counselor, had also advised him to buy a radio station in Austin which was up for sale. But Lyndon reminded Marsh that Amon Carter in Fort Worth was losing several hundred thousand dollars a year on a radio station, and that the Dallas News was also in the red with its station.

"Lady Bird has been studying journalism," he told Marsh, "and she wants to acquire a newspaper."

The President said that Marsh had helped him look around for a small newspaper and had found one at Baytown, south of Houston. But it was overpriced, and the Johnsons couldn't afford it.

"Forget the newspaper," Marsh told him. "But the radio station. Some day it will be worth three million dollars."

The President told how he had bought part of the radio station, with Sid Richardson, a close friend of Sam Rayburn's, as a partner. Later Richardson sold out, and the Johnson family kept the radio station. It later acquired a TV license.

The President never answered the bitter Republican charges regarding the acquisition of this TV-radio property. But this was the explanation which he gave to friends, in paying tribute to an old friend—who lay dying and who had perhaps done more than any other man to put Lyndon Johnson in the White House.

It was Charles Marsh who first introduced me to Lyndon Johnson when he was a gangling young congressman from Texas. Marsh was a developer of young men. He helped persuade Henry Wallace to run for vice president. He helped develop Claude Pepper when he first came to Washington as a young senator from Florida.

Last week Charles Marsh died. Lyndon Johnson, who doesn't forget his friends, kept in touch with him until the end. The story of their friendship and the acquisition of the Austin radio-TV stations can now be told.

JOHN NICHOLLS BOOTH

Palace, Parsonage Furnished World Two Versatile Giants

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Booth, minister of the Unitarian Church in Long Beach since last March, has been a special correspondent for the Chicago Sun-Times in Asia, and a feature writer across the years for the Boston Globe. He had lived at Albert Schweitzer's hospital in equatorial Africa as a personal guest of the famed scholar-humanitarian.)

THE world's fervor in honoring the 90th birthday anniversary this season of Winston Chuchill Nov. 30, and Albert Schweitzer, next Jan. 14, demonstrates the extraordinary breadth of human admiration. Few giants could be more different than Churchill, the master of war, and Schweitzer, the apostle of peace. Yet both men were born less than seven weeks and 300 miles apart; one in a palace, the other in a parsonage.

Both men have become legends of versatility. Sophisticates argue as to whether Churchill might have become a significant painter. Schweitzer is an eminent organist. No one denies the literary stratosphere in which each man rockets. Figures of action, one helpted to break the back of Hitler in war, the other to crack the grip of pestilence, in peace.

It is curious to note that both Europeans have chiseled marks in African history. Churchill's reputation for derring-do was augmented by his spectatcular capture and escape as a correspondent in South Africa, just before 1900. Immediately after 1900, Schweitzger, unnoticed and slightly ridiculed, disappeared into the silent fastness of equatorial Africa's jungles.

Thirty was a traumatic age for each man. The Britisher, already possessed of a country-wide reputation after four tubulent years in Parliament, resigned from the Tory Party to join the Liberals, on principle. Later, he shifted loyalties once more, transfering to the Conservatives, his allegiance ever since.

The Alsatian, honored possessor of doctorates in philosophy, theology and music, with a fourth coming up in medicine, prepared to switch from his elite position among the intelligenia of social, academic and musical Europe, to a hot, dirty and perilous life among the poorest Blacks of a faraway river region.

The springs of literary creation gushed early for Winston and Albert. Their subject matter reflected accurately the focii of each. War memoirs were expected from the Sandhurst graduate. Biographical and philosophical tomes were awaited from the Strassburg scholar. Neither disappointed their colleagues' hopes.

Can the finger of fate indicate a key year to sum up the peak intimations of each man's greatness? Perhaps. For Churchill, 1940 drew forth his supreme genius as military strategist, beleaguered statesman, rallying orator and indomitable fighter. Improperly armed, naked without allies, separated by only 20 miles of water from the mightiest war machine on earth, the tight little island of Britain was stirred, organized and defended by the growling voice of the bulldog who never tolerated the word defeat.

CHURCHILL

The year when Sweden's king bestowed upon Albert Schwetizer the Nobel Prize for Peace may mark symbolically an offical summing-up of world admiration for the self-effacing humanitarian. Works on behalf of impoverished, diseased and forgotten people, fulfilled in the unheralded spaces of our globe's dismissed alleyways, do not elicit the huzzahs, medals and band music of headlining material leadership.

But the world notes . . . and doesn't forget!

Several years ago the debunking of Albert Schweitzer churned into higher gear. The vehicles of Winston Churchill's deglorification are not yet grinding toward him. Materials of criticism abound for eager iconclasts. Yet, it may be expected, both gentlemen will survive the blastings, though not equally unblemished.

The record of Mr. Churchill's military disasters, professed love of warfare and imperialist mentality remain engraved upon the scroll of history. In Dr. Schweitzer's dossier are shown the undeniably old-fashioned conditions of the Lambarene hospital, his early emphasis (for lack of faith in employing Blacks) upon European physicians and nurses, and the truth that since 1913 he has spent half his time, not in Africa, but in Europe.

Why has the belittling of Schweitzer preceded that of Churchill? Remoteness is an invisible barrier against familiarity. Paradoxically, it has been easier to move into the presence of Albert Schweitzer in "Darkest Africa" than into the company of Winston Churchill in "Brightest London." Thus the physician has exposed himself to intimacy and misrepresentation to an extent avoided by the statesman.

"No one knows me who has not known me in Africa," Dr. Schwetitzer once remarked. Scores of journalists have pilgrimaged to Gabon, lived for many days at the jungle hospital as this writer has done, and been afforded the lunchtime conversations in French or German with "le grand docteur." An inordinately busy and now aged man, he has disappointed and offended some sensitive writers. After their long, long journey they have expected gold plated treatment. When it didn't eventuate, their pique set off a process of de-simonizing the world hero.

To condemn Schwetizer's hospital as a way of debunking the man is to miss the meaning of his greatness. Countless dedicated, able and self-effacing men and women have plunged into foreign lands to establish as effective or even superior humanitarian projects. But the vision of a world-famed scholar, teacher, musician and philosopher, surrendering at such sacrifice the comforts and emoluments that his rare gifts might elicit is rare.

It forces us to recognize the ideal good man of any century. Not the perfect man but the good man.

And Churchill?

People love winners. No discrediter can ever deprive Churchill of his 1940 victory. It is difficult to debunk a colorful, courageous, inspired warrior-victor. All the world loves a word painter of visions of greatness, founded upon a people's noblest traditions of principle and pride. Thus did Churchill arouse a complacent populace, create marching armies and intimidate the first hordes since 1066 truly to threaten his nation's institutions.

Palace and parsonage, a long 90 years ago, gave the world two historic figures. In them reality was so great as to seem mythical. When myth and reality are nearly equal, or become one, the ages have received new immortals.

'Who Said Vaudeville Is Dead?'

DREW PEARSON

How LBJ Got in the Television Business

WASHINGTON—During the closing days of the recent election, an interesting private conversation with LBJ took place in the presidential suite of the Cherry Plaza Hotel in Orlando, Fla.

PEARSON

President Johnson had spent a hectic day speaking in Miami and Tampa. Arriving in Orlando about 11 p.m., he relaxed, necktie off, collar unbuttoned, feet outstretched, with Martin Anderson, publisher of the Orlando Sentinel. The two talked about the man they knew best and who had helped make them what they are—Charles E. Marsh.

Marsh at that time lay paralyzed and dying. It was doubtful if he could live out the election campaign to see his protege elected President.

Anderson and Johnson recalled many things about Marsh, how he had helped to finance Lyndon's first campaign for the House of Representatives. How he had sold the Orlando Sentinel to Anderson for nothing down and at a price that enabled Anderson to pay off within a reasonable period of time. I recalled how when I had reported that Marsh had advanced money for Johnson's campaign, Jesse Jones, then head of the RFC, had pressured a Texas bank to call Marsh's $50,000 loan. The President remembered this vividly.

But the most interesting recollection of the evening was regarding the acquisition of the Johnson TV property in Austin, for which the Republicans were then castagating the President.

The President said that a good many years ago when he was a young congressman, Charlie Marsh had told him: "Lyndon, you must come up for re-election every two years. Some day politics may catch up with you and you may not win. I've got a piece of land out there at the Lake Austin Dam which cost me $8,000, and I'll sell it to your wife for $8,000. It will eventually increase in value."

Johnson bought the land, held it for around twenty years, and sold it for $330,000. Marsh, who was not only Johnson's political adviser, but his financial counselor, had also advised him to buy a radio station in Austin which was up for sale. But Lyndon reminded Marsh that Amon Carter in Fort Worth was losing several hundred thousand dollars a year on a radio station, and that the Dallas News was also in the red with its station.

"Lady Bird has been studying journalism," he told Marsh, "and she wants to acquire a newspaper."

The President said that Marsh had helped him look around for a small newspaper and had found one at Baytown, south of Houston. But it was overpriced, and the Johnsons couldn't afford it.

"Forget the newspaper," Marsh told him. "But the radio station. Some day it will be worth three million dollars."

The President told how he had bought part of the radio station, with Sid Richardson, a close friend of Sam Rayburn's, as a partner. Later Richardson sold out, and the Johnson family kept the radio station. It later acquired a TV license.

The President never answered the bitter Republican charges regarding the acquisition of this TV-radio property. But this was the explanation which he gave to friends, in paying tribute to an old friend—who lay dying and who had perhaps done more than any other man to put Lyndon Johnson in the White House.

It was Charles Marsh who first introduced me to Lyndon Johnson when he was a gangling young congressman from Texas. Marsh was a developer of young men. He helped persuade Henry Wallace to run for vice president. He helped develop Claude Pepper when he first came to Washington as a young senator from Florida.

Last week Charles Marsh died. Lyndon Johnson, who doesn't forget his friends, kept in touch with him until the end. The story of their friendship and the acquisition of the Austin radio-TV stations can now be told.

JOHN NICHOLLS BOOTH

Palace, Parsonage Furnished World Two Versatile Giants

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Booth, minister of the Unitarian Church in Long Beach since last March, has been a special correspondent for the Chicago Sun-Times in Asia, and a feature writer across the years for the Boston Globe. He had lived at Albert Schweitzer's hospital in equatorial Africa as a personal guest of the famed scholar-humanitarian.)

THE world's fervor in honoring the 90th birthday anniversary this season of Winston Chuchill Nov. 30, and Albert Schweitzer, next Jan. 14, demonstrates the extraordinary breadth of human admiration. Few giants could be more different than Churchill, the master of war, and Schweitzer, the apostle of peace. Yet both men were born less than seven weeks and 300 miles apart; one in a palace, the other in a parsonage.

Both men have become legends of versatility. Sophisticates argue as to whether Churchill might have become a significant painter. Schweitzer is an eminent organist. No one denies the literary stratosphere in which each man rockets. Figures of action, one helpted to break the back of Hitler in war, the other to crack the grip of pestilence, in peace.

It is curious to note that both Europeans have chiseled marks in African history. Churchill's reputation for derring-do was augmented by his spectalcular capture and escape as a correspondent in South Africa, just before 1900. Immediately after 1900, Schweitzger, unnoticed and slightly ridiculed, disappeared into the silent fastness of equatorial Africa's jungles.

Thirty was a traumatic age for each man. The Britisher, already possessed of a country-wide reputation after four tubulent years in Parliament, resigned from the Tory Party to join the Liberals, on principle. Later, he shifted loyalties once more, transfering to the Conservatives, his allegiance ever since.

The Alsatian, honored possessor of doctorates in philosophy, theology and music, with a fourth coming up in medicine, prepared to switch from his elite position among the intelligenia of social, academic and musical Europe, to a hot, dirty and perilous life among the poorest Blacks of a faraway river region.

The springs of literary creation gushed early for Winston and Albert. Their subject matter reflected accurately the focii of each. War memoirs were expected from the Sandhurst graduate. Biographical and philosophical tomes were awaited from the Strassburg scholar. Neither disappointed their colleagues' hopes.

Can the finger of fate indicate a key year to sum up the peak intimations of each man's greatness? Perhaps. For Churchill, 1940 drew forth his supreme genius as military strategist, beleaguered statesman, rallying orator and indomitable fighter. Improperly armed, naked without allies, separated by only 20 miles of water from the mightiest war machine on earth, the tight little island of Britain was stirred, organized and defended by the growling voice of the bulldog who never tolerated the word defeat.

The year when Sweden's king bestowed upon Albert Schwetizer the Nobel Prize for Peace may mark symbolically an offical summing-up of world admiration for the self-effacing humanitarian. Works on behalf of impoverished, diseased and forgotten people, fulfilled in the unheralded spaces of our globe's dismissed alleyways, do not elicit the huzzahs, medals and band music of headlining material leadership.

But the world notes . . . and doesn't forget!

Several years ago the debunking of Albert Schweitzer churned into higher gear. The vehicles of Winston Churchill's deglorification are not yet grinding toward him. Materials of criticism abound for eager iconclasts. Yet, it may be expected, both gentlemen will survive the blastings, though not equally unblemished.

The record of Mr. Churchill's military disasters, professed love of warfare and imperialist mentality remain engraved upon the scroll of history. In Dr. Schweitzer's dossier are shown the undeniably old-fashioned conditions of the Lambarene hospital, his early emphasis (for lack of faith in employing Blacks) upon European physicians and nurses, and the truth that since 1913 he has spent half his time, not in Africa, but in Europe.

Why has the belittling of Schweitzer preceded that of Churchill? Remoteness is an invisible barrier against familiarity. Paradoxically, it has been easier to move into the presence of Albert Schweitzer in "Darkest Africa" than into the company of Winston Churchill in "Brightest London." Thus the physician has exposed himself to intimacy and misrepresentation to an extent avoided by the statesman.

"No one knows me who has not known me in Africa," Dr. Schwetitzer once remarked. Scores of journalists have pilgrimaged to Gabon, lived for many days at the jungle hospital as this writer has done; and been afforded the lunchtime conversations in French or German with "le grand docteur." An inordinately busy and now aged man, he has disappointed and offended some sensitive writers. After their long, long journey they have expected gold plated treatment. When it didn't eventuate, their pique set off a process of de-simonizing the world hero.

To condemn Schwetizer's hospital as a way of debunking the man is to miss the meaning of his greatness. Countless dedicated, able and self effacing men and women have plunged into foreign lands to establish as effective or even superior humanitarian projects. But the vision of a world-famed scholar, teacher, musician and philosopher, surrendering at such sacrifice the comforts and emoluments that his rare gifts might elicit is rare.

It forces us to recognize the ideal good man of any century. Not the perfect man but the good man.

And Churchill?

People love winners. No discrediter can ever deprive Churchill of his 1940 victory. It is difficult to debunk a colorful, courageous, inspired warrior-victor. All the world loves a word painter of visions of greatness, founded upon a people's noblest traditions of principle and pride. Thus did Churchill arouse a complacent populace, create marching armies and intimidate the first hordes since 1066 truly to threaten his nation's institutions.

Palace and parsonage, a long 90 years ago, gave the world two historic figures. In them reality was so great as to seem mythical. When myth and reality are nearly equal, or become one, the ages have received new immortals.

17 L.B. Employes Entitled to Wear 40-Year Pins

By GEORGE WEEKS

Working for the city may not be the easiest and most remunerative of careers, but the consensus among 17 of the 4,400 on Long Beach's municipal payroll is that the job has been fruitful and rewarding.

These 17 are the oldest among the veterans in point of service, each with a record of 40 years or more as the new year began. They represent eight departments, and all are still actively on the job.

The list, compiled by the city personnel office, includes two department heads, Brennan S. Thomas, general manager and chief engineer of the Water Department, and Jess D. Gilkerson, city engineer.

* * * *

THEY AGREED, without consulting each other, that their greatest job satisfactions have come from the progressive changes and growth in their fields.

V. DOVEY

At the top of the roster is another key employe who knows more than anyone else about the shifting power center of the city government, the office of the Mayor and City Council.

She is Violet Dovey, the only one of the 17 whose city career reaches back beyond the 1920's—specifically to February, 1918. Since 1936 she has been a fixture in the mayor's office, first as the secretary and since 1954 as administrative assistant. She has worked for nine mayors and many councilmen.

* * * *

MRS. DOVEY'S exact length of service is not known even to the personnel office because the records during her first years were sketchy. She "retired" twice early in her career but was back after only a few months.

She also is one of the few who worked in the old city hall, across the street to the west of the existing building, and under the pre-1921 commission form of government.

It was the influenza epidemic of World War I that started her career. High school was closed because of the health hazard, so she took a job addressing municipal ballot envelopes.

Nobody asked her age (she was under the legal minimum), so she stayed on to become secretary of the commissioner of finance and accounting, Harry B. Riley. Afterwards she transferred to the city assessor's office for more pay —$108 a month.

* * * *

HE ALSO has had a part in the long-term change of Long Beach from a resort town to "a diversified city of considerable stature."

Another key employe who is an expert in her field is Leoda Baynham, whose service dates back to October, 1922. She has been secretary of the City Planning Commission since then. Originally a stenographer in the Planning Department, she is now a senior planner. From 1938 to 1944 she was in effect the director of planning.

Her job also requires frequent appearances before the City Council, often on controversial matters. Unruffled after observing hundreds of conflicts, she readily supplies the technical answers, leaving the policy decisions to the council.

* * * *

AFTER MRS. Dovey, the employe with the longest service record is Sgt. Robert N. Houghton of the police department, who is credited with 44½ years.

He and Catherine Higgins, now an aide to the head of the lands and leases office in the Water Department, joined up in the same year, 1920.

The only other policeman on the list is Capt. Elmer R. Anderson, who enrolled as a patrolman on Dec. 1, 1923.

Capt. Roy J. (Dutch) Miller, now chief of the lifeguard service, has made a lifetime career of protecting visitors to the beach. His service began June 1, 1922.

The Municipal Gas Department has the largest contingent on the veterans' roll, six employes. All six have been with the department since 1924. Two of them are brother, Paul B. Taylor, credit manager, and Philip Taylor, superintendent of the distribution division.

* * * *

OTHERS IN the Gas Department are L. C. Phillip, meterman; William Warwick and Floyd Woodcock, customer servicemen, and Edith Reardon, bookkeeper.

Representing the library are Nina Boyle, general librarian, and Violet Sell, departmental librarian. Both have worked in the system since 1924.

The only Water Department representative besides Thomas is Kenneth Whitnack, an administrative aide, with more than 41 years' tenure. Another employe in that department, John H. Martin, service foreman, retired Dec. 31. His record dated back to June, 1922.

Numerous other city employes are approaching the 40-year mark. One of them is Charles L. Vickers, general manager of the Harbor Department, whose career has paralleled those of Thomas and Gilkerson. He will be eligible for a 40-year

* * * *

AMONG HER assignments was getting out the tax roll, a job that involved typing on a machine so large that an assistant had to stand by to move the carriage.

Afterwards she was secretary to the city clerk, went back to school part time, and moved upstairs to the mayor's office.

Vi has worked for the city under three different names—Miss Violet Wald, Mrs. Otto A. Wohlwend and Mrs. William H. Dovey.

She still likes her work so much that her standard reply to queries about her prospective retirement date is: "When I get good and ready."

Her second husband, former Police Chief Dovey, also ranked as a veteran when he retired in 1960. He had a 44-year record at the time.

* * * *

THOMAS RANKS first among the department heads, having joined the Water Department as a draftsman in January, 1924. He moved up through the ranks until he was named general manager in 1945. He is a veteran of both World Wars. In the second, he was a lieutenant colonel of engineers.

"My main satisfaction is having been able to build up one of the best municipal water systems in the world," he said. After that, I think of the work I have done in the last few years safeguarding Long Beach's water rights from upstream interests—and incidentally helping out the whole central basin."

The water rights controversy involved two suits, now on the verge of out-of-court settlement, in which downstream consumers will be assured of an equitable share of runoff.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH official also was active in drafting the underground replenishment program to prevent intrusion of salt water into local wells. The barrier wells achieved with the aid of the County Flood Control District, the Metropolitan Water District and the Central and West Basin Replenishment District, are about ready for operation.

Gilkerson, who accepted a draftsman's job in the Engineering Department in August, 1924, has headed the department since 1947. He was a Navy lieutenant commander during World War II.

"I consider myself lucky in having part in the fantastic public improvement program Long Beach has accomplished," he said. "How many other cities, for example, own two major hospitals?"

Farther afield, he has been a defender of California's freeway system, often under attack in the City Council. He considers the state's network of highways "the finest in the nation, with unique conceptions and financing."

BRENNAN THOMAS

Post in Arabia for Sam Vickers

Former Long Beach City Manager Sam Vickers is en route to the Middle East to head Ford Foundation projects there, it was learned today.

His brother, Charles L. Vickers, general manager of the Long Beach Harbor Department, said Vickers and his wife, Helen, departed for Saudi Arabia Jan. 1.

Sam Vickers was in Beverly Hills late last year working as a special consultant.

Vickers served 14½ years as city manager of Long Beach before taking a similar post at Phoenix. He left the Phoenix job last July.

As an official for the Ford Foundation, Vickers, his brother said, will manage 12 separate foundation projects in the Saudi Arabia.

Auto License Fund Helps Your City

This is the time of year to come up with cash for your 1965 car license tab.

But don't grumble too much about turning over your hard cash for the little 1965 decal—a great portion of it comes right back to the city where you live.

The state controller's office said today $12,478,269 has been returned to cities and counties as the first payment of the revenue from state motor vehicle fees for 1964. Two more payments will be made.

All but a minor portion of motor vehicle fees goes to local governments because the tax takes the place of a local property tax on your car or cars.

AFTER deductions (around 12%) are taken to cover interest on highway bonds and for support of the DMV's licensing division, the balance "returns home," and is apportioned on population.

Roughly the turnback amounts to about 47 cents per person in each community, based on current census figures.

17 L.B. Employes Entitled to Wear 40-Year Pins

By GEORGE WEEKS

Working for the city may not be the easiest and most remunerative of careers, but the consensus among 17 of the 4,400 on Long Beach's municipal payroll is that the job has been fruitful and rewarding.

These 17 are the oldest among the veterans in point of service, each with a record of 40 years or more as the new year began. They represent eight departments, and all are still actively on the job.

The list, compiled by the city personnel office, includes two department heads, Brennan S. Thomas, general manager and chief engineer of the Water Department, and Jess D. Gilkerson, city engineer.

THEY AGREED, without consulting each other, that their greatest job satisfactions have come from the progressive changes and growth in their fields.

V. DOVEY

At the top of the roster is another key employe who knows more than anyone else about the shifting power center of the city government, the office of the Mayor and City Council.

She is Violet Dovey, the only one of the 17 whose city career reaches back beyond the 1920's — specifically to February, 1918. Since 1936 she has been a fixture in the mayor's office, first as the secretary and since 1954 as administrative assistant. She has worked for nine mayors and many councilmen.

* * * *

MRS. DOVEY'S exact length of service is not known even to the personnel office because the records during her first years were sketchy. She "retired" twice early in her career but was back after only a few months.

She also is one of the few who worked in the old city hall, across the street to the west of the existing building, and under the pre-1921 commission form of government.

It was the influenza epidemic of World War I that started her career. High school was closed because of the health hazard, so she took a job addressing municipal ballot envelopes.

Nobody asked her age (she was under the legal minimum), so she stayed on to become secretary of the commissioner of finance and accounting, Harry B. Riley. Afterwards she transferred to the city assessor's office for more pay —$108 a month.

* * * *

HE ALSO has had a part in the long-term change of Long Beach from a resort town to "a diversified city of considerable stature."

Another key employe who is an expert in her field is Leoda Baynham, whose service dates back to October, 1922. She has been secretary of the City Planning Commission since then. Originally a stenographer in the Planning Department, she is now a senior planner. From 1938 to 1944 she was in effect the director of planning.

Her job also requires frequent appearances before the City Council, often on controversial matters. Unruffled after observing hundreds of conflicts, she readily supplies the technical answers, leaving the policy decisions to the council.

* * * *

AFTER MRS. Dovey, the employe with the longest service record is Sgt. Robert N. Houghton of the police department, who is credited with 44½ years.

He and Catherine Higgins, now an aide to the head of the lands and leases office in the Water Department, joined up in the same year, 1920.

The only other policeman on the list is Capt. Elmer R. Anderson, who enrolled as a patrolman on Dec. 1, 1923.

Capt. Roy J. (Dutch) Miller, now chief of the lifeguard service, has made a lifetime career of protecting visitors to the beach. His service began June 1, 1922.

The Municipal Gas Department has the largest contingent on the veterans' roll, six employes. All six have been with the department since 1924. Two of them are brother, Paul B. Taylor, credit manager, and Philip Taylor, superintendent of the distribution division.

* * * *

OTHERS IN the Gas Department are L. C. Phillip, meterman; William Warwick and Floyd Woodcock, customer servicemen, and Edith Reardon, bookkeeper.

Representing the library are Nina Boyle, general librarian, and Violet Sell, departmental librarian. Both have worked in the system since 1924.

The only Water Department representative besides Thomas is Kenneth Whitnack, an administrative aide, with more than 41 years' tenure. Another employe in that department, John H. Martin, service foreman, retired Dec. 31. His record dated back to June, 1922.

Numerous other city employes are approaching the 40-year mark. One of them is Charles L. Vickers, general manager of the Harbor Department, whose career has paralleled those of Thomas and Gilkerson. He will be eligible for a 40-year

* * * *

AMONG HER assignments was getting out the tax roll, a job that involved typing on a machine so large that an assistant had to stand by to move the carriage.

Afterwards she was secretary to the city clerk, went back to school part time, and moved upstairs to the mayor's office.

Vi has worked for the city under three different names—Miss Violet Waid, Mrs. Otto A. Wohlwend and Mrs. William H. Dovey.

She still likes her work so much that her standard reply to queries about her prospective retirement date is: "When I get good and ready."

Her second husband, former Police Chief Dovey, also ranked as a veteran when he retired in 1960. He had a 44-year record at the time.

* * * *

THOMAS RANKS first among the department heads, having joined the Water Department as a draftsman in January, 1924. He moved up through the ranks until he was named general manager in 1945. He is a veteran of both World Wars. In the second, he was a lieutenant colonel of engineers.

"My main satisfaction is having been able to build up one of the best municipal water systems in the world," he said. After that, I think of the work I have done in the last few years safeguarding Long Beach's water rights from upstream interests — and incidentally helping out the whole central basin."

The water rights controversy involved two suits, now on the verge of out-of-court settlement, in which downstream consumers will be assured of an equitable share of runoff.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH official also was active in drafting the underground replenishment program to prevent intrusion of salt water into local wells. The barrier wells achieved with the aid of the County Flood Control District, the Metropolitan Water District and the Central and West Basin Replenishment District, are about ready for operation.

Gilkerson, who accepted a draftsman's job in the Engineering Department in August, 1924, has headed the department since 1947. He was a Navy lieutenant commander during World War II.

"I consider myself lucky in having part in the fantastic public improvement program Long Beach has accomplished," he said. "How many other cities, for example, own two major hospitals?"

Farther afield, he has been a defender of California's freeway system, often under attack in the City Council. He considers the state's network of highways "the finest in the nation, with unique conceptions and financing."

BRENNAN THOMAS

Post in Arabia for Sam Vickers

Former Long Beach City Manager Sam Vickers is en route to the Middle East to head Ford Foundation projects there, it was learned today.

His brother, Charles L. Vickers, general manager of the Long Beach Harbor Department, said Vickers and his wife, Helen, departed for Saudi Arabia Jan. 1.

Sam Vickers was in Beverly Hills late last year working as a special consultant.

Vickers served 14½ years as city manager of Long Beach before taking a similar post at Phoenix. He left the Phoenix job last July.

As an official for the Ford Foundation, Vickers, his brother said, will manage 12 separate foundation projects in the Saudi Arabia.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Market Opens New Year With Modest Price Gains

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market started off the new year on an optimistic note as prices advanced modestly in fairly active trading.

The week started off with a small decline on Monday, apparently sparked by profit-taking on the two-day midget sized year end rally in the previous week. However, buyers outnumbered sellers Tuesday and the Dow-Jones Industrial average was boosted 6.08.

Smaller gains were scored in the two following days and prices churned in the final session under the pressure of normal pre-weekend lightening up operations and profit-taking.

• • • •

WALL STREET was well cheered by President Johnson's State of the Union message and found in it many bullish notes for business. Wall Street's confidence in President Johnson, which has been well demonstrated in the past is apparently still undaunted and most on the street felt it will continue.

Most eyes were turned to the European gold markets last week as the price of the currency metal climbed to a new two-year high and speculation continued over a possible increase in its price. However, spirits were quickly dampened Friday when the Treasury said that speculation over any possible price increase would "eventually end on the losing side."

Closely tied with the gold situation is the international monetary problem. Brokers continue to wach for any improvement in Britain's international trade deficit and now will have to keep an eye on France's purchases of gold as well.

• • • •

THESE international problems did not, however, dampen buyers taste for U.S. equities and the Dow-Jones Industrial average posted a gain of 8.47 on the week to 882.60. Rails inched up 2.72 to 208.06 and utilities tacked on 0.80 at 155.97.

Volume inched up to 23,297,712 shares compared with 20,522,915 shares in the four days of the prior week and 27,006,712 shares in the like period last year.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 2-to-1 as 973 issues advanced and only 419 declined. Of the 1,532 issues traded, 142 hit new 1964-65 highs while 24 touched new lows.

General Motors took top spot on the active list with a loss of ⅝ at 97¼ on a turnover of 342,000 shares on fears that the 23 million shares distributed by DuPont over the weekend might be unloaded by their holders.

• • • •

AMERICAN Telephone took second place with a gain of 1⅛ at 69¾ on 309,200 shares following news of record earnings for the fourth quarter and 12 months. Profits for the year were the highest ever earned by a U.S. corporation.

Pure Oil also was active on fresh rumors of merger activity. It gained 3¼ despite some profit-taking near the end of the week. Commonwealth Oil, also rumored to be a merger candidate, gained ½ at 10¼, also in active dealings.

Steels continued narrowly mixed as contract negotiations wore on. On Friday the sessions were recessed until around mid-February to allow the union leaders more time to concentrate on their upcoming election.

Chrysler turned down 1¾, but Ford managed to gain ⅝. American Motors tacked on ¼, despite news that its top executives were taking pay cuts.

DuPont again was in favor and soared 6⅝. Eastman Kodak advanced 5½ and International Minerals & Chemical picked up 4½.

• • • •

THE LONG depressed electronics section came to life. IBM soared 15½ after touching a new 1964-65 low of 404 Tuesday. Control Data picked up 5, Litton 5⅝. Texas Instruments 2⅛ and Motorola 2½. Beckman, Honeywell and RCA were among the losers, dropping 1¼, 1⅜ and ⅞ respectively.

Anaconda was a strong spot in the metals with a gain of 4⅛. U.S. Smelting advanced 3. Mueller Brass gained 2⅝. Drugs met selective demand and Johnson & Johnson added 4½. Upjohn 3⅜ and Schering 2⅛.

Bestwall Gypsum jumped 4⅛ on news it is considering merging into Georgia Pacific. Georgia Pacific advanced 3⅜. International Harvester jumped 4⅞ after directors proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and dividend boost.

• • • •

CIGARETTE stocks were narrowly mixed despite the new report concerning smoking and health which is expected Monday. Lorillard gained 1, Liggett & Myers added ½, but American Tobacco lost the same amount.

Texas Gulf Sulphur picked up 5⅛ in fairly active dealings. Comsat shed a point. American Telephone proposed last week that it jointly own Comsat's first four ground stations.

Gold shares bounced around during the week and finished easier. American South Africa added 1 but Homestake Mining dropped 1⅛ and Dome Mines gave up 1¼.

Polaroid and Xerox showed only fractional gains. Western Maryland Railway slipped 1⅞ despite a dividend boost.

FPC MAN SAYS 'NO'

Disqualification Demand Rejected

By HARRY W. SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Power Commissioner David S. Black gave a blunt "no" this week to demands of major natural gas producers that he disqualify himself in the FPC's Permian Basin price-fixing case.

The producers had charged him with prejudgment of the case—one of the most important in the economic history of the gas industry—and insisted he withdraw voluntarily or that his fellow commissioners force him to step aside.

Black's unequivocal answer put the decision up to the commission. If its answer also is no, the next episode may be written in the courts. In filing their anti-Black motion, the producers—20 of the nation's largest—made a tacit threat of legal action if Black and the commission stand pat.

• • • •

THE PRODUCERS have a precedent in a recent U.S. Appeals Court decision against the Federal Trade Commission.

Time is running out and this may push the dispute to a head. The FPC opens final hearings Feb. 8 on an examiner's decision that gas from the Permian area — west Texas and southeast New Mexico—be put under dual price ceilings which would replace the old cost-of-production formula.

The case is the commission's guinea pig for fixing permanent field rates in all the nation's producing areas.

• • • •

BLACK, a self-styled consumers man and freshman member of the commission, aroused the producers' ire last Sept. 16 when he urged members of the Pacific Coast Gas Association to fight any congressional legislation that would free independent producers from federal price controls on gas sold in interstate commerce. The association is composed of state distributors which sell gas to millions of households and commercial users.

The doughty commissioner had much more to say such as there is no real competition in the gas fields because a handful of big companies have such a stranglehold on the nation's gas supply that interstate pipeline companies are at their mercy. He also made the point that these same producers are giants in the oil industry.

Repercussions at the time were mild. But that was merely a lull while the producers flexed their muscles. On Dec. 18 they formally moved before the commission that Black be divorced from the Feb. 8 hearing.

Their bill of particulars — some would call it an indictment—ran the gamut, charging among other things that Black had shown personal bias and prejudice against producers as a class and hence could not give a fair judgment in the Permian decision.

As part of their motion, the producers then cited the Appeals Court decision which reversed an FTC order against Texaco, Inc., on grounds commission chairman Paul Rand Dixon made a speech prejudicial to Texaco's interests while the case was still pending.

• • • •

IT REMAINS to be seen whether this adds up to a threat to seek court action.

Black's answer was, in effect, a challenge to the producers to do their worst. He reviewed their charges, denied them categorically, and declared:

"I must refuse to disqualify myself and, in the absence of an order of the commission directing otherwise, I will discharge my duties as a member of this commission and participate fully in the decision."

Black said his speech was nothing more than a reply to a vigorous gas industry propaganda barrage aimed at persuading congress to exempt producers from interstate price controls.

• • • •

HE SAID that contrary to producer claims, exemption would lead to uncontrolled prices which would hit 36 million consumers where it hurts most—in their pocketbooks.

He also said in effect that the producers were trying to gag him but that he would refuse to be silent so long as the public interest was at stake. He suggested the producers give his speech "a fair reading," and added:

"I disavow any implication that I cannot or will not give full and fair consideration to the arguments of the producers concerning the method by which they should be regulated to the extent such arguments are supported by the record. For this reason I decline to withdraw . . ."

• • • •

THERE WOULD still be a legal quorum of commissioners to conduct business even if Black withdrew or was forced out. After Black there is Chairman Joseph C. Swidler and commissioners Charles R. Ross and Lawrence J. O'Connor, Jr. Ross' term expired last June and he is serving at the discretion of President Johnson, pending reappointment or replacement. He is a Republican. The fifth commission spot—also Republican—is vacant, due to the death last year of Harold C. Woodward.

Under law only two commissioners could make a binding decision if only three were present and voting. As a consumer man Black sides with Swidler in most decisions. Ross also is frequently in their camp. O'Connor's votes vary from dissent to approval.

After the Feb. 8 hearing the commission will begin working in its final decisions, which is expected by summer.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Market Opens New Year With Modest Price Gains

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market started off the new year on an optimistic note as prices advanced modestly in fairly active trading.

The week started off with a small decline on Monday, apparently sparked by profit-taking on the two-day midget sized year end rally in the previous week. However, buyers outnumbered sellers Tuesday and the Dow-Jones Industrial average was boosted 6.08.

Smaller gains were scored in the two following days and prices churned in the final session under the pressure of normal pre-weekend lightening up operations and profit-taking.

* * * *

WALL STREET was well cheered by President Johnson's State of the Union message and found in it many bullish notes for business. Wall Street's confidence in President Johnson, which has been well demonstrated in the past is apparently still undaunted and most on the street felt it will continue.

Most eyes were turned to the European gold markets last week as the price of the currency metal climbed to a new two-year high and speculation continued over a possible increase in its price. However, spirits were quickly dampened Friday when the Treasury said that speculation over any possible price increase would "eventually end on the losing side."

Closely tied with the gold situation is the international monetary problem. Brokers continue to wach for any improvement in Britain's international trade deficit and now will have to keep an eye on France's purchases of gold as well.

* * * *

THESE international problems did not, however, dampen buyers taste for U.S. equities and the Dow-Jones Industrial average posted a gain of 8.47 on the week to 382.60. Rails inched up 2.72 to 208.06 and utilities tacked on 0.80 at 155.97.

Volume inched up to 23,297,712 shares compared with 20,522,915 shares in the four days of the prior week and 27,006,712 shares in the like period last year.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 2-to-1 as 973 issues advanced and only 419 declined. Of the 1,532 issues traded, 142 hit new 1964-65 highs while 24 touched new lows.

General Motors took top spot on the active list with a loss of ⅝ at 97¼ on a turnover of 342,000 shares on fears that the 23 million shares distributed by DuPont over the weekend might be unloaded by their holders.

* * * *

AMERICAN Telephone took second place with a gain of 1⅛ at 69⅜ on 309,200 shares following news of record earnings for the fourth quarter and 12 months. Profits for the year were the highest ever earned by a U.S. corporation.

Pure Oil also was active on fresh rumors of merger activity. It gained 3¼ despite some profit-taking near the end of the week. Commonwealth Oil, also rumored to be a merger candidate, gained ½ at 10¼, also in active dealings.

Steels continued narrowly mixed as contract negotiations wore on. On Friday the sessions were recessed until around mid-February to allow the union leaders more time to concentrate on their upcoming election.

Chrysler turned down 1¾, but Ford managed to gain ⅜. American Motors tacked on ¼, despite news that its top executives were taking pay cuts.

DuPont again was in favor and soared 6⅝. Eastman Kodak advanced 5½ and International Minerals & Chemical picked up 4½.

* * * *

THE LONG depressed electronics section came to life. IBM soared 15½ after touching a new 1964-65 low of 404 Tuesday. Control Data picked up 5, Litton 5⅝, Texas Instruments 2⅛ and Motorola 2½. Beckman, Honeywell and RCA were among the losers, dropping 1¼, 1⅜ and ⅞ respectively.

Anaconda was a strong spot in the metals with a gain of 4⅛. U.S. Smelting advanced 3. Mueller Brass gained 2⅝. Drugs met selective demand and Johnson & Johnson added 4½, Upjohn 3⅜ and Schering 2⅛.

Bestwall Gypsum jumped 4⅛ on news it is considering merging into Georgia Pacific. Georgia Pacific advanced 3⅜. International Harvester jumped 4⅞ after directors proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and dividend boost.

* * * *

CIGARETTE stocks were narrowly mixed despite the new report concerning smoking and health which is expected Monday. Lorillard gained 1, Liggett & Myers added ½, but American Tobacco lost the same amount.

Texas Gulf Sulphur picked up 5⅛ in fairly active dealings. Comsat shed a point. American Telephone proposed last week that it jointly own Comsat's first four ground stations.

Gold shares bounced around during the week and finished easier. American South Africa added 1 but Homestake Mining dropped 1⅛ and Dome Mines gave up 1¼.

Polaroid and Xerox showed only fractional gains. Western Maryland Railway slipped 1⅞ despite a dividend boost.

THERE ARE STREETWALKERS

AND THERE ARE STREET WALKERS . . . JUST AS THERE ARE AMBITIOUS MEN—AND AMBITIOUS MEN!

SOME MEN EXPRESS THEIR AMBITION VOCALLY—OTHERS THRU ACTION! WHEN IT COMES TO DEFINITION WE DEFINE AN AMBITIOUS MAN THUSLY:
1. ONE WHO WANTS TO UTILIZE HIS FULL POTENTIALITY.
2. ONE WHO CONSISTENTLY STRIVES TO SURPASS HIS PREVIOUS PERFORMANCE.
3. ONE WHO IS BOTH ABLE AND WILLING TO LEARN.
4. ONE WHO IS DETERMINED TO BE A SUCCESS . . . NOW, NOT AT "SOME LATER DATE."

SEE WHAT WE MEAN! NOW CARRYING THIS A STEP FURTHER—THERE ARE JOBS AND THERE ARE JOBS—SOME VIRTUALLY OFFER THE "MOON & SIX PENCE" . . . ALL YOURS AT "SOME LATER DATE."

AS FOR US, WE OFFER AN IMMEDIATE FUTURE COMPRISED OF FANTASTIC EARNINGS, UNEQUALLED PRESTIGE AND SUCCESS—PROVIDING YOU HAVE WHAT IT TAKES:

AMBITION

IF YOU HAVE WHAT IT TAKES WHY NOT CALL MR. GRANT AT 925-4979 AND LET HIM KNOW ABOUT IT?

2 HATE PUBLICITY, 3RD FANATICALLY AGAINST IT

Did Ian Fleming Exit Chuckling Over 3 Left 'Extravagance' Bequests?

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The bequest sounded more like James Bond than his creator, Ian Fleming.

Bond, flicking away a last cigarette in the death chamber of Smersh, would exit chuckling about his three friends.

But would Fleming, the urbane man-of-the-world, take the same delight in their predicament?

When Fleming died last Aug. 12, thus closing down what he called "the smallest and most profitable one man factory" in existence, his will showed bequests of 500 pounds—$1,400 — each to three friends on condition they spent it within 19 months "on something extravagance."

Fleming could have simply left them the money to do with as they pleased, in which event no more would have been heard of it. But the injunction to commit extravagance turned the spotlight of public interest on them.

As the author of the James Bond novels must have known it would.

Two of the trio are fanatically opposed to personal publicity. The third hates it.

"It seems to have caused them a spot of embarrassment," said Fleming's secretary, Miss Griffy Williams. "But I'm sure the money was bequeathed with the best will in the world. They were among his dearest friends."

She did not think it was a last joke from Fleming—it was more in Bond's character than his own.

One of Bond's three legatees is the poet and author William Plomer who is such a recluse he does not even have a telephone in his country cottage and has to be contacted by mail through his publishers.

IAN FLEMING
Bond-Like Bequests

When Fleming created James Bond in "Casino Royale" to, as he said later, "soothe my nerves before the appalling business of getting married in 1952," it was Plomer who persuaded him to continue and develop the character of Secret Agent 007—licensed to kill.

Plomer has not yet received the bequest—none of the trio has and there is no firm word when it will be handed over.

"The fact is," Plomer wrote UPI, "I have not decided how to spend the money left to me by Ian Fleming."

Author Robert Harling, who served with Fleming in British Naval Intelligence during the last war, is more approachable but not much.

"Private life," he said, speaking in telegraphically short sentences. "Fight hard to keep it. Will buy rare books on architecture. Probably 18th Century editions. Sorry. No photographs, please."

Mrs. Lisl Popper, an Austrian widow and international designer, met Fleming when she was 17 (and he was 18) and they went skiing together.

"I don't like photographs of myself in newspapers," she said. "Some people came to the door once and took one and the next day my friends telephoned and said: 'Since when have you become 90 years old?'

"To get rid of reporters I said I would spend the money on a trip to Burma. But that is too far for 500 pounds. It wouldn't leave anything for spending. No, when the money comes, I think I will go to Greece. To the mountains there. That will be extravagant, don't you think?"

Mrs. Popper is in her mid-fifties but elegant and clear-eyed and the kind of woman who, not too many years ago, might have fascinated James Bond.

AWARDS TO BE MADE

Scully to Give 'Golden Boy' Talk

Vin Scully, well-known Southern California sportscaster, will be the guest celebrity at the 10th annual Golden Boy award dinner Thursday, in the Petroleum Club.

VIN SCULLY
Guest Celebrity

Leading Long Beach citizens then will be recognized for meritorious service to the city's Boys' Club movement, according to William H. Cree Jr., president of the clubs' board of directors.

Top honor to be given is the "Golden Man and Boy" award for extraordinary service to the youth movement here. Winners in other years include Judge Fred Miller, Raymond Peterson, Guy S. Balser, Henry Clock, J. C. Ashbourne, Harold Parks, Will S. Taylor Jr., Herb Murphy and Maurice S. Hubbell.

General chairman for the dinner is Ray Stricklin. The program was arranged by Lester Callahan Jr. and Taylor.

Salinger Still in Politics, He Says in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger told Swedish televiewers Saturday he thought he would not be able to run for the U.S. Senate again "for four, or maybe six years."

Salinger spoke in a interview recorded shortly after he flew in from Paris with his son Saturday morning to spend the weekend with longtime Swedish friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Kalderen.

The former secretary and California senator, who lost his Senate seat in the recent elections, said he was working on a book at present, but had not quit politics.

Kalderen, an official in the Swedish Finance Ministry, has visited Salinger in Washington and California.

Malay Paper Praises Work of Peace Corps

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI)—The Malay Mail has applauded the usefulness of the U.S. peace corps.

Under the title "Focus on 400 Quiet Americans," the daily commented specifically on the work of 15 American teachers who helped to improve health and sanitation in a northern village during their Christmas vacation.

The paper said the material contribution of the peace corps to Malaysia is considerable. It pointed out that in their absence many jobs might not have been done.

"Less measurable but more important is their achievement in creating better understanding between Americans and Malaysians," the editorial said.

Exchange Club Will Honor 'Boys of Year'

Winners of "Boy of the Year" awards from four Long Beach Boys' Clubs will be honored by the Exchange Club Wednesday.

Chairman James Morrison said honors will go to:

Mike Coster Jr., Lakewood branch; Stanley Nelson, North Branch; John Yayenberg, East Branch; Albert Nichols, West branch, and Charles Hoff Jr., camper of the year.

Honored guest and speaker at the meeting will be John Rambo, CSLB Olympic athlete, a former member of the Long Beach Boys' Club.

Mixed Up Bird

TOMAH, Wis. (UPI)—Psychologists at Tomah Veterans Hospital have failed to convince a cold, hungry robin in a bush outside their window that it's time to fly south.

The bird has been shivering in a bush outside the psychology department window for more than a month, living on a few berries and spurning goodies ranging from suet balls to baby cereal.

Frank Tanner will be installed Worshipful Master of Queen Beach Masonic Lodge No. 540 at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Masonic Temple, 234 Pine Ave.

U.S. Officials Study Plans to End Conscription

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Defense Department is studying plans costing all the way from $1 billion to $6 billion a year for ending the draft.

A note of urgency has been injected into the project because of doubt whether, with both political parties committed against it during the recent presidential campaign, the new Congress could be persuaded to extend the present draft authority which expires July 1, 1967.

Plans call for completing the studies by April in the hope of reaching a conclusion and getting early congressional action. And the hope, at least on the civilian side in the Defense Department, is that an all-volunteer force will result.

The problem is to get 400,000 recruits annually for the 2.7-million-man military services without either compulsion or the prospect of compulsion. At present around 100,000 men a year are inducted. It is no secret that many if not most of the other 300,000 sign up because they are facing the draft.

* * * * *

THE HIGH turnover means that 800,000 men, most of them drawing less than $100 a month in addition to their uniforms and keep, are always in their first two years of service. Pay for this category of service has not been increased since 1952.

The first suggestion has been that if pay for the first two years were doubled, adding say $100 a month on the average for 800,000 men, it would give youth a chance to save money during military service and might attract enough recruits. That cost would be under $1 billion a year.

For two reasons, however, the studies indicate this would not be enough. In the first place it would be the start of other unavoidable costs. In the second, it would not compete with private industry for the most talented youths.

Pay schedules would have to be revised farther up the line, the experts say, to assure recruits starting at the higher rates of steady advancement if they chose military careers.

And young men planning their futures are less interested than might be supposed in the initial pay, these experts add. Even the prospect of being able to save $1,000 a year might not appeal to many.

Lt Gen. Lewis B. Hershey has suggested a plan which would continue the Selective Service System he heads and call up all qualified youths for eight weeks of basic training.

* * * * *

THAT WOULD mean putting 1.5 million men through the basic course each year at a cost of more than $2 billion. It would give the military services a chance to recruit actively among the best qualified men.

There would remain the question whether a sufficient number could be persuaded to stay on if everything were voluntary beyond the first eight weeks. Hershey himself is said to doubt it.

One source of recruits, inadequate in itself but suggestive of other possibilities, will be the Army's rehabilitation program designed to qualify in three years 60,000 men who failed to pass their original physical and mental tests for military service.

The program, originally set to begin last November and now delayed until early next year for congressional consideration, assumes that in a large percentage of cases the deficiency of rejectees can be remedied by a short period of training.

* * * * *

THE OTHER possibilities suggested include various training and educational projects designed to appeal to young men and to improve their earning power in later life.

Defense manpower experts are convinced that at its present size the military establishment must compete with colleges and universities to some extent, as well as with private industry, if service is to be on an all-voluntary basis.

The civilian reserves, especially the National Guard, are vitally involved because they also depend partly on the draft to maintain their strength. The six-month training program, for example, is a major source of reserve recruits and may get few volunteers if the draft ends.

Recent figures show that 181,600 Army civilian reservists, including guardsmen, are men who had taken the six-month course—which in practice runs four to 10 months according to type of training.

* * * * *

THESE MEN have a three-year obligation for active civilian duty when they complete their training. When Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced his program to abolish the organized Army Reserve they constituted 50,000 of the 276,000 men in those units.

McNamara at the same time proposed to increase the guard's authorized strength from 400,000 to 550,000. This would be accomplished initially by transfer of reservists to the guard. But later the guard, now at 376,000 men, may have difficulty recruiting up to the new figure.

The teen-ager wondering how to discharge his military obligation, or whether he will have one, meanwhile is left to guess with everyone else. So powerful a figure as Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has voiced doubt whether the draft can be ended by any satisfactory means.

Iraq Plans 1,200-Foot TV Tower

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Iraqi government is planning a 1,200-foot tower to soar above Baghdad and the Tigris River.

It is to be a television station and tourist attraction with two revolving restaurants.

The government has signed a contract with Hannes Lintl architects of Vienna, who designed the 750-foot Danube tower in Austria and are planning a needle-like spire for Montreal's 1967 fair.

Ali Obeideh, director of planning and projects in the ministry of guidance, says construction is to begin this year or next. The cost is estimated at $5 million. Some Iraquis complain the tower will use money that could be spent on development projects.

Pan Am Switches to Kerosene for Jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pan American World Airways disclosed it is changing to kerosene as the fuel for its jet planes, and ending use of a more volatile fuel it says has been unjustly criticized.

It said the change may increase Pan American's annual fuel bill by hundreds of thousands of dollars, because the fuel it is abandoning is both lighter and less expensive than kerosene.

2 HATE PUBLICITY, 3RD FANATICALLY AGAINST IT

Did Ian Fleming Exit Chuckling Over 3 Left 'Extravagance' Bequests?

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — The bequest sounded more like James Bond than his creator, Ian Fleming.

Bond, flicking away a last cigarette in the death chamber of Smersh, would exit chuckling about his three friends.

But would Fleming, the urbane man-of-the-world, take the same delight in their predicament?

When Fleming died last Aug. 12, thus closing down what he called "the smallest and most profitable one man factory" in existence, his will showed bequests of 500 pounds—$1,400 — each to three friends on condition they spent it within 19 months "on something extravagance."

Fleming could have simply left them the money to do with as they pleased, in which event no more would have been heard of it. But the injunction to commit extravagance turned the spotlight of public interest on them.

As the author of the James Bond novels must have known it would.

Two of the trio are fanatically opposed to personal publicity. The third hates it.

"It seems to have caused them a spot of embarrassment," said Fleming's secretary, Miss Griffy Williams. "But I'm sure the money was bequeathed with the best will in the world. They were among his dearest friends."

She did not think it was a last joke from Fleming—it was more in Bond's character than his own.

One of Bond's three legatees is the poet and author William Plomer who is such a recluse he does not even have a telephone in his country cottage and has to be contacted by mail through his publishers.

IAN FLEMING
Bond-Like Bequests

When Fleming created James Bond in "Casino Royale" to, as he said later, "soothe my nerves before the appalling business of getting married in 1952," it was Plomer who persuaded him to continue and develop the character of Secret Agent 007—licensed to kill.

Plomer has not yet received the bequest—none of the trio has and there is no firm word when it will be handed over.

"The fact is," Plomer wrote UPI, "I have not decided how to spend the money left to me by Ian Fleming."

Author Robert Harling, who served with Fleming in British Naval Intelligence during the last war, is more approachable but not much.

"Private life," he said, speaking in telegraphically short sentences. "Fight hard to keep it. Will buy rare books on architecture. Probably 18th Century editions. Sorry. No photographs, please."

Mrs. Lisl Popper, an Austrian widow and international designer, met Fleming when she was 17 (and he was 18) and they went skiing together.

"I don't like photographs of myself in newspapers," she said. "Some people came to the door once and took one and the next day my friends telephoned and said: 'Since when have you become 90 years old?'

"To get rid of reporters I said I would spend the money on a trip to Burma. But that is too far for 500 pounds. It wouldn't leave anything for spending. No, when the money comes, I think I will go to Greece. To the mountains there. That will be extravagant, don't you think?"

Mrs. Popper is in her mid-fifties but elegant and clear-eyed and the kind of woman who, not too many years ago, might have fascinated James Bond.

AWARDS TO BE MADE

Scully to Give 'Golden Boy' Talk

Vin Scully, well-known Southern California sportscaster, will be the guest celebrity at the 10th annual Golden Boy award dinner Thursday, in the Petroleum Club.

Leading Long Beach citizens then will be recognized for meritorious service to the city's Boys' Club movement, according to William H. Cree Jr., president of the clubs' board of directors.

Top honor to be given is the "Golden Man and Boy" award for extraordinary service to the youth movement here. Winners in other years include Judge Fred Miller, Raymond Peterson, Guy S. Balser, Henry Clock, J. C. Ashbourne, Harold Parks, Will S. Taylor Jr., Herb Murphy and Maurice S. Hubbell.

General chairman for the dinner is Ray Stricklin. The program was arranged by Lester Callahan Jr. and Taylor.

Salinger Still in Politics, He Says in Sweden

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger told Swedish televiewers Saturday he thought he would not be able to run for the U.S. Senate again "for four, or maybe six years."

Salinger spoke in a interview recorded shortly after he flew in from Paris with his son Saturday morning to spend the weekend with long-time Swedish friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lars Kalderen.

The former secretary and California senator, who lost his Senate seat in the recent elections, said he was working on a book at present, but had not quit politics.

Kalderen, an official in the Swedish Finance Ministry, has visited Salinger in Washington and California.

Malay Paper Praises Work of Peace Corps

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (UPI)—The Malay Mail has applauded the usefulness of the U.S. peace corps.

Under the title "Focus on 400 Quiet Americans,' the daily commented specifically on the work of 15 American teachers who helped to improve health and sanitation in a northern village during their Christmas vacation.

The paper said the material contribution of the peace corps to Malaysia is considerable. It pointed out that in their absence many jobs might not have been done.

"Less measurable but more important is their achievement in creating better understanding between Americans and Malaysians," the editorial said.

Exchange Club Will Honor 'Boys of Year'

Winners of "Boy of the Year" awards from four Long Beach Boys' Clubs will be honored by the Exchange Club Wednesday.

Chairman James Morrison said honors will go to:

Mike Coster Jr., Lakewood branch; Stanley Nelson, North Branch; John Yayenberg, East Branch; Albert Nichols, West branch, and Charles Hoff Jr., camper of the year.

Honored guest and speaker at the meeting will be John Rambo, CSLB Olympic athlete, a former member of the Long Beach Boys' Club.

Mixed Up Bird

TOMAH, Wis. (UPI)—Psychologists at Tomah Veterans Hospital have failed to convince a cold, hungry robin in a bush outside their window that it's time to fly south.

The bird has been shivering in a bush outside the psychology department window for more than a month, living on a few berries and spurning goodies ranging from suet balls to baby cereal.

U.S. Officials Study Plans to End Conscription

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department is studying plans costing all the way from $1 billion to $6 billion a year for ending the draft.

A note of urgency has been injected into the project because of doubt whether, with both political parties committed against it during the recent presidential campaign, the new Congress could be persuaded to extend the present draft authority which expires July 1, 1967.

Plans call for completing the studies by April in the hope of reaching a conclusion and getting early congressional action. And the hope, at least on the civilian side in the Defense Department, is that an all-volunteer force will result.

The problem is to get 400,000 recruits annually for the 2.7-million-man military services without either compulsion or the prospect of compulsion. At present around 100,000 men a year are inducted. It is no secret that many if not most of the other 300,000 sign up because they are facing the draft.

* * * *

THE HIGH turnover means that 800,000 men most of them drawing less than $100 a month in addition to their uniforms and keep, are always in their first two years of service. Pay for this category of service has not been increased since 1952.

The first suggestion has been that if pay for the first two years were doubled, adding say $100 a month on the average for 800,000 men, it would give youth a chance to save money during military service and might attract enough recruits. That cost would be under $1 billion a year.

For two reasons, however, the studies indicate this would not be enough. In the first place it would be the start of other unavoidable costs. In the second, it would not compete with private industry for the most talented youths.

Pay schedules would have to be revised farther up the line, the experts say, to assure recruits starting at the higher rates of steady advancement if they chose military careers.

And young men planning their futures are less interested than might be supposed in the initial pay, these experts add. Even the prospect of being able to save $1,000 a year might not appeal to many.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey has suggested a plan which would continue the Selective Service System he heads and call up all qualified youths for eight weeks of basic training.

* * * *

THAT WOULD mean putting 1.5 million men through the basic course each year at a cost of more than $2 billion. It would give the military services a chance to recruit [illegible] among the best qualified men.

There would remain the question whether a sufficient number could be persuaded to stay on if everything were voluntary beyond the first eight weeks. Hershey himself is said to doubt it.

One source of recruits, inadequate in itself but suggestive of other possibilities, will be the Army's rehabilitation program designed to qualify in three years 60,000 men who failed to pass their original physical and mental tests for military service.

The program, originally set to begin last November and now delayed until early next year for congressional consideration, assumes that in a large percentage of cases the deficiency of rejectees can be remedied by a short period of training.

* * * *

THE OTHER possibilities suggested include various training and educational projects designed to appeal to young men and to improve their earning power in later life.

Defense manpower experts are convinced that at its present size the military establishment must compete with colleges and universities to some extent, as well as with private industry, if service is to be on an all-voluntary basis.

The civilian reserves, especially the National Guard, are vitally involved because they also depend partly on the draft to maintain their strength. The six - month training program, for example, is a major source of reserve recruits and may get few volunteers if the draft ends.

Recent figures show that 181,600 Army civilian reservists, including guardsmen, are men who had taken the six-month course—which in practice runs four to 10 months according to type of training.

* * * *

THESE MEN have a three-year obligation for active civilian duty when they complete their training. When Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara announced his program to abolish the organized Army Reserve they constituted 50,000 of the 276,000 men in those units.

McNamara at the same time proposed to increase the guard's authorized strength from 400,000 to 550,000. This would be accomplished initially by transfer of reservists to the guard. But later the guard, now at 376,000 men, may have difficulty recruiting up to the new figure.

The teen-ager wondering how to discharge his military obligation, or whether he will have one, meanwhile is left to guess with everyone else. So powerful a figure as Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has voiced doubt whether the draft can be ended by any satisfactory means.

Iraq Plans 1,200-Foot TV Tower

BAGHDAD, Iraq (UPI) — The Iraqi government is planning a 1,200-foot tower to soar above Baghdad and the Tigris River.

It is to be a television station and tourist attraction with two revolving restaurants.

The government has signed a contract with Hannes Lintl architects of Vienna, who designed the 750-foot Danube tower in Austria and are planning a needle-like spire for Montreal's 1967 fair.

Ali Obeideh, director of planning and projects in the ministry of guidance, says construction is to begin this year or next. The cost is estimated at $5 million. Some Iraquis complain the tower will use money that could be spent on development projects.

Pan Am Switches to Kerosene for Jets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pan American World Airways disclosed it is changing to kerosene as the fuel for its jet planes, and ending use of a more volatile fuel it says has been unjustly criticized.

It said the change may increase Pan American's annual fuel bill by hundreds of thousands of dollars, because the fuel it is abandoning is both lighter and less expensive

Celtics Frustrate Lakers, 107-103, for 12th in Row

By DOUG IVES

Walt Hazzard came of age as a pro Saturday night, but Fred Schaus aged in quite another fashion as his Lakers melted like butter in a hot sun before a torrid Boston comeback that netted the world champions a 107-103 victory.

A season-high crowd of 14,949 in the L.A. Sports Arena was enthralled by an inspired Laker team, and especially Hazzard, until the final seven minutes when their dream house began to collapse.

With 7:03 showing on the clock, the Lakers seemed destined to win their first game over the Celtics since mid-November. The score was 100-90 and the battle-weary Beantowners were (or so it seemed) starting to show the effects of playing four games in four nights.

• • • •

BUT AT THIS juncture, Hazzard came out for a well-deserved rest. And with his parting, the Lakers' fast-break became a slow trot, since his replacement, Don Nelson, hardly was the man qualified to keep the team moving.

As it turned out, the Lakers scored exactly three points in those final seven minutes while the Celtics were tallying 17—five each by Sam Jones, John Havlicek and Bill Russell.

With 3:15 remaining, Elgin Baylor's basket gave the Lakers a 103-102 margin, but they never put the ball in the hoop again as the always-tenacious Celtic defense galvanized into action to completely throttle the by-now dog-tired Lakers.

• • • •

SAM JONES' bank shot at 2:53 was the clincher, but he added a free throw at 2:16 and Tom Sanders two foul throws at 1:32 for frosting on the cake. The Lakers, meanwhile, put up 20 shots in the final quarter and made only four. Their period output was 13 points.

The Lakers led by 8 after one period, by 1 at halftime and by 5 after three periods, and it was Hazzard's crisp passing and timely baskets (he scored 12 points) that enabled Jerry West and Baylor to get clear shots.

West finished with 33 points and Baylor 23.

Schaus was enraged following the heartbreaking loss, saying merely "we blew it, that's all there is to say," but he did find time for kind words in Hazzard's behalf.

"He's never been better. He did everything we expected and more. He'll definitely start in our next game." The Lakers hit the road today and will battle Detroit in Pittsburgh Monday night.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH the Lakers clearly squandered this one away, you have to throw bouquets to the Celtics, too, for they had to take advantage of the Lakers' breakdown, and they did in the true fashion of a champion.

This was Boston's 12th consecutive win, including fourth in a row over the Lakers, and it ran the club's season record to a fantastic 37-7. The Celtics win percentage is .841 and that's well ahead of their NBA record pace of .750 (60-20) set in 1961-62.

The above standard is for an 80-game season. The Celtics actually had a better percentage (.786) when they won 59 and lost 16 during a 75-game season in 1959-60.

• • • •

WHAT IS perhaps more fantastic is that the Beantowners have won 10 of their last 12 contests on the road. Moreover, they've lost only once in their last 20 games, and that to the Knicks on a neutral court in Providence, Rhode Island.

Darrall Imhoff, who started in favor of Gene Wiley, played a strong game against Russell, or at least as good as can be expected against the bearded phenom. Russell still managed 18 points and 25 rebounds.

The Lakers outshot the Celtics 44% to 37, and trailed them only 75-74 in rebounds as Baylor, Leroy Ellis and Imhoff each picked off 14 to counteract Russell's total.

Still, the Celtics won . . . as usual.

Favored Palmer 7 Strokes Off With No Birdies

By JERRY WYNN

It's two for the money with two to go in the big golf show at old Rancho.

California's Bill Casper and Florida's Dan Sikes are tied for the lead after the second round of the $75,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

Casper, the first-round pacesetter, shot a one-over par 72 for 138 Saturday and was caught by a 67 burst by Sikes.

"I putted like gangbusters," said Sikes, a full-fledged attorney who has found courting golf purses more profitable than law cases. He is no relation to Dick Sikes, golf's "rookie of the year," even though both are former National Public Links champions.

SIKES

One stroke behind the leaders is defending champion Paul Harney, who carded a 71. Dapper Doug Sanders (70) and longshot Babe Hiskey (72) are tied for fourth spot at 140, and among seven players at 141 are former champion Art Wall (69) and Champagne Tony Lema (71).

They are the only players to break par for two rounds over the long, humpty-dumpty Rancho layout.

• • • •

SITUATED seven strokes off the pace at 145 is tournament favorite Arnold Palmer. Unable to bag a single birdie, Palmer shot 73 Saturday to disappoint the majority of the day's gallery of 17,500 which bit at his heels.

Among other star contenders, PGA champion Bobby Nichols (72) and former champion Gene Littler (69) are at 142 and U.S. Open king Ken Venturi (72) is at 144.

Cutoff score to advance into today's third round was 148. Notable among casualties are former champions Dow Finsterwald and Mike Souchak, Lionel Hebert and Long Beach's Wayne Sleppy.

• • • •

CURSED WITH poor luck (see story on page D-4), Sleppy shot a 77 for 151. Wasted in his effort were two outstanding iron shots—a 4-iron 2 feet off the pin on the 14th and a full wedge stiff to the pin on the 16th—both for birdies.

Casper blamed the loss of his putting touch for his leap from 66 Friday to 72 Saturday. "I got the ball closer to the hole today," he said, "but couldn't get it in."

Both of Bill's birdies came on 18-inch taps on par-five holes and he committeed the unpardonable sin (for him) of three-putting.

• • • •

ALTHOUGH hitherto unsuccessful in his California forays, Sikes is no sleeper. He won more than $20,000 in

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—National champion UCLA won its 11th consecutive game Saturday night with a resounding 83-53 victory over Pacific Athletic Conference rival Oregon State.

UCLA used its famed pressing defense to build an early lead, and forced Oregon State into numerous fouls and ball-handling errors with its speed.

In the first two minutes the game was tied twice, but then UCLA scored six straight points and was on its way. At halftime the UCLA lead was 13 points, 39-26.

• • • •

BOTH TEAMS made 10 of 27 field goal attempts in the first half, but UCLA had a wide edge at the foul line, making 19 of 26 while Oregon State sank 6 of 9.

UCLA held a wide rebounding edge, 57-39.

The game's high scorer was Oregon State's Jim Jarvis with 28 points.

Keith Erickson led UCLA with 22, and teammate Gail Goodrich had 16. Four UCLA players scored in double figures.

For the game, UCLA made 26 of 62 field goal attempts for 42%, and Oregon State had 20 of 59 for 34%.

BELINSKY IN HAWAII, MAY SUE IN L.A.

HONOLULU (UPI)—Philadelphia Phillies southpaw pitcher Bo Belinsky arrived here Saturday for a month-long vacation.

But, according to Belinsky, his rest may be punctuated by some legal fireworks in Los Angeles on Tuesday.

"Paul Caruso, my attorney, may file a suit against the Angels if we don't hear from Ford Frick by that time," Belinsky said. The colorful left-hander is seeking $5,000 in wages lost as a result of his suspension after he allegedly hit sports writer Braven Dyer.

"I was judged guilty from the very start," Bo claimed. Belinsky pleaded his case before Frick "about three months ago and I have not heard any decision on it. "We (Caruso and Belinsky) think that's long enough to take something under consideration."

'Diver Wins Handily, but Candy Dandy

By ERNIE MASON

Native Diver took a typical front-running victory in the $58,650 San Carlos Handicap at Santa Anita Saturday and Candy Spot's fans were encouraged by their horse's second-place effort in his comeback campaign.

Native Diver made it look easy in the seven-furlong race for the sprint championship of the winter as he opened up a four-length lead down the backstretch and then held off Candy Spots in the stretch to win by better than three lengths.

For the 6-year-old gelded son of Imbros it was his 18th stakes victory over a California track and his second of the meeting, the speedster having captured the Palos Verdes Handicap on opening day.

Although he failed to catch Native Diver, Candy Spots demonstrated he was still coming back to his form of 1963 when he was the leading money-winner in the nation before he broke down in the fall of that year.

Bonjour was a half-length back of Candy Spots while Gamin was a distant fourth in the field of nine starters.

Second choice by a narrow margin to Candy Spots, Native Diver paid $5.60, $3.00 and $2.60 across the board. Candy Spots paid $3.00 and $2.40 while Bonjour returned $4.00 for show.

The winning time of 1:21-2/5 was just two-fifths of a second off the stakes record set by Bolero in 1951.

At the start of the rich sprint stakes, which ranks with the Carter Handicap and the Los Angeles Handicap as one of the three richest sprint races in the nation, Sledge broke in front.

But that was only until jockey Jerry Lambert could shift gears and get Native Diver into high. By the time the field had gone less than an eighth of a mile, Native Diver was in front.

Coming around the turn, Candy Spots came around National and moved up to second but Native Diver by then had the lead he needed to coast to his victory.

$200,000 FOR HUARTE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Notre Dame's John Huarte ($200,000) signed Saturday to battle Alabama's Joe Namath ($400,000) for the No. 1 quarterback job with the 1965 New York Jets of the American Football League.

It was believed the 21-year-old Heisman Trophy winner from Anaheim signed a contract for three years with eventual benefits of about $200,000 possibly spread over a longer term.

Huarte was drafted sixth by the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League who are coached by his one-time Notre Dame mentor, Joe Kuharich.

"The Eagles made a quite comparable offer," Huarte admitted. "But the money was just one of the factors. I want to go on to graduate school in business administration and two of the best for my purposes — Columbia and New York U. — are right here."

As for Namath, who signed for an estimated $400,000 over three years, the side-armed Notre Dame passer said, "I have a lot of respect for him but football is competition — as life is competition — and I seem to thrive on it."

Another quarterback drafted by the Jets, Columbia's Archie Roberts, is still deciding between a pro football career and medicine. Once leaning towards the Jets, Roberts now indicates he prefers the Cleveland Browns and Western Reserve College in Cleveland.

Celtics Frustrate Lakers, 107-103, for 12th in Row

By DOUG IVES

Walt Hazzard came of age as a pro Saturday night, but Fred Schaus aged in quite another fashion as his Lakers melted like butter in a hot sun before a torrid Boston comeback that netted the world champions a 107-103 victory.

A season-high crowd of 14,949 in the L.A. Sports Arena was enthralled by an inspired Laker team, and especially Hazzard, until the final seven minutes when their dream house began to collapse.

With 7:03 showing on the clock, the Lakers seemed destined to win their first game over the Celtics since mid-November. The score was 100-90 and the battle-weary Beantowners were (or so it seemed) starting to show the effects of playing four games in four nights.

* * * *

BUT AT THIS juncture, Hazzard came out for a well-deserved rest. And with his parting, the Lakers' fast-break became a slow trot, since his replacement, Don Nelson, hardly was the man qualified to keep the team moving.

As it turned out, the Lakers scored exactly three points in those final seven minutes while the Celtics were tallying 17—five each by Sam Jones, John Havlicek and Bill Russell.

With 3:15 remaining, Elgin Baylor's basket gave the Lakers a 103-102 margin, but they never put the ball in the hoop again as the always-tenacious Celtic defense galvanized into action to completely throttle the by-now dog-tired Lakers.

* * * *

SAM JONES' bank shot at 2:53 was the clincher, but he added a free throw at 2:16 and Tom Sanders two foul throws at 1:32 for frosting on the cake. The Lakers, meanwhile, put up 20 shots in the final quarter and made only four. Their period output was 13 points.

The Lakers led by 8 after one period, by 1 at halftime and by 5 after three periods, and it was Hazzard's crisp passing and timely baskets (he scored 12 points) that enabled Jerry West and Baylor to get clear shots.

West finished with 33 points and Baylor 23.

Schaus was enraged following the heartbreaking loss, saying merely "we blew it, that's all there is to say," but he did find time for kind words in Hazzard's behalf.

"He's never been better. He did everything we expected and more. He'll definitely start in our next game." The Lakers hit the road today and will battle Detroit in Pittsburgh Monday night.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH the Lakers clearly squandered this one away, you have to throw bouquets to the Celtics, too, for they had to take advantage of the Lakers' breakdown, and they did in the true fashion of a champion.

This was Boston's 12th consecutive win, including fourth in a row over the Lakers, and it ran the club's season record to a fantastic 37-7. The Celtics win percentage is .841 and that's well ahead of their NBA record pace of .750 (60-20) set in 1961-62.

The above standard is for an 80-game season. The Celtics actually had a better percentage (.786) when they won 59 and lost 16 during a 75-game season in 1959-60.

* * * *

WHAT IS perhaps more fantastic is that the Beantowners have won 10 of their last 12 contests on the road. Moreover, they've lost only once in their last 20 games, and that to the Knicks on a neutral court in Providence, Rhode Island.

Darrall Imhoff, who started in favor of Gene Wiley, played a strong game against Russell, or at least as good as can be expected against the bearded phenom. Russell still managed 18 points and 25 rebounds.

The Lakers outshot the Celtics 44% to 37, and trailed them only 75-74 in rebounds as Baylor, Leroy Ellis and Imhoff each picked off 14 to counteract Russell's total.

Still, the Celtics won . . . as usual.

Celtic center Bill Russell, NBA's defender deluxe, tries hand on offense, but Laker Darrall Imhoff applies enough pressure to thwart effort. Russell missed shot and official missed foul, one of few times Laker defense managed to best Boston offense.

Favored Palmer 7 Strokes Off With No Birdies

By JERRY WYNN

It's two for the money with two to go in the big golf show at old Rancho.

California's Bill Casper and Florida's Dan Sikes are tied for the lead after the second round of the $75,000 Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

Casper, the first-round pacesetter, shot a one-over par 72 for 138 Saturday and was caught by a 67 burst by Sikes.

"I putted like gangbusters," said Sikes, a full-fledged attorney who has found courting golf purses more profitable than law cases. He is no relation to Dick Sikes, golf's "rookie of the year," even though both are former National Public Links champions.

SIKES

One stroke behind the leaders is defending champion Paul Harney, who carded a 71. Dapper Doug Sanders (70) and longshot Babe Hiskey (72) are tied for fourth spot at 140, and among seven players at 141 are former champion Art Wall (69) and Champagne Tony Lema (71).

They are the only players to break par for two rounds over the long, humpty-dumpty Rancho layout.

* * * *

SITUATED seven strokes off the pace at 145 is tournament favorite Arnold Palmer. Unable to bag a single birdie, Palmer shot 73 Saturday to disappoint the majority of the day's gallery of 17,500 which bit at his heels.

Among other star contenders, PGA champion Bobby Nichols (72) and former champion Gene Littler (69) are at 142 and U.S. Open king Ken Venturi (72) is at 144.

Cutoff score to advance into today's third round was 148. Notable among casualties are former champions Dow Finsterwald and Mike Souchak, Lionel Hebert and Long Beach's Wayne Sleppy.

* * * *

CURSED WITH poor luck (see story on page D-4), Sleppy shot a 77 for 151. Wasted in his effort were two outstanding iron shots—a 4-iron 2 feet off the pin on the 14th and a full wedge stiff to the pin on the 16th—both for birdies.

Casper blamed the loss of his putting touch for his leap from 66 Friday to 72 Saturday. "I got the ball closer to the hole today," he said, "but couldn't get it in."

Both of Bill's birdies came on 18-inch taps on par-five holes and he committeed the unpardonable sin (for him) of three-putting.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH hitherto unsuccessful in his California forays, Sikes is no sleeper. He won more than $20,000 in

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—National champion UCLA won its 11th consecutive game Saturday night with a resounding 83-53 victory over Pacific Athletic Conference rival Oregon State.

UCLA used its famed pressing defense to build an early lead, and forced Oregon State into numerous fouls and ball-handling errors with its speed.

In the first two minutes the game was tied twice, but then UCLA scored six straight points and was on its way. At halftime the UCLA lead was 13 points, 39-26.

BOTH TEAMS made 10 of 27 field goal attempts in the first half, but UCLA had a wide edge at the foul line, making 19 of 26 while Oregon State sank 6 of 9.

UCLA held a wide rebounding edge, 57-39.

The game's high scorer was Oregon State's Jim Jarvis with 28 points.

Keith Erickson led UCLA with 22, and teammate Gail Goodrich had 16. Four UCLA players scored in double figures.

For the game, UCLA made 26 of 62 field goal attempts for 42%, and Oregon State had 20 of 59 for 34%.

BELINSKY IN HAWAII, MAY SUE IN L.A.

HONOLULU (UPI)—Philadelphia Phillies southpaw pitcher Bo Belinsky arrived here Saturday for a month-long vacation.

But, according to Belinsky, his rest may be punctuated by some legal fireworks in Los Angeles on Tuesday.

"Paul Caruso, my attorney, may file a suit against the Angels if we don't hear from Ford Frick by that time," Belinsky said. The colorful left-hander is seeking $5,000 in wages lost as a result of his suspension after he allegedly hit sports writer Braven Dyer.

"I was judged guilty from the very start," Bo claimed. Belinsky pleaded his case before Frick "about three months ago and I have not heard any decision on it. "We (Caruso and Belinsky) think that's long enough to take something under consideration."

'Diver Wins Handily, but Candy Dandy

By ERNIE MASON

Native Diver took a typical front-running victory in the $58,650 San Carlos Handicap at Santa Anita Saturday and Candy Spot's fans were encouraged by their horse's second-place effort in his comeback campaign.

Native Diver made it look easy in the seven-furlong race for the sprint championship of the winter as he opened up a four-length lead down the backstretch and then held off Candy Spots in the stretch to win by better than three lengths.

For the 6-year-old gelded son of Imbros it was his 18th stakes victory over a California track and his second of the meeting, the speedster having captured the Palos Verdes Handicap on opening day.

Although he failed to catch Native Diver, Candy Spots demonstrated he was still coming back to his form of 1963 when he was the leading money-winner in the nation before he broke down in the fall of that year.

Bonjour was a half-length back of Candy Spots while Gamin was a distant fourth in the field of nine starters.

Second choice by a narrow margin to Candy Spots, Native Diver paid $5.80, $3.00 and $2.60 across the board. Candy Spots paid $3.00 and $2.40 while Bonjour returned $4.00 for show.

The winning time of 1:21-2/5 was just two-fifths of a second off the stakes record set by Bolero in 1951.

At the start of the rich sprint stakes, which ranks with the Carter Handicap and the Los Angeles Handicap as one of the three richest sprint races in the nation, Sledge broke in front.

But that was only until jockey Jerry Lambert could shift gears and get Native Diver into high. By the time the field had gone less than an eighth of a mile, Native Diver was in front.

Coming around the turn, Candy Spots came around National and moved up to second but Native Diver by then had the lead he needed to coast to his victory.

$200,000 FOR HUARTE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Notre Dame's John Huarte ($200,000) signed Saturday to battle Alabama's Joe Namath ($400,000) for the No. 1 quarterback job with the 1965 New York Jets of the American Football League.

It was believed the 21-year-old Heisman Trophy winner from Anaheim signed a contract for three years with eventual benefits of about $200,000 possibly spread over a longer term.

Huarte was drafted sixth by the Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League who are coached by his one-time Notre Dame mentor, Joe Kuharich.

"The Eagles made a quite comparable offer," Huarte admitted. "But the money was just one of the factors. I want to go on to graduate school in business administration and two of the best for my purposes — Columbia and New York U. — are right here."

As for Namath, who signed for an estimated $400,000 over three years, the side-armed Notre Dame passer said, "I have a lot of respect for him but football is competition — as life is competition — and I seem to thrive on it."

Another quarterback drafted by the Jets, Columbia's Archie Roberts, is still deciding between a pro football career and medicine. Once leaning towards the Jets, Roberts now indicates he prefers the Cleveland Browns and Western Reserve College in Cleveland.

Football For Jockeys

With no intention of subtracting the importance of today's Pro Bowl game in the Coliseum—which has received reams of publicity—we'd like to report another bowl affair, which probably will receive virtually no publicity.

The Orange County Charity Bowl will be held a week from today at Garden Grove's Bolsa Grande High School Stadium. The Orange County Pop Warner All-Stars (7th and 8th graders) will contest Santa Anita's jockeys. Weight - wise, the junior high kids will have a considerable advantage. In the experience department, the jockeys will boast a decided edge.

BILL SHOEMAKER
"Head Linesman"

Jockey coach Paul Salata, the extrovert from USC and San Francisco's 49ers, who so capably handled a number of Century Club banquets here, has put a Hollywood touch into the affair. Salata not only will coach, but also will handle publicity.

Already he has set up a press, radio and TV day (Monday) at Arcadia Park Softball Field.

"We'll outdo the Rams, Dodgers and Angels for gimmicks," said Salata. "We'll have more pretty girls around Monday than the three of them combined. Imagine Willie Shoemaker holding up a pretty girl on each arm!"

I can't . . . unless the pretty girls" still are in the pre-school age bracket.

Wisely "Shoe" won't play against the kids, but instead will serve as a linesman, along with Ken Church. Milo Valenzuela will be on hand also, but merely as "Latin Representative," whatever that means.

Salata's jockey talent will run deep, none-the-less. Players will include Bill Hartack, Bill Harmatz, Ray York, Alex Maese, Merlin Volzke (gads, he's almost as old as Johnny Longden), Dean Hall, Dale Long, Clay and Gary Brinson, Jim Craswell, Basil Fraser, Phil Grohs, Popper Porter, Jim Ruggeri, Danny Velasquez and others (meaning exercise boys, who could spell the real trouble for the junior high opposition).

NO FOOL, Salata has surrounded himself with an expert staff of assistants. Jon Arnett is backfield coach, Marlin and Mike McKeever the line coaches, the Rams' Mickey Artunian defense coach, Sam Tsagalakis and Ben Agajanian will be the kicking coaches, with John McKay serving as advisory coach.

"We're particularly happy to have McKay," declared Salata. "He specializes in muddy fields and exciting finishes, even though he was forced to San Francisco instead of Pasadena for a bowl game."

Illustrating his all-around organizational talent, Salata even has signed a team veterinarian, Marco Rago, a prominent sewer contractor of Paul's acquaintance.

The jockeys will work out at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in Arcadia. Of particular interest on those dates will be the performance of Marco Rago. Will he or will he not administer the needle?

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. . . His close friends say that after his anger subsided when USC didn't get the Rose Bowl bid, Johnny McKay breathed a sigh of relief. Not that John didn't want his boys to represent the West in Pasadena, he merely was thinking of the strenuous social routine demanded of a Rose Bowl coach. Brother, that routine is BRUTAL.

. . . Maybe the AAWU teams should follow the example of the Big 10 and spend two evenings before the Rose Bowl game at a retreat house. All the Big 10 clubs relax at Mater Dolorosa in Sierra Madre . . . and their 15-3 record against us isn't too bad.

. . . Chuck Johnson reports that Michigan's Rose Bowl star Mel Anthony served at Mass at Mater Dolorosa before the Jan. 1 classic. Noting Mel's three-touchdown performance, the retreat director commented afterwards: "We gave Mel a set of wings."

. . . Did you catch Saturday's annual winter statement of the White Sox' Al Lopez that "the Yankees aren't the club to beat this year" in the American League? Maybe not, but it was refreshing to hear the senor's yearly observation. For a while, I thought Al was going to throw in the towel and give the Yankees their just due . . . and that would take all the fun from the junior league race.

MINNESOTA VIKING Pro Bowlers Tommy Mason and Fran Tarkenton said they never rooted so vociferously in their lives as they did the final day of the NFL season when the Rams played the Packers. A Ram win would have meant a trip to Miami for them. "The worst part about it," sighed Mason, "is that we got the game on radio after we beat the Bears and the Rams were ahead 24-10." Final score: 24-24.

. . . Tarkenton was elated over the news that the Vikes had secured Red Phillips from the Rams. "Red can run the patterns and always has been a top receiver in my book," said Fran. "We need help at end and I'm personally happy the Rams had no plans for Phillips. I will enjoy throwing to him." (The Rams hope he doesn't get TOO MUCH enjoyment.)

TRAFFIC JAM UNDER BASKET
Unidentified Bakersfield player emerges with ball as five men vie for rebound in Metro Conference opener. Identifiable Vikings are Mel Reed (42) and Bill Gordon (right).

Vikings Catch Kane After 97-65 Beating

By GARY RAUSCH

"We sure caught them flat," said Bakersfield coach Gil Bishop.

Chuck Kane, Long Beach City College mentor, wasn't making any comments. Instead he sent his troops through a gruelling one-hour practice session after they had been drubbed, 97-65, by the visiting Renegades Saturday night.

LBCC committed more ball control errors in the first seven minutes of action then in an entire half of any previous contest. The Vikings managed only one field goal attempt in the first three minutes and got off two more in the next 180 seconds.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the 'Gades, 9-8 on the year and 1-1 in Metro play, clicked off basket after basket and were in the driver's seat with a 14-point lead with less than eight minutes elapsed.

Long Beach cut the deficit to eight points once, but Bakersfield's pace was too much to handle. The Gades hit a blistering 70.6% from the floor in the first half and levelled off to a mere 54.3 after intermission for a 63.9 clip for the evening.

BC led by 30 with 15.41 remaining, but Bruce Ellinoy started a one-man scoring assault and sliced the deficit in half.

In seven minutes, Bruce the bruiser popped home 10 of the Vikes' 19 points while Bakersfield hit a cold spell and had three of its high-scoring starters foul out.

* * * *

THEN, when it looked like the Vikings were preparing a rally, Dennis McClure, Luc Willems and Mel Reed were also disqualified and that wrapped up the ball game.

Ellinoy was high man for the Vikes with 21 points but lost high game honors to the Gades' John Sienrukos who had 25. Long Beach's shooting percentage on the night was a cool 35.6%.

Ducks Survive 2nd-Half Slump, Trip Trojans, 81-74

EUGENE (AP)—Oregon survived a second-half slump Saturday night to defeat Southern California, 81-74, in a Pacific Athletic Conference basketball game.

All Oregon's starters scored more than 12 points, and no Oregon reserves scored.

Oregon led throughout the first half, holding a six-point lead at halftime, 38-32. But in the early stages of the second half Southern California rallied and took a 50-48 lead at 14:39.

The teams battled on even terms through the 50s, then Oregon regained its shooting form and built up an eight-point lead midway through the final half.

At one point in the second half, Oregon made 11 straight free throws.

Southern California's 6-9 junior center John Block was the game's leading scorer with 19 points.

For Oregon, Bill Jennings had 18, Jerry Anderson 17, Jim Barnett and Gene Brockmeyer 16 each, and Nick Jones 14.

Cal Defense, Olson's 21 Kill Cougars

BERKELEY (UPI)—Guard Robbie Olson scored 21 points and a pressing California defense did the rest Saturday night as the Bears rolled over Washington State, 63-46, in a Pacific Athletic Conference basketball battle.

Cal's leading scorer, Dan Wolthers, got into foul trouble early, but Olson and Mike Henderson, who hit 18, picked up the slack. Cal evened its conference record at 1-1.

Washington State, in losing its second straight conference game, fell behind early and was never in the contest. The Cougars made a so-so 34% of their shots, hit only 10 of 22 free throws and made numerous ball-control errors. Bud Norris led the Cougars with 12 points.

Indians Rip Washington; 30 for Bedell

STANFORD (UPI) — Bob Bedell had his finest game as a Stanford player Saturday when he scored 30 points while leading the Indians to an 80-68 victory over Washington in a Pacific Eight basketball game.

Bedell put away 19 points in the second half after the Huskies had cut Stanford's margin to five.

It marked the Indians' fifth straight win at home and gave them an overall season mark of seven wins against two defeats. The Huskies are 3-7 overall.

After Bedell broke loose, Stanford rolled up an 18-point edge and coasted the rest of the way in the televised contest.

Millikan Slips in for 3rd

By RALPH OLMO

Poly High didn't let up on Moore League rival Jordan until the last couple of minutes Saturday night in winning the Compton basketball tournament for the second consecutive year, 79-52.

Another Moore club, Millikan, placed third by beating Centennial, 64-62, on Dale Millette's last-minute lay-up, and the three Long Beach outfits swept seven of the 10 places on the all-tournaent team.

Poly's 5-8 senior guard, Mack Calvin, was named the tourney's most valuable player, and other Jackrabbits honored were Trent Gaines and Chuck Moore. Also, 6-7 center Phil Muckelroy was named the tourney's outstanding defensive player.

JORDAN players on the all-tourney team were Doug Franklin and Jon Thompson, and Millikan had Bob Davis and Millette.

Other selections were Arthur Montgomery, Centennial; Clark Mosely, Arroyo, and Cliff Hamilton, Loyola.

Poly, bringing its season record to 13 wins and 3 losses, was led by Gaines' 15 points and the defensive play of Ken Booker, who held the high-scoring Franklin to 11 points.

In a more exciting game, Millette put Millikan on top, 63-62, with 15 seconds remaining, then capped it with a free throw on a technical foul.

The Rams' junior forward, Davis, scored 24 points, but Centennial's Jesse Stasher led all scorers with 25 points.

Loyola defeated Arroyo, 69-58, in the consolation final.

Football For Jockeys

With no intention of subtracting the importance of today's Pro Bowl game in the Coliseum—which has received reams of publicity—we'd like to report another bowl affair, which probably will receive virtually no publicity.

The Orange County Charity Bowl will be held a week from today at Garden Grove's Bolsa Grande High School Stadium. The Orange County Pop Warner All-Stars (7th and 8th graders) will contest Santa Anita's jockeys. Weight - wise, the junior high kids will have a considerable advantage. In the experience department, the jockeys will boast a decided edge.

BILL SHOEMAKER
"Head Linesman"

Jockey coach Paul Salata, the extrovert from USC and San Francisco's 49ers, who so capably handled a number of Century Club banquets here, has put a Hollywood touch into the affair. Salata not only will coach, but also will handle publicity.

Already he has set up a press, radio and TV day (Monday) at Arcadia Park Softball Field.

"We'll outdo the Rams, Dodgers and Angels for gimmicks," said Salata. "We'll have more pretty girls around Monday than the three of them combined. Imagine Willie Shoemaker holding up a pretty girl on each arm!"

I can't . . . unless the pretty girls" still are in the pre-school age bracket.

Wisely "Shoe" won't play against the kids, but instead will serve as a linesman, along with Ken Church. Milo Valenzuela will be on hand also, but merely as "Latin Representative," whatever that means.

Salata's jockey talent will run deep, none-the-less. Players will include Bill Hartack, Bill Harmatz, Ray York, Alex Maese, Merlin Volzke (gads, he's almost as old as Johnny Longden), Dean Hall, Dale Long, Clay and Gary Brinson, Jim Craswell, Basil Fraser, Phil Grohs, Popper Porter, Jim Ruggeri, Danny Velasquez and others (meaning exercise boys, who could spell the real trouble for the junior high opposition).

NO FOOL, Salata has surrounded himself with an expert staff of assistants. Jon Arnett is backfield coach, Marlin and Mike McKeever the line coaches, the Rams' Mickey Artunian defense coach, Sam Tsagalakis and Ben Agajanian will be the kicking coaches, with John McKay serving as advisory coach.

"We're particularly happy to have McKay," declared Salata. "He specializes in muddy fields and exciting finishes, even though he was forced to San Francisco instead of Pasadena for a bowl game."

Illustrating his all-around organizational talent, Salata even has signed a team veterinarian, Marco Rago, a prominent sewer contractor of Paul's acquaintance.

The jockeys will work out at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday in Arcadia. Of particular interest on those dates will be the performance of Marco Rago. Will he or will he not administer the needle?

GRABBING THE BRASS RINGS:

. . . His close friends say that after his anger subsided when USC didn't get the Rose Bowl bid, Johnny McKay breathed a sigh of relief. Not that John didn't want his boys to represent the West in Pasadena, he merely was thinking of the strenuous social routine demanded of a Rose Bowl coach. Brother, that routine is BRUTAL.

. . . Maybe the AAWU teams should follow the example of the Big 10 and spend two evenings before the Rose Bowl game at a retreat house. All the Big 10 clubs relax at Mater Dolorosa in Sierra Madre . . . and their 15-3 record against us isn't too bad.

. . . Chuck Johnson reports that Michigan's Rose Bowl star Mel Anthony served at Mass at Mater Dolorosa before the Jan. 1 classic. Noting Mel's three-touchdown performance, the retreat director commented afterwards: "We gave Mel a set of wings."

. . . Did you catch Saturday's annual winter statement of the White Sox' Al Lopez that "the Yankees aren't the club to beat this year" in the American League? Maybe not, but it was refreshing to hear the senor's yearly observation. For a while, I thought Al was going to throw in the towel and give the Yankees their just due . . . and that would take all the fun from the junior league race.

MINNESOTA VIKING Pro Bowlers Tommy Mason and Fran Tarkenton said they never rooted so vociferously in their lives as they did the final day of the NFL season when the Rams played the Packers. A Ram win would have meant a trip to Miami for them. "The worst part about it," sighed Mason, "is that we got the game on radio after we beat the Bears and the Rams were ahead 24-10." Final score: 24-24.

. . . Tarkenton was elated over the news that the Vikes had secured Red Phillips from the Rams. "Red can run the patterns and always has been a top receiver in my book," said Fran. "We need help at end and I'm personally happy the Rams had no plans for Phillips. I will enjoy throwing to him." (The Rams hope he doesn't get TOO MUCH enjoyment.)

Mills Romps to Mile Win in 'Palace'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Billy Mills, who shocked the world by winning the 10,000-meter run in the 1964 Olympics, stunned a Cow Palace crowd of 11,412 Saturday night by kicking to victory in the mile in the second annual San Francisco Invitational indoor track meet.

The Marine lieutenant from Kansas, with one of the slower previous times of the field, stood off the strong finishing kick of Great Britain's Alan Simpson with a kick of his own on the last of 11 laps.

Mills led from the start and was timed in 4:08.1.

Unidentified Bakersfield player emerges with ball as five men vie for rebound in Metro Conference opener. Identifiable Vikings are Mel Reed (42) and Bill Gordon (right).

Vikings Catch Kane After 97-65 Beating

By GARY RAUSCH

"We sure caught them flat," said Bakersfield coach Gil Bishop.

Chuck Kane, Long Beach City College mentor, wasn't making any comments. Instead he sent his troops through a gruelling one-hour practice session after they had been drubbed, 97-65, by the visiting Renegades Saturday night.

LBCC committed more ball control errors in the first seven minutes of action then in an entire half of any previous contest. The Vikings managed only one field goal attempt in the first three minutes and got off two more in the next 180 seconds.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the 'Gades, 9-8 on the year and 1-1 in Metro play, clicked off basket after basket and were in the driver's seat with a 14-point lead with less than eight minutes elapsed.

Long Beach cut the deficit to eight points once, but Bakersfield's pace was too much to handle. The Gades hit a blistering 70.6% from the floor in the first half and levelled off to a mere 54.3 after intermission for a 63.9 clip for the evening.

BC led by 30 with 15:41 remaining, but Bruce Ellinoy started a one-man scoring assault and sliced the deficit in half.

In seven minutes, Bruce the bruiser popped home 10 of the Vikes' 19 points while Bakersfield hit a cold spell and had three of its high-scoring starters foul out.

* * * *

THEN, when it looked like the Vikings were preparing a rally, Dennis McClure, Luc Willems and Mel Reed were also disqualified and that wrapped up the ball game.

Ellinoy was high man for the Vikes with 21 points but lost high game honors to the Gades' John Sienrukos who had 25. Long Beach's shooting percentage on the night was a cool 35.6%.

Cal Defense, Olson's 21 Kill Cougars

BERKELEY (UPI) — Guard Robbie Olson scored 21 points and a pressing California defense did the rest Saturday night as the Bears rolled over Washington State, 63-46, in a Pacific Athletic Conference basketball battle.

Cal's leading scorer, Dan Wolthers, got into foul trouble early, but Olson and Mike Henderson, who hit 18, picked up the slack. Cal evened its conference record at 1-1.

Washington State, in losing its second straight conference game, fell behind early and was never in the contest. The Cougars made a so-so 34% of their shots, hit only 10 of 22 free throws and made numerous ball-control errors. Bud Norris led the Cougars with 12 points.

Indians Rip Washington; 30 for Bedell

STANFORD (UPI) — Bob Bedell had his finest game as a Stanford player Saturday when he scored 30 points while leading the Indians to an 80-68 victory over Washington in a Pacific Eight basketball game.

Bedell put away 19 points in the second half after the Huskies had cut Stanford's margin to five.

It marked the Indians' fifth straight win at home and gave them an overall season mark of seven wins against two defeats. The Huskies are 3-7 overall.

After Bedell broke loose, Stanford rolled up an 18-point edge and coasted the rest of the way in the televised contest.

JOCKEY DIES 22 YEARS AFTER SPILL

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Roby, 54-year-old former steeplechase rider, died Saturday from injuries suffered on June 1, 1942 when he was kicked in the head after his mount fell in a race at Belmont Park.

In the more than 22 years since the accident, he never moved nor spoke and had been hospitalized all that time. Survivors include his widow and two children.

At the time of his paralyzing injury, Roby was one of this country's top steeplechase riders. He won the 1941 Grand National at Belmont Park aboard Speculate.

Millikan Slips in for 3rd

By RALPH OLMO

Poly High didn't let up on Moore League rival Jordan until the last couple of minutes Saturday night in winning the Compton basketball tournament for the second consecutive year, 79-52.

Another Moore club, Millikan, placed third by beating Centennial, 64-62, on Dale Millette's last-minute lay-up, and the three Long Beach outfits swept seven of the 10 places on the all-tournaent team.

Poly's 5-8 senior guard, Mack Calvin, was named the tourney's most valuable player, and other Jackrabbits honored were Trent Gaines and Chuck Moore. Also, 6-7 center Phil Muckelroy was named the tourney's outstanding defensive player.

* * * *

JORDAN players on the all-tourney team were Doug Franklin and Jon Thompson, and Millikan had Bob Davis and Millette.

Other selections were Arthur Montgomery, Centennial; Clark Mosely, Arroyn, and Cliff Hamilton, Loyola.

Poly, bringing its season record to 13 wins and 3 losses, was led by Gaines' 15 points and the defensive play of Ken Booker, who held the high-scoring Franklin to 11 points.

In a more exciting game, Millette put Millikan on top, 63-62, with 15 seconds remaining, then capped it with a free throw on a technical foul.

The Rams' junior forward, Davis, scored 24 points, but Centennial's Jesse Stasher led all scorers with 25 points.

Loyola defeated Arroyn, 69-58, in the consolation final.

Oft-Maligned East Underdog in Pro Bowl

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Eastern Division of the National Football League will attempt to stage chapter three of "How the West Was Won" this afternoon at the Coliseum.

Already in possession of the NFL championship and Playoff Bowl crown, the oft-maligned East battles the West in the 15th annual Pro Bowl at 1 p.m.

A clear day and fast track are predicted with a crowd threatening the 1959 Pro Bowl record of 72,250 anticipated. The game, always straight from adventureland, will be augmented by a halftime spectacular entitled: "Disneyland Comes to the Coliseum."

This fantasy will feature the Coliseum debuts of the heralded Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck backed by the stirring sounds of the 130-piece Long Beach State College marching band, biggest on the West Coast. It will mark the first time the LBSC band has appeared before a "crowd" this season.

The West, which leads this series 9-5, is favored by five points, an interesting quotation which would only indicate there is not a touchdown difference between the two entries and, therefore, anything can happen.

The West was also favored in the title game and Playoff Bowl and the worst of all things happened. Baltimore and Green Bay both lost.

Blanton Collier, who masterminded the Browns' 27-0 victory over the Colts, will be at the East's helm and is confident the odds and the West's demeanor will be adjusted by nightfall.

"The East has been taken for granted for many years," said Collier. "I'm sure we can change the odds."

From the sidelines to the battle lines there will be interesting and sometimes savage rematches of that cold day in Cleveland. Collier will be opposed by his former pupil, the Baltimore coach, Don Shula. And there are seven Colts on the West and seven Browns on the East.

As revealed earlier in the I, P-T, the Colts will be conducting a vendetta, believing that Cleveland attempted to "pour it on" in their recent engagement.

So indicates Gino Marchetti, whose 10th Pro Bowl will be his last. Marchetti will aim his vengence at Cleveland quarterback Frank Ryan, who will start for the East.

On the West's firing line is Johnny Unitas, three times the Pro Bowl's player of the game, who also has a score to settle. Asked if the Cleveland defensive rush bothered him during the championship game, Unitas replied:

"No, the only guy who bothered me was Frank Ryan."

For those Pro Bowlers not bearing the colors of Cleveland and Baltimore, there are the incentives of pride and cash. The winners receive $1,000 each and the losers $700.

In the previous 14 Pro Bowls, the West has averaged 26 points per game and the East 21 and this looms as another paydirt parade. In the starting backfields are the most distinguished offensive talents of the era and, if possible, the West's unit of Unitas, Lenny Moore, Jim Taylor and Terry Barr is dulled by the presence of a truly magnificent East quartet.

Joining Ryan are Jim Brown, Charley Taylor and Bobby Mitchell. Add Paul Warfield at split end and one is prone to examine the mental state of those who establish the odds.

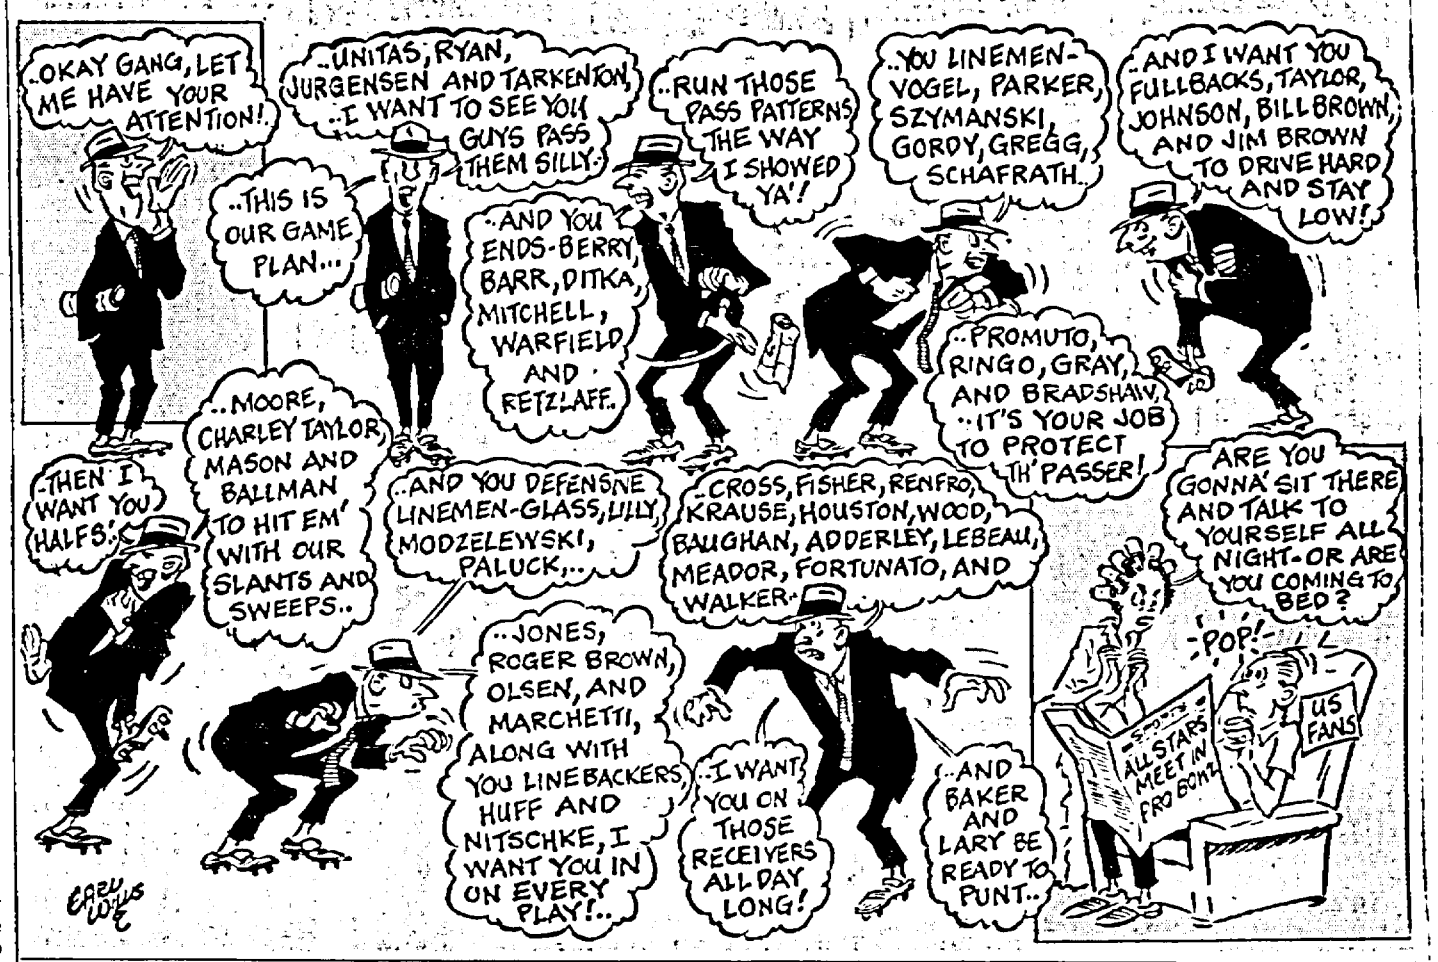

For Ram patrons, Merlin Olsen and Eddie Meador will occupy tackle and safety positions respectively in the West's defensive unit. Only two ex-Rams, Ryan and Charley Bradshaw, are present.

Should the East recoup the five-point deficit they have been awarded by the oddsmakers and the game end in a tie, there will be a sudden death overtime in which Unitas must be favored considering his experience in such matters.

The game will be radioed locally by KMPC and telecast nationally. Southern California will be blacked out. So may Ryan if the Colts have their way. Lineups:

That 'Dream Game' Is Today

Man to Man

WYNN

LEMA

By JERRY WYNN

You must like this guy.

A rascal from the wrong side of the Oakland tracks who couldn't make beer money on the tour for five years, Tony Lema today is sitting on top of the golf world sipping champagne.

It was Lema, not Jack Nicklaus or Arnold Palmer, who struck the largest vein in the 1964 PGA gold bonanza. Counting the $50,000 he won in golf's World Series, Champagne Tony earned $138,284.50 to the measly $113,000 and change for the "Big Two."

It was Lema who won the most tournaments, six, including the classic British Open and the classy Bing Crosby as well as three $100,000 events in a wild four-week summer spree capped by the World Series jackpot.

It was Lema who received our vote as Golfer of the Year.

Life began at 30 for the Champagne Kid.

Do you have the champagne truck poised near Rancho this weekend?

"No. I never prophecy what I'm going to do. But if I win, it's just liable to be there."

Do you really enjoy your champagne sessions with the press?

"Yes. But it's not the champagne. I love to be interviewed. It gives me a chance to communicate with people. It's a privilege."

The press is often accused of being partial to Arnold Palmer. Do you agree?

"No. That's not true. They've been very nice to me too. Palmer deserves all the good press he gets. I have a lot of respect for him and we're good friends."

Ken Venturi has challenged Palmer and Nicklaus to a match against you and Venturi. Which team would win?

..."I certainly think we would. What else can I say? It would be a very good match. The purse and course would be unimportant. I think it's a good challenge."

Did you ever dream five years ago that you would earn $138,000 playing golf in 1964?

"No. I honestly can't say I did. But in my first year on the tour in 1958, the leading money winner was making about $40,000. Now that would be just about 10th place on the money list. Everything has gone up."

With pro football rookies receiving $400,000, would you like to play quarterback for the Jets?

"No. But it would be tempting. As a kid I played basketball and baseball not football. I only watch that game. I root for the Oakland Raiders."

Are you pointing for any one tournament this year?

"One of the major championships in the United States. It's something that emplants your name in golf forever. Nobody can take it away from you."

What has been your greatest thrill in golf?

Winning the British Open. The full impact of golf hit me afterwards. A golfer gets seen on TV and written about in the newspapers and magazines. You have no idea how many fans you have, but it's obvious the kids are interested in knowing about you. This is a tremendous responsibility."

If you could trade places with any other athlete, who would you choose?

"I'm very happy to be me."

You must like this guy—Tony Lema.

Chi Chi Wins Again

DORADO BEACH, Puerto Rico (UPI)—Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez of Puerto Rico won his third straight individual Dorado Beach pro-amateur golf championship Saturday with a 71-67-72—210.

CARL BERNEKER
'Too Many Hours'

Berneker Quits Rams Grid Post

Carl Berneker, Millikan High's head football coach the past five years, has resigned his post. No successor has been named.

Berneker cited as reasons "the constant pressures and countless man hours it takes away from my family." He added, "it wasn't an instant decision; I felt I had five good years and that was enough."

Berneker will not completely retire from football, however. "The game is a part of me and I expect to remain in the program in some lesser capacity." He will stay at Millikan, perhaps assisting the Bees or jayvees.

* * * *

ALTHOUGH Berneker had been coach only since 1960, he and Jordan's Walt Anderson were the deans of Long Beach high school pilots.

Millikan's best season under Berneker was 1961 when the Rams posted a 6-2 record. Berneker's record was 17-22-1 overall and 12-13 in Moore League, where his teams finished third three times and second on the other two occasions.

Berneker coached Bee football at Millikan from 1956 through 1959 and two of his teams won league titles.

RADIO SHOW COVERS L.B. SPORTS FARE

Long Beach will have a community radio sports program beginning Monday.

Radio station KLFM, 105.5 on the FM dial will carry two sportscasts Monday through Friday.

The morning show, at 7:30, will be called "Sports on Toast." The afternoon program, at 5:15, will be known as "Sports Corner."

I, P-T staff writer Chuck Medick will handle both sportscasts. Medick will cover the local sports scene in depth as well as area and national events.

COLD CASH AND COLD STATS

Blades' Johnson Wins I, P-T Vote as Mid-Season MVP

By RICH ROBERTS

Just for a fresh breath of selfish honesty, it would be nice to hear a professional athlete say:

"I don't care if we win or lose; I just want to make the all-star team!"

Hopefully, few feel that way, but it has to be somewhere in the minds of certain Western Hockey League players these days as they skate into the second half of the campaign.

When the season is over the league will issue seven individual awards, each carrying a cash prize of $300 and a trophy that probably could be pawned for something less.

* * * *

ALSO, those selected for the all-star team receive $250 each, and a few players have clauses in their contracts that their club will match the prize should they be picked.

But, as an official of the Blades remarked, "Some of our guys have it who have no chance, believe me. It's funny some of the guys who will argue about it. You don't mind giving it to them at all."

The awards to the leading scorer, leading goal scorer and leading goalkeeper are determined by cold statistics. Other honors, including the all-star picks, are voted by the players.

And if they were chosen at the halfway mark, the Blades' Norm Johnson would have been the top scorer with winger Brian Smith splitting the goal prize with San Francisco's Wayne Connelly.

Seattle's Jim McLeod, who played for the Blades last season, had the lowest average in goals surrendered.

The Leader Cup for the most valuable player would be a tossup between two fine centers, Johnson and Seattle's Guyle Fielder. Norm's team is fourth in the league but Fielder's is last in scoring, having built its command on steady defensive play.

McLEOD JOHNSON

At the moment, the I, P-T vote would go to Johnson.

The league's new award for the best defenseman would be the easiest—Seattle's veteran Gordon Sinclair, only 5-10 and 155 but head and shoulders above the others in a league not known for its defense.

Rookie of the year could well be the Seals' George Swarbrick, 22-year-old star of last year's Canadian Olympic team. The fiery right wing, who sent the Blades' Willie O'Ree to the hospital in the Dec. 27 fracas, has 8 goals and 9 assists.

The Fred Hume Trophy would not be misplaced in the hands of Portland center Phil Maloney as the league's "most gentlemanly," but talented player. Maloney won it two years ago, and this season has only two minor penalties next to his 34 points.

The all-star selections would bring some tight voting at this point.

Johnson would rate the nod over Fielder at the center position they've monopolized the last five seasons, Johnson winning it twice and Fielder three times.

* * * *

SAN FRANCISCO'S Charlie Burns edges the Blades' Smith at left wing for his overall scoring exploits — the only man in the league with two hat tricks.

Right wing is Vancouver's Billy McNeill, who hit four goals in one game and has more points than Connelly.

McLeod is the goalie, supported as ever by Sinclair. The other defenseman would be Portland's Pat Stapleton, who leads his club in scoring with 41 points, plays more like a forward but contributes more than his rival backskaters.

The selections in capsule:

Leader Cup (MVP): Norm Johnson, Blades.
Best Defenseman: Gordon Sinclair, Seattle.
Rookie Award: George Swarbrick, San Francisco.
Fred Hume Trophy (most gentlemanly): Phil Maloney, Vancouver.
ALL-STAR TEAM
Center—Norm Johnson, Blades.
Left Wing—Charlie Burns, San Francisco.
Right Wing—Billy McNeill, Vancouver.
Defense—Gordon Sinclair, Seattle.
Defense—Pat Stapleton, Portland.
Goaltender—Jim McLeod, Seattle.

STRICKLAND TO FACE LARKER, ROCKETS

Two prominent local ballplayers will be on opposite sides today when the Long Beach Rockets entertain the Dodgers in a winter league semi-pro game at 1:30 p.m. at Blair Field.

LARKER

Jim Strickland, former Lakewood High mound ace, now the property of the Dodgers possibly will get the assignment of facing his old teammates, the Rockets. "I don't know if Jim's going to be ready," said Dodger manager Kenny Meyers, "But if he's ready, he'll pitch."

Swinging a bat for the Rockets will be Norm Larker, a former Dodger now the property of the Giants. Larker will hold down first base for Jack Graham's charges.

Elkins Skirts to Hula Honors

HONOLULU (UPI)—Quarterback Jerry Rhome of Tulsa knew today that football is a game of inches. His performance was the big disappointment as his North team lost to the South 16-14 in the Hula Bowl Saturday.

In a subdued North dressing room, Rhome said he was "just downright unlucky. I am not griping about the game but give me an inch or two on some of those passes and it might have been another story."

Rhome hit only 4 of 10 passes for 38 yards as Bob Berry of the North and Craig Morton of the South won the battle of the quarterbacks in the Hula Classic.

* * * *

BUT HIS COACH, ex-Navy mentor Wayne Hardin was more realistic in appraising the Tulsa great, who cracked 18 national records this season for the Oilers.

"Nothing happened to Rhome," he said. "He had only three days to work with these guys and it takes time to get the plays down. With some passers it just takes longer to get to know the receivers."

Hardin said that Morton and Berry had developed their timing better during the three days of workouts although he added that Morton threw to a "fantastic receiver" in Baylor's Larry Elkins and also to Jack Schraub, who has been a teammate of Morton's since high school.

In a happier South dressing room, Elkins called the game in general and his game-breaking 76-yard punt runback in particular "one of the great thrills of my life." His two touchdowns earned him the award as the game's top back.

Mike Haffner of UCLA came over to demand thanks from Elkins for a key block on the latter's runback. He said he was glad to have thrown it and also to have made a key last-minute interception because for a while it looked as though he might be the game's goat.

Haffner said "the ball went right through my hands" on the first North score.

The game ball was given to South coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas, who now has coached 13 wins without a loss this year. He also tabbed Elkins' run as the turning point. He called it "a terrific game and it was a shame that somebody had to lose."

Report Pettit Can Coach Hawks Any Time

By DOUG IVES

NBA musings:

—Long Beach's Jerry Grote has departed for Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where he will compete in the Eastern League. It is likely Jerry will try again next season to stick with the Lakers.

—Baltimore's Bailey Howell made 16 field goals in succession this past week before his string was broken. The league record is 19 held by Wilt Chamberlain.

—Best bet to become coach of the St. Louis Hawks next year is Bob Pettit, unless he chooses to continue playing. No matter what, owner Ben Kerner has indicated that Pettit can have the job when and if he wants it.

—Henry Finkel, the 6-10 Dayton center drafted by the Lakers last year, is no longer L.A. property. NBA rules say a team must sign a player the year they draft him or forfeit the right.

Incidentally, Finkel leads the nation in field goal accuracy with .642. He's ninth in scoring with a 26.6 average. Moreover, he's only a junior, although he's 22 years old.

—Tom Sanders of Boston is one of the NBA's finest on defense, but Satch also leads the league in fouls by a wide margin. He has committed 172 personals in 42 games (4.1) and fouled out 11 times.

—There are 23 newcomers this season, and rookie of the year honors is still up for grabs between Knicks Willis Reed (18.4) and Jim Barnes (15.9) and 76er Luke Jackson (15.2).

—IT MAY BE a coincidence, but Laker coach Fred Schaus says Tom Heinsohn is the only weak link in Boston's defense, and since Tom has been out of action, the Celts have not lost. The streak covers 12 games.

—If the 76ers deal for Chamberlain, it's our guess Philadelphia would part with Paul Neumann, Dave Gambee and Chet Walker. We feel the trade will be consumated, but that now the Warriors are holding out for Hal Greer instead of Walker.

CHAPTER 3 OF 'HOW THE WEST WAS WON'

Oft-Maligned East Underdog in Pro Bowl

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Eastern Division of the National Football League will attempt to stage chapter three of "How the West Was Won" this afternoon at the Coliseum.

Already in possession of the NFL championship and Playoff Bowl crown, the oft-maligned East battles the West in the 15th annual Pro Bowl at 1 p.m.

A clear day and fast track are predicted with a crowd threatening the 1959 Pro Bowl record of 72,250 anticipated. The game, always straight from adventureland, will be augmented by a halftime spectacular entitled: "Disneyland Comes to the Coliseum."

This fantasy will feature the Coliseum debuts of the heralded Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck backed by the stirring sounds of the 130-piece Long Beach State College marching band, biggest on the West Coast. It will mark the first time the LBSC band has appeared before a "crowd" this season.

The West, which leads this series 9-5, is favored by five points, an interesting quotation which would only indicate there is not a touchdown difference between the two entries and, therefore, anything can happen.

The West was also favored in the title game and Playoff Bowl and the worst of all things happened. Baltimore and Green Bay both lost.

Blanton Collier, who masterminded the Browns' 27-0 victory over the Colts, will be at the East's helm and is confident the odds and the West's demeanor will be adjusted by nightfall.

"The East has been taken for granted for many years," said Collier. "I'm sure we can change the odds."

From the sidelines to the battle lines there will be interesting and sometimes savage rematches of that cold day in Cleveland. Collier will be opposed by his former pupil, the Baltimore coach, Don Shula. And there are seven Colts on the West and seven Browns on the East.

As revealed earlier in the I, P-T, the Colts will be conducting a vendetta, believing that Cleveland attempted to "pour it on" in their recent engagement.

So indicates Gino Marchetti, whose 10th Pro Bowl will be his last. Marchetti will aim his vengence at Cleveland quarterback Frank Ryan, who will start for the East.

On the West's firing line is Johnny Unitas, three times the Pro Bowl's player of the game, who also has a score to settle. Asked if the Cleveland defensive rush bothered him during the championship game, Unitas replied:

"No, the only guy who bothered me was Frank Ryan."

For those Pro Bowlers not bearing the colors of Cleveland and Baltimore, there are the incentives of pride and cash. The winners receive $1,000 each and the losers $700.

In the previous 14 Pro Bowls, the West has averaged 26 points per game and the East 21 and this looms as another paydirt parade. In the starting backfields are the most distinguished offensive talents of the era and, if possible, the West's unit of Unitas, Lenny Moore, Jim Taylor and Terry Barr is dulled by the presence of a truly magnificent East quartet.

Joining Ryan are Jim Brown, Charley Taylor and Bobby Mitchell. Add Paul Warfield at split end and one is prone to examine the mental state of those who establish the odds.

For Ram patrons, Merlin Olsen and Eddie Meador will occupy tackle and safety positions respectively in the West's defensive unit. Only two ex-Rams, Ryan and Charley Bradshaw, are present.

Should the East recoup the five-point deficit they have been awarded by the oddsmakers and the game end in a tie, there will be a sudden death overtime in which Unitas must be favored considering his experience in such matters.

The game will be radioed locally by KMPC and telecast nationally. Southern California will be blacked out. So may Ryan if the Colts have their way. Lineups:

Man to Man

WYNN

LEMA

By JERRY WYNN

You must like this guy.

A rascal from the wrong side of the Oakland tracks who couldn't make beer money on the tour for five years, Tony Lema today is sitting on top of the golf world sipping champagne.

It was Lema, not Jack Nicklaus or Arnold Palmer, who struck the largest vein in the 1964 PGA gold bonanza. Counting the $50,000 he won in golf's World Series, Champagne Tony earned $138,284.50 to the measly $113,000 and change for the "Big Two."

It was Lema who won the most tournaments, six, including the classic British Open and the classy Bing Crosby as well as three $100,000 events in a wild four-week summer spree capped by the World Series jackpot.

It was Lema who received our vote as Golfer of the Year.

Life began at 30 for the Champagne Kid.

Do you have the champagne truck poised near Rancho this weekend?

"No. I never prophecy what I'm going to do. But if I win, it's just liable to be there."

Do you really enjoy your champagne sessions with the press?

"Yes. But it's not the champagne. I love to be interviewed. It gives me a chance to communicate with people. It's a privilege."

The press is often accused of being partial to Arnold Palmer. Do you agree?

"No. That's not true. They've been very nice to me too. Palmer deserves all the good press he gets. I have a lot of respect for him and we're good friends."

Ken Venturi has challenged Palmer and Nicklaus to a match against you and Venturi. Which team would win?

"I certainly think we would. What else can I say? It would be a very good match. The purse and course would be unimportant. I think it's a good challenge."

Did you ever dream five years ago that you would earn $138,000 playing golf in 1964?

"No. I honestly can't say I did. But in my first year on the tour in 1958, the leading money winner was making about $40,000. Now that would be just about 10th place on the money list. Everything has gone up."

With pro football rookies receiving $400,000, would you like to play quarterback for the Jets?

"No. But it would be tempting. As a kid I played basketball and baseball not football. I only watch that game. I root for the Oakland Raiders."

Are you pointing for any one tournament this year?

"One of the major championships in the United States. It's something that emplants your name in golf forever. Nobody can take it away from you."

What has been your greatest thrill in golf?

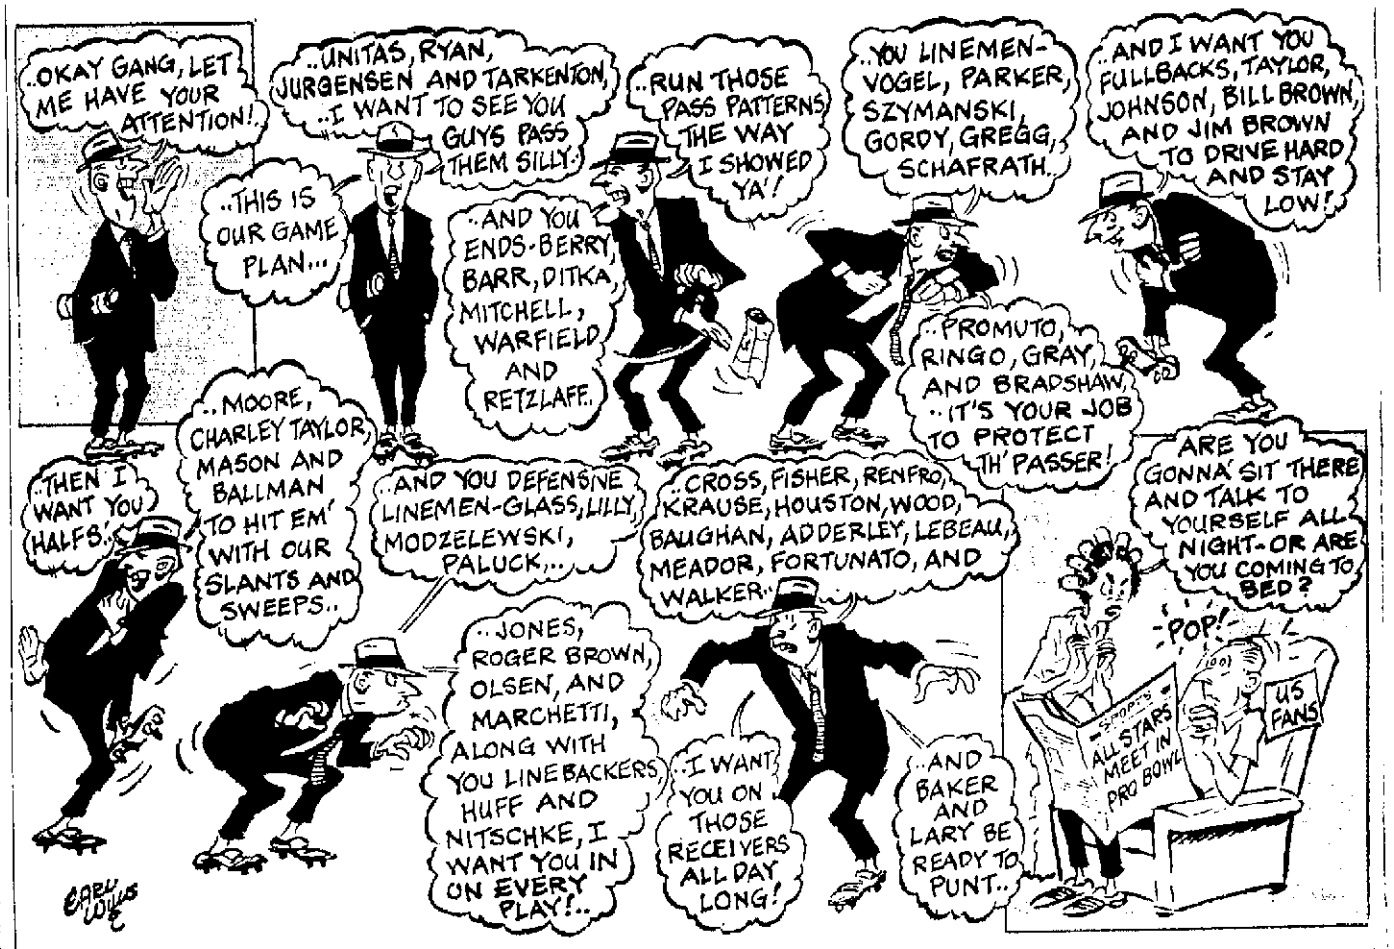

Winning the British Open. The full impact of golf hit me afterwards. A golfer gets seen on TV and written about in the newspapers and magazines. You have no idea how many fans you have, but it's obvious the kids are interested in knowing about you. This is a tremendous responsibility."

If you could trade places with any other athlete, who would you choose?

"I'm very happy to be me."

You must like this guy—Tony Lema.

Chi Chi Wins Again

CARL BERNEKER
'Too Many Hours'

Berneker Quits Rams Grid Post

Carl Berneker, Millikan High's head football coach the past five years, has resigned his post. No successor has been named.

Berneker cited as reasons "the constant pressures and countless man hours it takes away from my family." He added, "it wasn't an instant decision; I felt I had five good years and that was enough."

Berneker will not completely retire from football, however. "The game is a part of me and I expect to remain in the program in some lesser capacity." He will stay at Millikan, perhaps assisting the Bees or jayvees.

ALTHOUGH Berneker had been coach only since 1960, he and Jordan's Walt Anderson were the deans of Long Beach high school pilots.

Millikan's best season under Berneker was 1961 when the Rams posted a 6-2 record. Berneker's record was 17-22-1 overall and 12-13 in Moore League, where his teams finished third three times and second on the other two occasions.

Berneker coached Bee football at Millikan from 1956 through 1959 and two of his teams won league titles.

RADIO SHOW COVERS L.B. SPORTS FARE

Long Beach will have a community radio sports program beginning Monday.

Radio station KLFM, 105.5 on the FM dial will carry two sportscasts Monday through Friday.

The morning show, at 7:30, will be called "Sports on Toast." The afternoon program, at 5:15, will be known as "Sports Corner."

I, P-T staff writer Chuck Medick will handle both sportscasts. Medick will cover the local sports scene in depth as well as area and national events.

COLD CASH AND COLD STATS

Blades' Johnson Wins I, P-T Vote as Mid-Season MVP

By RICH ROBERTS

Just for a fresh breath of selfish honesty, it would be nice to hear a professional athlete say:

"I don't care if we win or lose, I just want to make the all-star team!"

Hopefully, few feel that way, but it has to be somewhere in the minds of certain Western Hockey League players these days as they skate into the second half of the campaign.

When the season is over the league will issue seven individual awards, each carrying a cash prize of $300 and a trophy that probably could be pawned for something less.

ALSO, those selected for the all-star team receive $250 each, and a few players have clauses in their contracts that their club will match the prize should they be picked.

But, as an official of the Blades remarked, "Some of our guys have it who have no chance, believe me. It's funny some of the guys who will argue about it. You don't mind giving it to them at all."

The awards to the leading scorer, leading goal scorer and leading goalkeeper are determined by cold statistics. Other honors, including the all-star picks, are voted by the players.

And if they were chosen at the halfway mark, the Blades' Norm Johnson would have been the top scorer with winger Brian Smith splitting the goal prize with San Francisco's Wayne Connelly.

Seattle's Jim McLeod, who played for the Blades last season, had the lowest average in goals surrendered.

The Leader Cup for the most valuable player would be a tossup between two fine centers, Johnson and Seattle's Guyle Fielder. Norm's team is fourth in the league but Fielder's is last in scoring.

McLEOD

having built its command on steady defensive play.

At the moment, the I, P-T vote would go to Johnson.

The league's new award for the best defenseman would be the easiest—Seattle's veteran Gordon Sinclair, only 5-10 and 155 but head and shoulders above the others in a league not known for its defense.

Rookie of the year could well be the Seals' George Swarbrick, 22-year-old star of last year's Canadian Olympic team. The fiery right wing, who sent the Blades' Willie O'Ree to the hospital in the Dec. 27 fracas, has 8 goals and 9 assists.

The Fred Hume Trophy would not be misplaced in the hands of Portland center Phil Maloney as the league's "most gentlemanly," but talented player. Maloney won it two years ago, and this season has only two minor penalties next to his 34 points.

The all-star selections would bring some light voting at this point.

Johnson would rate the nod over Fielder at the center position they've monopolized the last five seasons, Johnson winning it twice and Fielder three times.

SAN FRANCISCO'S Charlie Burns edges the Blades' Smith at left wing for his overall scoring exploits — the only man in the league with two hat tricks.

Right wing is Vancouver's Billy McNeill, who hit four goals in one game and has more points than Connelly.

McLeod is the goalie, supported as ever by Sinclair. The other defenseman would be Portland's Pat Stapleton, who leads his club in scoring with 41 points, plays more like a forward but contributes more than his rival backskaters.

The selections in capsule:

Leader Cup (MVP): Norm Johnson, Blades.
Best Defenseman: Gordon Sinclair, Seattle.
Rookie Award: George Swarbrick, San Francisco.
Fred Hume Trophy (most gentlemanly): Phil Maloney, Vancouver.

ALL-STAR TEAM

Center—Norm Johnson, Blades.
Left Wing—Charlie Burns, San Francisco.
Right Wing—Billy McNeill, Vancouver.
Defense—Gordon Sinclair, Seattle.
Defense—Pat Stapleton, Portland.
Goaltender—Jim McLeod, Seattle.

STRICKLAND TO FACE LARKER, ROCKETS

Two prominent local ballplayers will be on opposite sides today when the Long Beach Rockets entertain the Dodgers in a winter league semi-pro game at 1:30 p.m. at Blair Field.

LARKER

Jim Strickland, former Lakewood High mound ace, now the property of the Dodgers possibly will get the assignment of facing his old teammates, the Rockets. "I don't know if Jim's going to be ready," said Dodger manager Kenny Meyers, "But if he's ready, he'll pitch."

Swinging a bat for the Rockets will be Norm Larker, a former Dodger now the property of the Giants. Larker will hold down first base for Jack Graham's charges.

Elkins Skirts to Hula Honors

HONOLULU (UPI) -- Quarterback Jerry Rhome of Tulsa knew today that football is a game of inches. His performance was the big disappointment as his North team lost to the South 16-14 in the Hula Bowl Saturday.

In a subdued North dressing room, Rhome said he was "just downright unlucky. I am not griping about the game but give me an inch or two on some of those passes and it might have been another story."

Rhome hit only 4 of 10 passes for 38 yards as Bob Berry of the North and Craig Morton of the South won the battle of the quarterbacks in the Hula Classic.

BUT HIS COACH, ex-Navy mentor Wayne Hardin was more realistic in appraising the Tulsa great, who cracked 18 national records this season for the Oilers.

"Nothing happened to Rhome," he said. "He had only three days to work with these guys and it takes time to get the plays down. With some passers it just takes longer to get to know the receivers."

Hardin said that Morton and Berry had developed their timing better during the three days of workouts although he added that Morton threw to a "fantastic receiver" in Baylor's Larry Elkins and [illegible]

Elkins, who has [illegible]

a teammate of Morton's since high school.

In a happier South dressing room, Elkins called the game in general and his game-breaking 76-yard punt runback in particular "one of the great thrills of my life." His two touchdowns earned him the award as the game's top back.

Mike Haffner of UCLA came over to demand thanks from Elkins for a key block on the latter's runback. He said he was glad to have thrown it and also to have made a key last-minute interception because for a while it looked as though he might be the game's goat.

Haffner said "the ball went right through my hands" on the first North score.

The game ball was given to South coach Frank Broyles of Arkansas, who now has coached 13 wins without a loss this year. He also tabbed Elkins' run as the turning point. He called it "a terrific game and it was a shame that somebody had to lose."

Report Pettit Can Coach Hawks Any Time

Once Over Lightly

By DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

Three Sidelines to Michigan's Win

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD: In looking back over the Rose Bowl game, three things, which either were overlooked or treated very lightly by observers at the time, combined to supply much of Michigan's momentum in the 34-7 rout of Oregon State.

First, everyone thought it was just one of those routine stories which precede every big game when coach Bump Elliott "chewed out" his Michigan players three days before the game following what was described as a ragged workout.

However, it wasn't a "stunt." What's more, according to a Michigan spokesman, the bawling out didn't help matters.

So, the following day, a group of players under the leadership of captain Jim Conley called a meeting of the squad "to set things straight." None of the coaches attended the gathering.

BOB HOLLWAY
He Found the 'Key'

As Conley revealed before leaving for home, "Yes, we called a team meeting. We were sluggish and some of the guys were having too much of a good time, so we wanted to set a few things straight. We pointed out the guys who weren't doing too good a job and got things ironed out. Everything was fine after that."

The kids weren't breaking any training rules, merely trying to "see and do too much in too little time." Biggest problem facing any coach bringing a team into Southern California for a big game is to keep the players' mind on what they are out here for because of all the attractions.

SECONDLY, THE MICHIGAN OFFENSIVE unit was on a "crusade" against the Oregon State linebackers, Jack (Mad Dog) O'Billovich and Dick Ruhl.

As one Wolverine said, "We got awfully tired of hearing about them, especially O'Billovich."

"The boys were out to cut them down to size, all right," says one Michigan mentor. And offensive coach Tony Mason adds, "They really took care of them. We double teamed O'Billovich a lot, sometimes with an end and a tackle, then with a halfback and tackle, and even a fullback and tackle."

O'Billovich was kept out of the way on the 84-yard run by Mel Anthony and the 43-yard dash by Carl Ward that gave Michigan a 13-7 halftime lead. "I was cut out of the pursuit on Anthony," the Oregon State linebacker admitted later, "and I was blocked out early on Ward's run."

Michigan was slow in getting started until adjusting to a different style of play by the Oregon State linebackers than had been expected. But once the adjustment was made in the second quarter, the Wolverines began to roll.

THIRD, THE BLOCKED KICK against the West's leading punter, Len Frketich, was a masterpiece of strategy and behind it is an intriguing story.

Jocko Jones earlier was credited with devising the "planned play" which blocked the punt early in the third period to set up Michigan's third TD and break the game wide open.

However, Bob Hollway, who is considered the most likely of Elliott's aides to step into a head coaching post, is the man who found the "key." Jocko then took over and devised the "blitz."

When Hollway finally was persuaded to reveal details, he pointed out that "it was when we were watching movies of Oregon State's game that I notice the center did something with the ball on every punt. He would lift the ball off the ground before passing it back. And the rules say the defense can rush the instant the ball is snapped, and we figured that when he picked it up, we could go—a fraction of a second later.

"But we wanted to be sure, so I went to the head linesman before the game, explained the situation and he agreed that we could rush as soon as the center lifted the ball. We knew it, of course, but we wanted him to know what the center was doing so he would watch more closely and wouldn't be fooled that we were starting our charge too soon and penalize us."

"WHEN THE OTHER TEAM IS GETTING ready to punt," Hollway continued, "we normally put our offensive unit in the game so that we're ready to go when we get the ball. We did that until early in the third quarter when we decided to go for broke.

"The defense felt it could block a punt so we changed our tactics and, except for the deep backs, left the defense in. We'd devised a punt rush where we 'hid' a man so we could send three through the gap in the offensive line. As soon as the Oregon State center picked up the ball, we rammed three men through.

The Oregon blocker picked up one—linebacker Tom Cecchini—but the other linebacker, Frank Nunley, and guard Bob Mielke got through. Mielke was the one who was given credit for the block."

Michigan, of course, recovered on the 15 and went in for the TD that boosted the lead to 20-7 over the Beavers "and really broke their backs."

These are just three of the things that went into producing Michigan's classic Rose Bowl victory.

7-7 Tie a 'Natural' by Seniors

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — "With two great teams, evenly matched, a tie was just a natural," Senior Bowl South coach Tom Landry said Saturday after a 7-7 draw in the 16th annual football classic.

North coach George Wilson, formerly of the Detroit Lions, said after the favored South's two unsuccessful field goal attempts that he thought one of the most significant facts of the game was that "still not one field goal has been scored in the Senior Bowl in its 16 years."

Fumbles, interceptions and a stout Yankee defense repelled the South's spectacular aerial attack.

* * * *

THE PASSING of Alabama's Joe Namath and Florida State's Steve Tensi took the South near victory four times, but each time the North rose up to hold. Minnesota's Craig Lofquist intercepted two of Namath's passes.

Namath had to bring the South from behind in the second half on a 53-yard pass play to end Bob Hayes of Florida A&M to preserve the tie.

North quarterback Rich Badar of Indiana scored earlier in the second quarter, sneaking over from one yard out.

Jim North of Washington kicked the extra point for the North while Justin Canale booted the South's conversion.

NAMATH connected on 22 of 33 passes for 246 yards but the aerial display bogged down each time the South got deep into North territory.

Venturi Has Hand Trouble, but 33 Nine 'Feels Fine'

By JERRY WYNN

The San Francisco Bay area is in danger of losing its two prodigal golf sons, Ken Venturi and Tony Lema, the Independent, Press-Telegram learned exclusively Saturday.

Venturi has a hand ailment which could seriously affect his career. Lema is planning to move to the Los Angeles area.

VENTURI

Venturi has been treated by a noted Southern California doctor for a nerve condition in the fingers of his right hand. During the L.A. Open, he is using a hand-warmer and clenches his fist repeatedly.

But the handsome, 34-year-old U.S. Open champion and Golfer of the Year laughed off the ailment Saturday.

"It's not bad," he told me. "I've just been taking a few pills and using the hand-warmer. I feel fine. I hit the ball very well on the back nine (a 33) today."

Lema revealed he plans to move from his San Leandro home near Oakland to the Los Angeles area "very soon. I love the weather here. It's God's Country. I would like to live near the ocean."

Is Long Beach a possibility?

Tony replied tactfully but unenthusiastically, "That's a very nice city."

THE LIFE of a tournament pro can be fraught with peril.

Just ask neophite Wayne Sleepy.

For the second day in a row Saturday, Sleepy's caddy—assigned by the tournament — was late arriving. Wayne was forced to tee off without practice and promptly smother-hooked his drive an embrassing 100 yards. It led to a double-bogey on the hole.

Then on the 18th hole (his ninth) a spectator picked up Sleepy's ball apparently thinking it came from the adjacent driving range. When informed of his mistake, the man dropped the ball near a tree.

Sleepy was allowed a free drop away from the tree, but it still left his swing impaired by a fence. He missed the green with the shot for a bogey.

SCENE AT RANCHO:

One person walked by the new trimmed-down Bill Casper, turned around and gasped, "Say, you're not Casper."

Galleryites included Joe DiMaggio, Marlin McKeever, Jim Fregosi, Jerry West, Wally Moon, Jim Piersall and Fran Tarkenton.

Stoical Jim Ferrier was given three pennies in change after breakfast in the Rancho coffee shop. They came from a new roll and were shiny. Needing a coin for a ball-marker, Ferrier asked the cashier, "Could I please exchange these shiny pennies for dull ones?" Answered the amazed lady, "Now I have heard everything!"

Once Over Lightly

Three Sidelines to Michigan's Win

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD: In looking back over the Rose Bowl game, three things, which either were overlooked or treated very lightly by observers at the time, combined to supply much of Michigan's momentum in the 34-7 rout of Oregon State.

First, everyone thought it was just one of those routine stories which precede every big game when coach Bump Elliott "chewed out" his Michigan players three days before the game following what was described as a ragged workout.

However, it wasn't a "stunt." What's more, according to a Michigan spokesman, the bawling out didn't help matters.

So, the following day, a group of players under the leadership of captain Jim Conley called a meeting of the squad "to set things straight." None of the coaches attended the gathering.

BOB HOLLWAY
He Found the 'Key'

As Conley revealed before leaving for home, "Yes, we called a team meeting. We were sluggish and some of the guys were having too much of a good time, so we wanted to set a few things straight. We pointed out the guys who weren't doing too good a job and got things ironed out. Everything was fine after that."

The kids weren't breaking any training rules, merely trying to "see and do too much in too little time." Biggest problem facing any coach bringing a team into Southern California for a big game is to keep the players' mind on what they are out here for because of all the attractions.

SECONDLY, THE MICHIGAN OFFENSIVE unit was on a "crusade" against the Oregon State linebackers, Jack (Mad Dog) O'Billovich and Dick Ruhl.

As one Wolverine said, "We got awfully tired of hearing about them, especially O'Billovich."

"The boys were out to cut them down to size, all right," says one Michigan mentor. And offensive coach Tony Mason adds, "They really took care of them. We double teamed O'Billovich a lot, sometimes with an end and a tackle, then with a halfback and tackle, and even a fullback and tackle."

O'Billovich was kept out of the way on the 84-yard run by Mel Anthony and the 43-yard dash by Carl Ward that gave Michigan a 13-7 halftime lead. "I was cut out of the pursuit on Anthony," the Oregon State linebacker admitted later, "and I was blocked out early on Ward's run."

Michigan was slow in getting started until adjusting to a different style of play by the Oregon State linebackers than had been expected. But once the adjustment was made in the second quarter, the Wolverines began to roll.

THIRD, THE BLOCKED KICK against the West's leading punter, Len Frketich, was a masterpiece of strategy and behind it is an intriguing story.

Jocko Jones earlier was credited with devising the "planned play" which blocked the punt early in the third period to set up Michigan's third TD and break the game wide open.

However, Bob Hollway, who is considered the most likely of Elliott's aides to step into a head coaching post, is the man who found the "key." Jocko then took over and devised the "blitz."

When Hollway finally was persuaded to reveal details, he pointed out that "it was when we were watching movies of Oregon State's game that I notice the center did something with the ball on every punt. He would lift the ball off the ground before passing it back. And the rules say the defense can rush the instant the ball is snapped, and we figured that when he picked it up, we could go—a fraction of a second later.

"But we wanted to be sure, so I went to the head linesman before the game, explained the situation and he agreed that we could rush as soon as the center lifted the ball. We knew it, of course, but we wanted him to know what the center was doing so he would watch more closely and wouldn't be fooled that we were starting our charge too soon and penalize us."

"WHEN THE OTHER TEAM IS GETTING ready to punt," Hollway continued, "we normally put our offensive unit in the game so that we're ready to go when we get the ball. We did that until early in the third quarter when we decided to go for broke.

"The defense felt it could block a punt so we changed our tactics and, except for the deep backs, left the defense in. We'd devised a punt rush where we 'hid' a man so we could send three through the gap in the offensive line. As soon as the Oregon State center picked up the ball, we rammed three men through.

The Oregon blocker picked up one—linebacker Tom Cecchini—but the other linebacker, Frank Nunley, and guard Bob Mielke got through. Mielke was the one who was given credit for the block."

Michigan, of course, recovered on the 15 and went in for the TD that boosted the lead to 20-7 over the Beavers "and really broke their backs."

These are just three of the things that went into producing Michigan's classic Rose Bowl victory.

CASSIUS CLAY'S press secretary Leon Ameer, beaten savagely by Black Muslims on Christmas Day in Boston, indicated he fears for the champion's life.

"They tried to kill me and they'll do the same to Cassius," said Ameer. "Cassius is beginning to have grave doubts about the integrity of certain powerful Muslim members and it was because I held similar doubts that I was beaten. I am going to advise Cassius to withdraw."

OPPOSITION to the Houston baseball club's new nickname, Astros, continues to grow. The CETA (Call 'Em Tros Assn.) has developed and insists that until another name is chosen they will use Tros which is "the nicer part of Astros."

Choice Ski Spots in High Sierras

One of the nation's leading ski resorts — only a few hours' drive from Long Beach — is Mammoth Mountain, an area known the world over for its fine slopes as well as its champion skiers.

Southland skiers are fanning out in every direction for their favorite sport. More than a few will wind up in the Alps before the season is over. But, luckily, most of them will find superb skiing in most of the 11 western states, particularly California.

Take the High Sierra.

There are dozen or more choice spots, not the least of which is Mammoth Mountain in California's eastern High Sierra. The ski area is served by five electric double chair lifts and two electric T-bars for beginners and intermediates. There are 25 FWSIA certified instructors. For the non-skiers are exciting rides.

But one of the nice things about Mammoth Mountain is the new Yodler Haus, a $1 million expansion program by Mammoth Mountain Inn.

• • • •

THE INN, located within 100 yards of the chairlifts, now has 20 beautiful three bedroom-two bath and larger private chalets, with all-electric kitchens; 69 de luxe modified American plan rooms in the main Inn building; 54 beds in newly carpeted dormitories; and 48 rooms on the European plan in the Yoder Haus. Full resort living is featured.

Squaw Valley is another popular High Sierra area.

Within 60 minutes of the Long Beach-Orange County area is Mt. Baldy, where lifts start at the 6,500-foot level. And there's Snow Forest at Big Bear Village.

Snow & Skis

By Estheranne Billings

I'm writing about Tommi Tyndall, a friend and a friend of all skiers, all who loved the outdoor life. Tommi, the indefatiguable, who arose from so many defeats to try again, was felled for the last time in an ironic tragedy on the slopes of his Snow Summit ski area at Big Bear Lake two weeks ago.

It was a freak accident, caused by a stump so unbelievably small it wasn't taken seriously by himself or the men with him.

After the disappointing rains which ruined local skiing the first week of the Christmas holidays, snow began to fall that Sunday. Everyone knows the efforts to which Tommi went to keep his slopes clear, to groom them to perfection, to conserve every flake of snow for his skiers.

It was this effort that enabled him to have good skiing when at some other areas the bottoms might be torn off skis trying to pick one's way down a run. Indirectly it brought storms of criticism from some who couldn't believe his ski conditions might possibly be correct when they were reported better than their own.

Tommi went out some time after 2 p.m., started up the slope driving a small tractor with a drag chain. He had two riders and another driver was not far behind. Their goal was to repair any rain erosion and pack the new falling snow.

The innocent - appearing stump, uncovered by the long rains, caught in the drag chain and flipped the tractor over backward. The two riders were thrown clear, but Tommi had given his all for skiing for the last time.

Tommi Tyndall, the brightest spark of life in the Southern California ski scene, was killed instantly, and we shall all be the less for it. He was 52.

• • • •

TOMMI, of German-Czechoslovakian parents, was born in Dresden, Germany. He came to the United States in 1938 to prepare an exhibit of his family's laundry machines for the New York World's Fair. He remained when World War II broke out and wound up teaching the water ski sport at Lake Arrowhead, an activity he'd learned on Long Island Sound.

After service in the U.S. Navy during World War II, he eventually returned to the beautiful Southern California mountains he remembered to teach the snow ski sport he'd learned in Europe and taught here at both Yosemite and Sun Valley. He became a U.S. citizen in 1947 and was one of the first presidents of what is now the Far West Ski Instructors Assn.

For many years he donated time to teach young skiers in the Big Bear Lake area and never lost his vital interest nor ceased his assistance to junior skiing. For these and many other services to the area, he was to one and all, "Mr. Big Bear."

• • • •

TOMMI DIDN'T live to see his dreams fulfilled, but he saw them take great strides toward fruition.

He had a highly developed sense of humor, he loved his fellow man and expected the best of him. He was a planner who made his plans come true.

Tommi Tyndall, builder of Snow Summit, who when he picked up his accordion and sang once caused a vehement opponent to admit that he just "had to like the guy," gave his life for what he wanted, one perfect thing, the finest ski area in Southern California.

Had it not been for the strangely heavy and continued rains, perhaps, he would have been with us for many years to enjoy what he had built—and what will continue to be built.

So that he may be memorialized in the activities he most loved, a Tommi Tyndall Memorial Fund is now being raised. Contributions to the fund should be sent to Tommi Tyndall Memorial Fund, American National Bank Division of Bank of California, Big Bear Lake, California.

Rambo to Speak at Exchange Club Fete

John Rambo, bronze medal winner in the Tokyo Olympics high jump, will be the featured speaker Wednesday night, when the Long Beach Exchange Club honors "Boy of the Year" winners at the Lafayette Hotel.

Mike Coster, Jr., Stanley Nelson, John Wayenberg and Al Nichols are the four youths who will be honored. Each was selected as the outstanding member of one of Long Beach's four Boys' Clubs.

MILE KING BURLESON IN L.A. FIELD

Dyrol Burleson of Oregon, America's all-time mile king, will make a rare indoor appearance at the sixth Los Angeles Invitational Indoor track meet at the Sports Arena Jan. 23.

The slender Oregonian hasn't appeared on the L.A. boards since 1960 when he captured the mile at the first Invitational.

Burleson's best time for the four laps is 3:55.6, fourth fastest of all-time.

Tickets are available at the Sports Arena, RI 8-6131; meet offices, NE 6-2111.

L.B. Soccer Team on Road

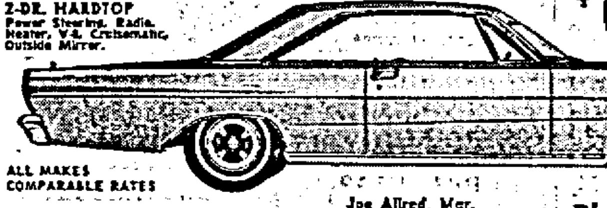

The Long Beach Soccer Club, plagued by injuries, travels to Orange City Park today for a Pacific Soccer League clash with Ross Electric. Kickoff is 2 p.m.

The Long Beach team, which finished in a tie for fourth in the first-half standings, will be hard pressed to improve that mark. Last Sunday two more of the kickers, Jim Hynds and John Parker, joined the injured list.

LONG BEACH TO HAVE DOWNTOWN MARINA

ARCHITECT'S sketch visualizes Montego Marina, due for construction in downtown Long Beach at foot of Golden Avenue. Features will include roofed boat storage area and large restaurant. Developer is T. J. Robert of 5382 Cherry Ave. Project is due to be completed this summer.

Independent-Press-Telegram
Progress
BUSINESS REAL ESTATE

Sunday, January 10, 1965 SECTION R—PAGE 1

Work to Start Soon on Marina at Golden Ave.

Construction for converting the Long Beach Navy Landing into a small-craft harbor is expected to get under way by February, Tarry J. Robert, contractor, said last week.

The new facility, valued at more than $6 million, including city-leased property, will be known as Montego Marina, Robert said.

Located at the foot of Golden Avenue, it will have a pivotal position in the city's current $42 million shoreline scenic recreation development.

* * * *

PLANS CALL for a top class restaurant, the Yachtsman, with seating capacity for more than 200 persons.

In addition to a 228-boat marina, there will be facilities for maintenance of 600 small boats in dry storage, all under one roof; launching facilities, outboard motor repair shops, miscellaneous services, and a snack bar.

The main two-story marina building will house yacht sales offices, a marine bazaar and a delicatessen.

The air-conditioned restaurant will overlook the harbor and Long Beach skyline.

* * * *

FIRST operations, Robert advised, will be to relocate and improve the present Navy Landing. It will be established in the eastern section of the marina. Also, new dock facilities will be built for harbor cruise craft, such as the Shearwater.

Legal snarls which delayed start of the marina have been unraveled, with court action denying a requested restraining order against leasing by the city of the property to Robert for development of the marina. The City Council approved a 40-year lease.

Knott's Streamlines Jelly, Jam Processing

By VERN ANTHONY
Editor of Progress Section

Increased automation and efficiency in the production and marketing of jams and jellies, plus expanded warehouse facilities, have been introduced "back stage" recently at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park.

In fact, "What was started as a berry farm by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Knott and their children 44 years ago has many different faces now," Ken Oliphant, manager of the preserving and shipping department and son-in-law of the Knotts, observed last week.

Originally, Mrs. Knott did the cooking on the kitchen stove and sold jellies, preserves and other items right on the farm. Today, with most modern facilities, the farm markets more than 40 kinds of preserved products.

BUT EVEN WITH USE of large vats now, only small batches of fruit are cooked at a time, in order to maintain desired quality. Batches are cooked quickly, cooled to proper temperature and poured into sealed jars passing along a conveyor line. Laboratory checks are made frequently.

Extension of the preserving department's retail business into many states was seen by Oliphant as a major prop for the farm's varied enterprises.

The original 12 acres has grown to 200 acres, with special emphasis on the free enterprise system of operation. However, the only crop now grown on the farm is rhubarb, used in the chicken dinner restaurant.

The thousands of pounds of berries, fruits and cucumbers used by Knott's are purchased from other areas, including Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

THE RECENT Christmas season was a record-smasher for the preserving department. More than 300,000 gift packs were sent out in 1964 as part of the more than six million jars of the farm's delicacies used in the United States and abroad.

Gift packaging is expedited in the new warehouse, which has special conveyors and loading docks for fast truck shipments.

The products are marketed through brokers, who must order conservatively, on the basis of what will be sold. Each jar is code dated, to help assure freshness to the consumer.

Knott's as a place of business continues to grow much like Topsy. The Ghost Town is expanding and offering more attractions.

The farm was started in 1920 as a family business. It still is a family business.

THE ORIGINAL family of Mr. and Mrs. Knott and their four children has increased to today's group which includes each of the children and the daughters' husbands in positions of management.

The only son, Russell, is concerned with general administration.

Daughter Virginia manages Virginia's Gift Shop, and her husband, Ken Reafsnyder, is in charge of the new construction and maintenance and the railroad and cable car rides.

Toni and her sister Marion manage the Sport Shop. Toni's husband, Oliphant, is the developer of the preservirg and shipping department and the Candy Parlour.

The Steak House and Ghost Town are under the guidance of Marion's husband, Dwight (Andy) Anderson.

Recently Russell's two sons, Ken and Steve, have assumed assignments as managers of the Chicken Dinner Restaurant and the Security Force, respectively.

MRS. KNOTT still is in charge of the Chicken Dinner Restaurant and Knott, although he is well known as "Mr. Republican of Orange County" and speaking representative of free enterprise, still is very much a part of Knott's Berry Farm and Ghost Town.

Years ago, he tried to borrow some money for expansion of the restaurant but was told that he was a farmer, and should not get into the food business. Thus, the family always has owned the entire business, which provides employment for more than 1,500 persons.

A portion of the profits from the operation is shared with the employes and the balance is used for a continuing expansion program.

No subsidies or borrowed funds have been used to build Knott's Berry Farm.

Restaurant to Turn High on Circular Tower

A deluxe, high-in-the-sky restaurant will revolve at the 36th and 37th floor levels of the circular apartment tower building under construction by Henry Sassoon on Ocean Boulevard near the foot of Atlantic Avenue.

It will cost an estimated $780,000, Sassoon's office disclosed last week.

The 5,300 square foot restaurant will occupy two floors, revolving on wheels and rails and completing one revolution per hour.

* * * *

TWO FLOORS atop the restaurant will house mechanical equipment for the 39 story structure, and will not revolve.

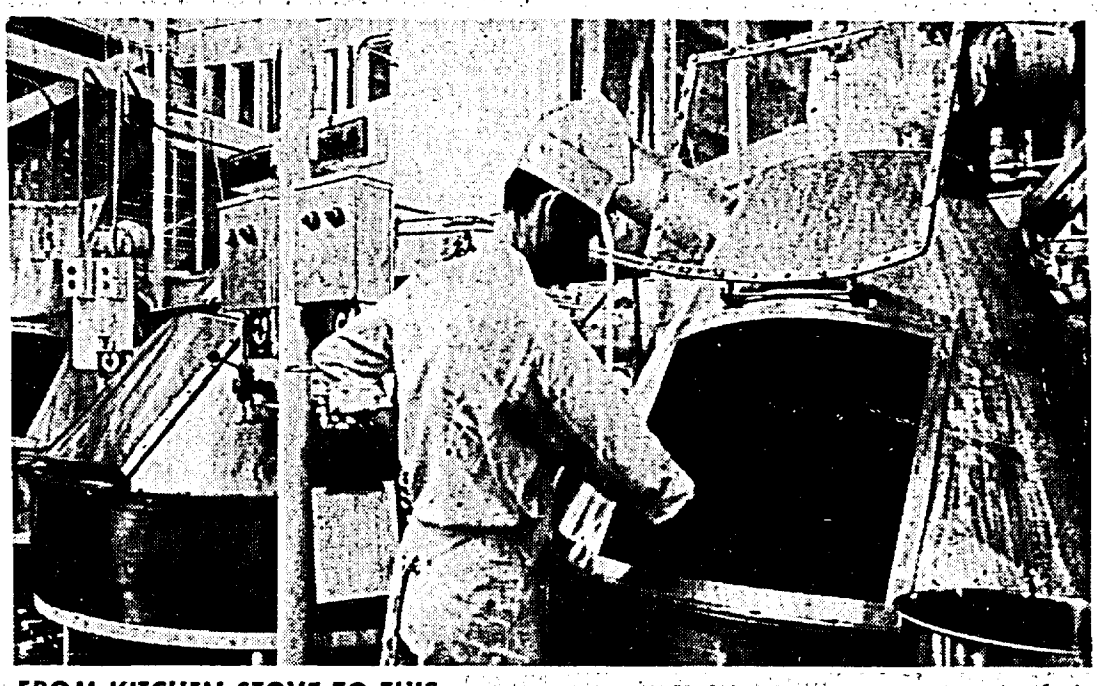

The tiered dining area is designed to seat 275 persons; with seating for 75 more in the bar and cocktail lounge. Tiered seating, it was explained, will give patrons better views through the glass exterior of the restaurant.

* * * *

ORIGINAL PLANS called for a heliport atop the Sassoon building; but these were changed for various reasons in favor of the restaurant.

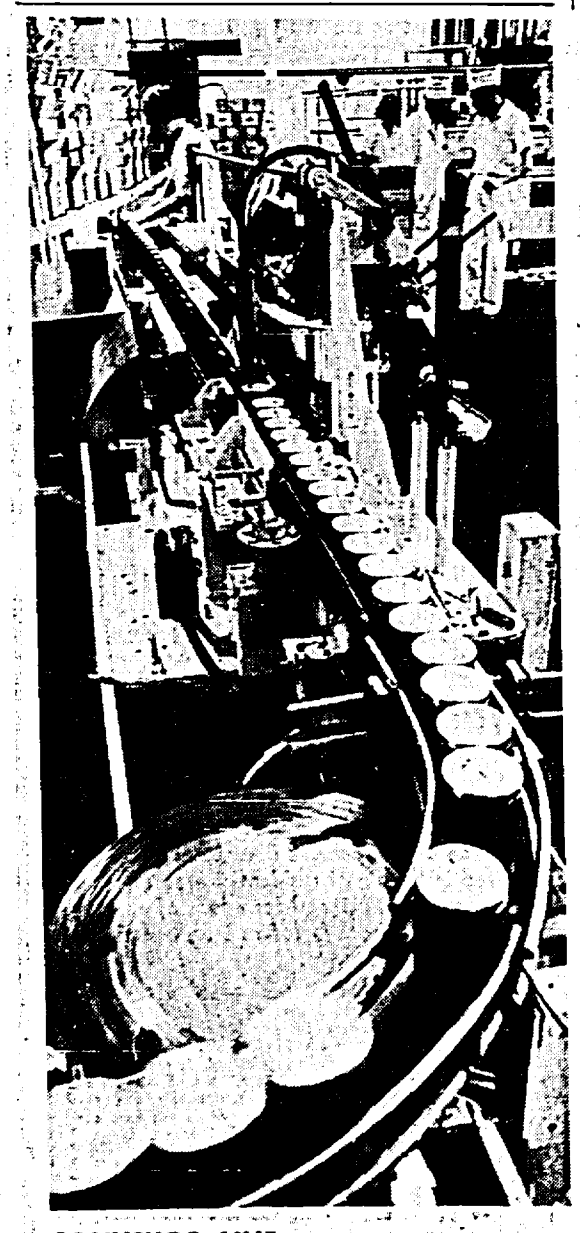

The round building will tower some 350 feet above the beach. It is 126 feet in diameter. It will have one freight and two passenger elevators. One of the latter will operate from the lobby to the restaurant level.

Target date for completion of the building is June, according to Sassoon's office.

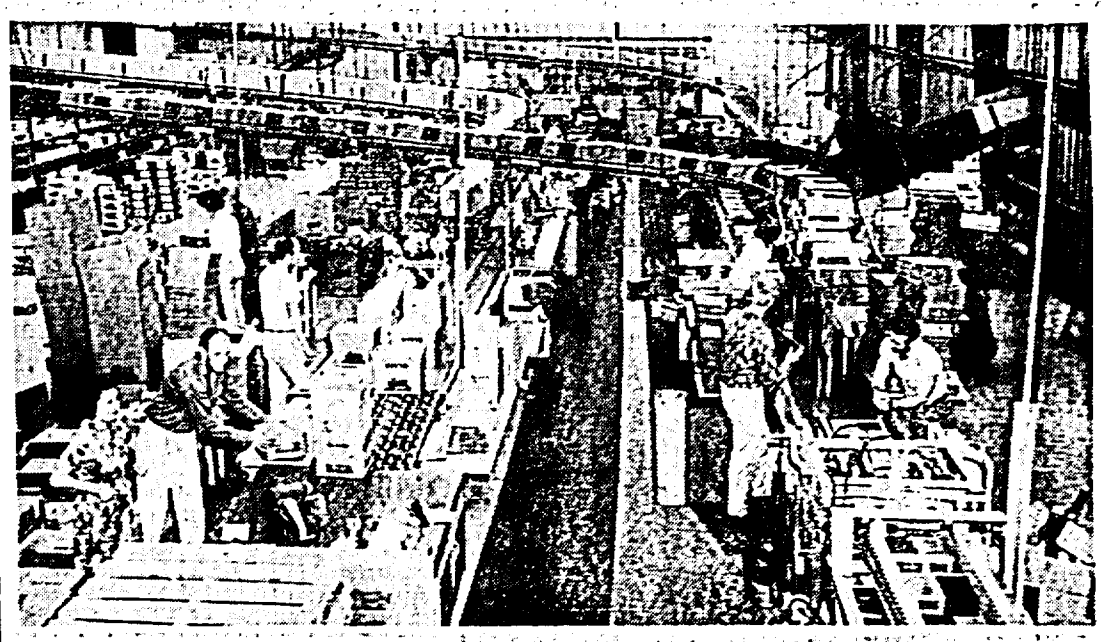

FROM KITCHEN STOVE TO THIS

Four large vats are used for cooking berries and other fruit in production of jams and jellies at Knott's Berry Farm. Loy Williams is shown in photo stirring up batch, which is kept limited in quantity to maintain quality of old time cooking on Knott kitchen stove.

CONVEYOR LINE

Long conveyor lines expedite processing in preserving department at Knott's. Filled and capped, these jars of fruit are on their way to be packaged.

NEW PACKAGING FACILITIES

Packaging department at berry farm has been expanded in this new warehouse building. Thousands of gift packs were prepared here during recent pre-Christmas season.

Improved Street Lighting Sought for L.B. by Realtors

A campaign to modernize street lighting throughout the city is being launched by the Industrial-Commercial Property committee of the Long Beach Board of Realtors.

Orville M. Artz, chairman of the committee, said the move is gaining momentum rapidly and support is being pledged by many property owners.

* * * *

"WE KNOW that good street lighting is a great improvement that will bring increased business to any community," said Artz.

"This has been proven in varied sections of the city where property owners have obtained new lighting for small areas.

"But on too many of our main thoroughfares we still have 1921-model "Chinese lanterns" for lights. "These must go.

* * * *

"WE HAVE one of the finest airports in the country and yet you can hardly find it at night, so poorly are the streets lighted around it."

Artz said the realty committee plans a meeting early in March to correlate plans for the campaign.

'Landmark' Hotel to Be Altered

FULLERTON — Plans for transformation of the California Hotel in Fullerton were revealed Saturday by Howard Eichen, new owner of the property and president of of Development Coordinators.

The historic three-story structure will undergo extensive structural alterations to become the site for exclusive small shops and a major restaurant.

The restaurant, to be operated by Sinclair Enterprises which presently operate the Villa Fontana, in Orange, and other establishments, is intended to be one of the most unusual and colorful operations in California.

The interior will be traditional old Californian and Spanish, with many authentic artifacts.

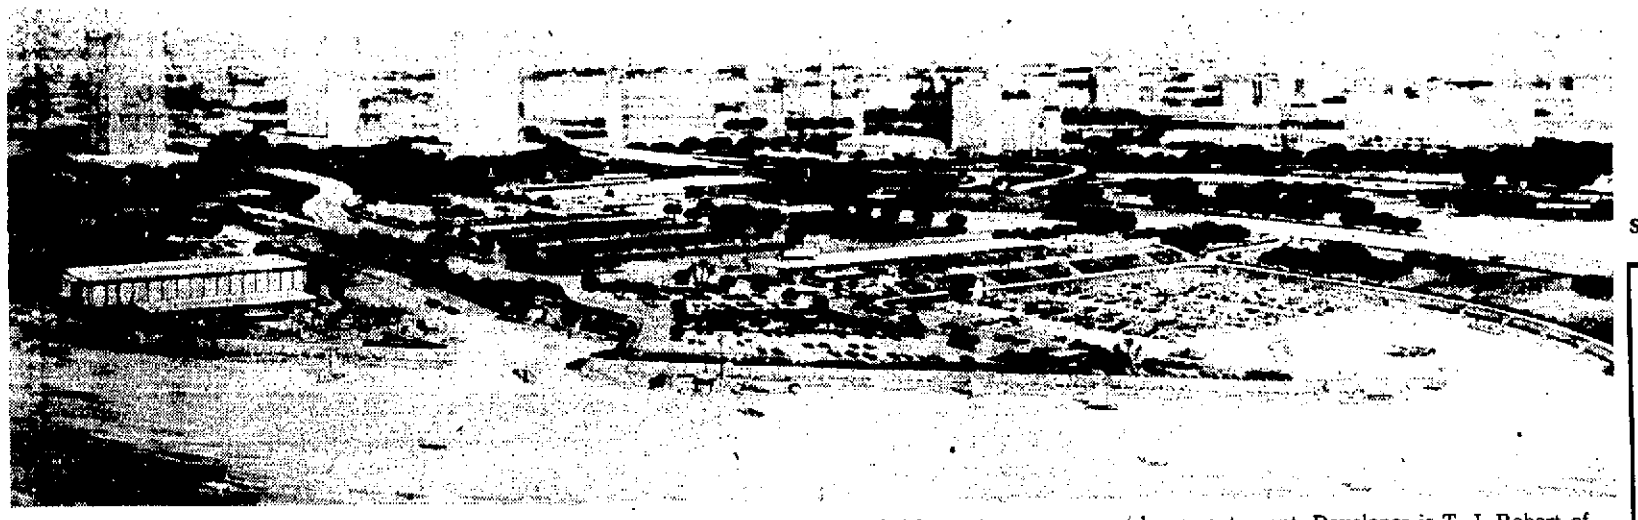

The bill of fare will be similar to the famed La Fonda del Sol in New York, according to Cary Sinclair, president of the restaurant syndicate.

The California Hotel, located on Harbor Boulevard, was erected by public subscription in the early 1920's and recently was the subject of controversy when plans were introduced to raze the structure in favor of a carwash. Citizens and civic leaders alike were distressed by the possibility of losing a landmark.

The resulting furor attracted the attention of Eichen, president of Development Coordinators, a Fullerton-based firm that handles all design and construction aspects of major subdivisions throughout the West.

Eichen, along with his partners on the project, J. K. Eichenbaum and Ben Weingart, expects to begin construction in May, and completion is slated for late summer.

LONG BEACH TO HAVE DOWNTOWN MARINA

Work to Start Soon on Marina at Golden Ave.

Construction for converting the Long Beach Navy Landing into a small-craft harbor is expected to get under way by February, Tarry J. Robert, contractor, said last week.

The new facility, valued at more than $6 million, including city-leased property, will be known as Montego Marina, Robert said.

Located at the foot of Golden Avenue, it will have a pivotal position in the city's current $42 million shoreline scenic recreation development.

* * * *

PLANS CALL for a top class restaurant, the Yachtsman, with seating capacity for more than 200 persons.

In addition to a 228-boat marina, there will be facilities for maintenance of 600 small boats in dry storage, all under one roof; launching facilities, outboard motor repair shops, miscellaneous services, and a snack bar.

The main two-story marina building will house yacht sales offices, a marine bazaar and a delicatessen.

The air-conditioned restaurant will overlook the harbor and Long Beach skyline.

* * * *

FIRST operations, Robert advised, will be to relocate and improve the present Navy Landing. It will be established in the eastern section of the marina. Also, new dock facilities will be built for harbor cruise craft, such as the Shearwater.

Legal snarls which delayed start of the marina have been unraveled, with court action denying a requested restraining order against leasing by the city of the property to Robert for development of the marina. The City Council approved a 40-year lease.

Knott's Streamlines Jelly, Jam Processing

By VERN ANTHONY
Editor of Progress Section

Increased automation and efficiency in the production and marketing of jams and jellies, plus expanded warehouse facilities, have been introduced "back stage" recently at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park.

In fact, "What was started as a berry farm by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Knott and their children 44 years ago has many different faces now," Ken Oliphant, manager of the preserving and shipping department and son-in-law of the Knotts, observed last week.

Originally, Mrs. Knott did the cooking on the kitchen stove and sold jellies, preserves and other items right on the farm. Today, with most modern facilities, the farm markets more than 40 kinds of preserved products.

BUT EVEN WITH USE of large vats now, only small batches of fruit are cooked at a time, in order to maintain desired quality. Batches are cooked quickly, cooled to proper temperature and poured into sealed jars passing along a conveyor line. Laboratory checks are made frequently.

Extension of the preserving department's retail business into many states was seen by Oliphant as a major prop for the farm's varied enterprises.

The original 12 acres has grown to 200 acres, with special emphasis on the free enterprise system of operation. However, the only crop now grown on the farm is rhubarb, used in the chicken dinner restaurant.

The thousands of pounds of berries, fruits and cucumbers used by Knott's are purchased from other areas, including Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

THE RECENT Christmas season was a record-smasher for the preserving department. More than 300,000 gift packs were sent out in 1964 as part of the more than six million jars of the farm's delicacies used in the United States and abroad.

Gift packaging is expedited in the new warehouse, which has special conveyors and loading docks for fast truck shipments.

The products are marketed through brokers, who must order conservatively, on the basis of what will be sold. Each jar is code dated, to help assure freshness to the consumer.

Knott's as a place of business continues to grow much like Topsy. The Ghost Town is expanding and offering more attractions.

The farm was started in 1920 as a family business. It still is a family business.

THE ORIGINAL family of Mr. and Mrs. Knott and their four children has increased to today's group which includes each of the children and the daughters' husbands in positions of management.

The only son, Russell, is concerned with general administration.

Daughter Virginia manages Virginia's Gift Shop, and her husband, Ken Reafsnyder, is in charge of the new construction and maintenance and the railroad and cable car rides.

Toni and her sister Marion manage the Sport Shop. Toni's husband, Oliphant, is the developer of the preserving and shipping department and the Candy Parlour.

The Steak House and Ghost Town are under the guidance of Marion's husband, Dwight (Andy) Anderson.

Recently Russell's two sons, Ken and Steve, have assumed assignments as managers of the Chicken Dinner Restaurant and the Security Force, respectively.

MRS. KNOTT still is in charge of the Chicken Dinner Restaurant and Knott, although he is well known as "Mr. Republican of Orange County" and speaking representative of free enterprise, still is very much a part of Knott's Berry Farm and Ghost Town.

Years ago, he tried to borrow some money for expansion of the restaurant but was told that he was a farmer, and should not get into the food business. Thus, the family always has owned the entire business, which provides employment for more than 1,500 persons.

A portion of the profits from the operation is shared with the employes and the balance is used for a continuing expansion program.

No subsidies or borrowed funds have been used to build Knott's Berry Farm.

Restaurant to Turn High on Circular Tower

A deluxe, high-in-the-sky restaurant will revolve at the 36th and 37th floor levels of the circular apartment tower building under construction by Henry Sassoon on Ocean Boulevard near the foot of Atlantic Avenue.

It will cost an estimated $780,000, Sassoon's office disclosed last week.

The 5,300 square foot restaurant will occupy two floors, revolving on wheels and rails and completing one revolution per hour.

* * * *

TWO FLOORS atop the restaurant will house mechanical equipment for the 39 story structure, and will not revolve.

The tiered dining area is designed to seat 275 persons; with seating for 75 more in the bar and cocktail lounge. Tiered seating, it was explained, will give patrons better views through the glass exterior of the restaurant.

* * * *

ORIGINAL PLANS called for a heliport atop the Sassoon building; but these were changed for various reasons in favor of the restaurant.

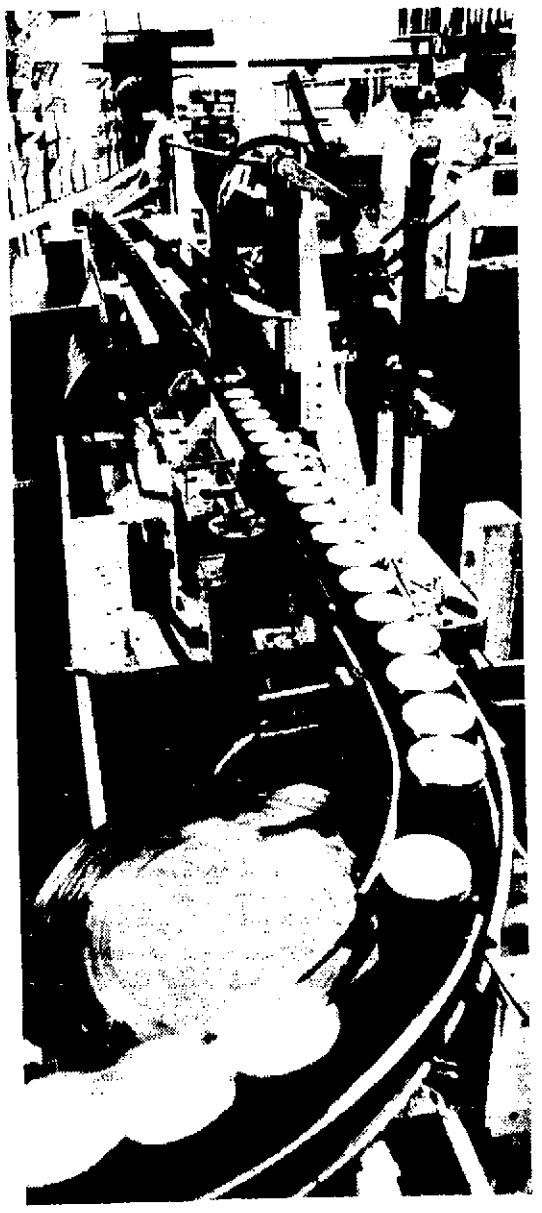

The round building will tower some 350 feet above the beach. It is 126 feet in diameter. It will have one freight and two passenger elevators. One of the latter will operate from the lobby to the restaurant level.

Target date for completion of the building is June, according to Sassoon's office.

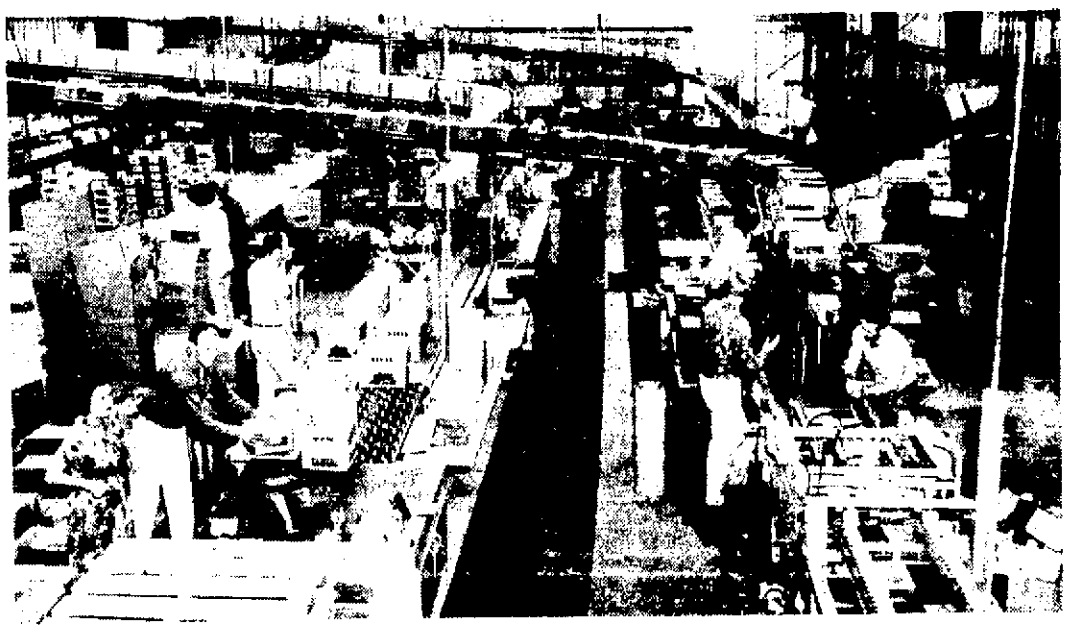

FROM KITCHEN STOVE TO THIS

Four large vats are used for cooking berries and other fruit in production of jams and jellies at Knott's Berry Farm. Loy Williams is shown in photo stirring up batch, which is kept limited in quantity to maintain quality of old time cooking on Knott kitchen stove.

CONVEYOR LINE

Long conveyor lines expedite processing in preserving department at Knott's. Filled and capped, these jars of fruit are on their way to be packaged.

NEW PACKAGING FACILITIES

Packaging department at berry farm has been expanded in this new warehouse building. Thousands of gift packs were prepared here during recent pre-Christmas season.

DUN & BRADSTREET DATA

Orange County Shows Big Business Growth

James L. Gravlee, regional manager of the Los Angeles office of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., announced last week that statement requests had been mailed to 8,527 businesses in Orange County.

This figure was obtained from a physical count of the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book of January, 1965, when total manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers were 8,527, as compared with 6,293 in January, 1959.

This was an increase of 2,234 names or 35.4%.

The Reference Book lists those manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who seek and grant commercial credit, but it does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers, or real estate brokers.

Therefore, the figure for total businesses in the area would be higher than the figure mentioned above.

The Reference Book listings show this record of growth in Orange County for the past six years:

Southland Gets 1,050 of 1,620 Daily New Residents in State

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

California's population gain since the 1960 census has been at the rate of 1,620 persons per day—590,000 per year—and is continuing unabated.

Nearly two-thirds of this growth has taken place in the 14 southernmost counties where net population gains have been averaging 1,050 persons per day since the 1960 census.

Property Research Corp. of Westwood, investment consultants, prepared this chart showing how the gains in the state have moved up over the years, from 1,000 persons per day in the '40s.

While Los Angeles County's population growth rate has slowed down somewhat percentagewise, it is still absorbing a substantial share of the state's total gains.

• • • •

SINCE THE CENSUS, Los Angeles County has been growing at the rate of 450 persons per day.

Estimates by the State Department of Finance and other reliable sources, indicate California now has about 18.5 million residents — more than a half million margin over the next most populous state, New York.

Newspaper Ads Lead in Survey

Home builders and developers will spend almost $32 million on advertising in Southern California during 1964, a media survey revealed last week.

Breakdown of the survey figures, conducted by the merchandising division of L. C. Major & Associates, Downey, showed that by far the bulk of the advertising dollar will continue to be spent in newspapers — a whopping 85%. Less than 10% is allocated to radio and television, with the remainder for billboards.

The Major firm, largest community coordinators and residential designers in the nation, conducted the survey to ascertain 1965 promotion trends in the Southern California housing industry.

Harry G. Stewart, Major's executive vice president, predicted that advertising dollar volume for 1965 will be even higher, as competition in the housing business continues to stiffen.

Business Improves in Hawaii

Business in Hawaii continues to advance on a broad front — with estimated retail sales last month at the highest level for any month in Hawaii's history, according to Bank of Hawaii's December Review of Business and Economic Conditions.

Mainland business, too, continued at high levels in spite of the negative effects of the strikes in the motorcar industry.

The Bank of Hawaii report contains the traditional December review of the year — indicating that 1964 had shown a gradually accelerating rise, resulting in new all time highs in many fields (and by substantial margins).

TWO star performers have passed significant milestones. Construction completed is estimated at well over $300 million (by far the biggest annual dollar-volume in Hawaii's history). Tourism, for the first time, has passed the half-million mark in visitor arrivals.

AIR DEVICE

To Measure Jet Altitude

FULLERTON — Beckman Instruments, Inc., has been commissioned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop an optical system for measuring air density at high altitudes.

Walter Donner, manager of Beckman's Space Engineering Department in Fullerton, said the system will be used in jet aircraft to investigate the practicability of sensing air density as a means of determining exact altitudes above 50,000 feet, in research studies to map air densities at various of supersonic and hypersonic flight research programs.

He said the device, an Ultraviolet Density Sensor, will be built for NASA's Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif., under a six-month, $64,000 contract.

Donner said once the air density is known, the altitude can be determined from tables of atmospheric properties.

PRESIDENT BERG will be chief officer of the association as it embarks on its 41st year.

"The Long Beach Apartment House Association, since its creation in 1924, has constantly endeavored to improve operating methods for apartment owners and operators and for better owner-tenant relations," Berg said Saturday in taking a look at the year ahead for the organization.

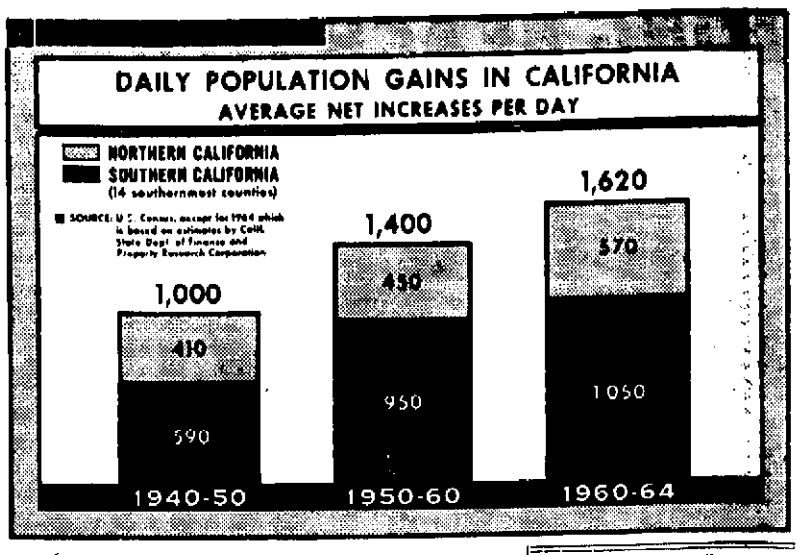

"Likewise the association has been instrumental in working for sound legislative and government proposals and for the development and growth of our area and the state," he said.

"THE ORGANIZATION will continue even more vigorous efforts in this direction.

"Our association now represents over 4,000 apartment owners and operators in the Long Beach area. There are today 14,000 apartment houses here and these include 76,282 rental units. We plan for continued growth and every owner or operator of apartments should be a member of the association.

"We have scheduled a strong and vigorous program for 1965 and we shall continue to work for greater achievements for the industry and the good of our community in the years to come," he declared.

Southland Gets 1,050 of 1,620 Daily New Residents in State

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

California's population gain since the 1960 census has been at the rate of 1,620 persons per day—590,000 per year—and is continuing unabated.

Nearly two-thirds of this growth has taken place in the 14 southernmost counties where net population gains have been averaging 1,050 persons per day since the 1960 census.

Property Research Corp. of Westwood, investment consultants, prepared this chart showing how the gains in the state have moved up over the years, from 1,000 persons per day in the '40s.

While Los Angeles County's population growth rate has slowed down somewhat percentagewise, it is still absorbing a substantial share of the state's total gains.

* * * *

SINCE THE CENSUS, Los Angeles County has been growing at the rate of 450 persons per day.

Estimates by the State Department of Finance and other reliable sources, indicate California now has about 18.5 million residents — more than a half million margin over the next most populous state, New York.

DUN & BRADSTREET DATA

Orange County Shows Big Business Growth

James L. Gravlee, regional manager of the Los Angeles office of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., announced last week that statement requests had been mailed to 8,527 businesses in Orange County.

This figure was obtained from a physical count of the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book of January, 1965, when total manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers were 8,527, as compared with 6,293 in January, 1959.

This was an increase of 2,234 names or 35.4%.

The Reference Book lists those manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who seek and grant commercial credit, but it does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, security dealers, or real estate brokers.

Therefore, the figure for total businesses in the area would be higher than the figure mentioned above.

The Reference Book listings show this record of growth in Orange County for the past six years:

Newspaper Ads Lead in Survey

Home builders and developers will spend almost $32 million on advertising in Southern California during 1964, a media survey revealed last week.

Breakdown of the survey figures, conducted by the merchandising division of L. C. Major & Associates, Downey, showed that by far the bulk of the advertising dollar will continue to be spent in newspapers — a whopping 85%. Less than 10% is allocated to radio and television, with the remainder for billboards.

The Major firm, largest community coordinators and residential designers in the nation, conducted the survey to ascertain 1965 promotion trends in the Southern California housing industry.

Harry G. Stewart, Major's executive vice president, predicted that advertising dollar volume for 1965 will be even higher, as competition in the housing business continues to stiffen.

Business Improves in Hawaii

Business in Hawaii continues to advance on a broad front — with estimated retail sales last month at the highest level for any month in Hawaii's history, according to Bank of Hawaii's December Review of Business and Economic Conditions.

Mainland business, too, continued at high levels in spite of the negative effects of the strikes in the motorcar industry.

The Bank of Hawaii report contains the traditional December review of the year — indicating that 1964 had shown a gradually accelerating rise, resulting in new all time highs in many fields (and by substantial margins).

TWO star performers have passed significant milestones. Construction completed is estimated at well over $300 million (by far the biggest annual dollar-volume in Hawaii's history). Tourism, for the first time, has passed the half-million mark in visitor arrivals.

AIR DEVICE

To Measure Jet Altitude

FULLERTON — Beckman Instruments, Inc., has been commissioned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop an optical system for measuring air density at high altitudes.

Walter Donner, manager of Beckman's Space Engineering Department in Fullerton, said the system will be used in jet aircraft to investigate the practicability of sensing air density as a means of determining exact altitudes above 50,000 feet, in research studies to map air densities at various of supersonic and hypersonic flight research programs.

He said the device, an Ultraviolet Density Sensor, will be built for NASA's Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif., under a six-month, $64,000 contract.

Donner said once the air density is known, the altitude can be determined from tables of atmospheric properties.

10 'Emerging Ideas' Seen for Business

There are 10 key developments certain to have a major impact on American business in the last half of the sixties.

Business Management magazine, through a major survey, recently isolated 10 significant emerging ideas.

As publisher Jerome W. Harris puts it, "Only a short time ago, these emerging ideas were simply theories. Today, each is a reality. If I were a company executive, I would ask myself right now what effect each might have on my company if our most dangerous competitor took it up."

• • • • •

PORTABLE pensions—under which employes can move from job to job without losing retirement benefits.

Vertical integration of marketing—by which companies are beginning to control all phases of marketing, from product design through to final sale.

Programed instruction—under which companies find it easier and cheaper to train employes (by self-instruction), and employes find it easier to learn new jobs.

Time-shared computer programing — under which smaller companies that cannot afford a computer can tie into a master computer center via telephone lines.

Individualized executive compensation—under which the mix of cash, insurance, deferred compensation, and even protracted vacations are tailored to the executive's personal needs.

• • • • •

PROFIT-ORIENTED selling—in which sales management emphasizes a company's total profits rather than mere sales volume.

Electrostatic printing — by which surfaces previously impossible to imprint (e.g., egg yolks, shaving cream) are possible to imprint because there is no contact between the printing device and the surface.

Business expansion overseas — easy opportunities abroad are shrinking as more companies expand faster overseas than at home, becoming true world enterprises, not merely firms with export departments.

LABOR-management committees—under which unions and company executives are solving problems on a continuous basis, rather than just as contract time—the demise of crisis bargaining.

Total distribution cost analysis — a major breakthrough in corporate thinking which combines inventory control, manufacturing, product and package design, and transportation into a single unit of cost to measure against necessary customers service.

Election of three new members of Bank of America's Board of Directors has been announced by Jesse W. Tapp, chairman.

The new directors, named at a board meeting, are Roy L. Ash, president of Litton Industries, Louis B. Lundborg, executive vice president of Bank of America, and Theodore A. Von der Ahe, president of Von's Grocery Co.

ROY ASH

Ash and Von der Ahe were appointed to the board's Advisory Council last April. Lundborg was named to the Advisory Council in 1957. He becomes the third member of the bank's present management to have a seat on the board, joining President R. A. Peterson and Tapp.

Ash heads Litton's staff of 44,000 which operates nearly a hundred engineering and manufacturing plants in 14 countries. He is a regent of Loyola University of Los Angeles, Marymount College and St. John's Hospital, Santa Monica. He is a director of the Hollywood Bowl Association and the Los Angeles Museum of Science and industry.

VON DER AHE

Von der Ahe is a co-founder of the firm he now heads, and also of Jerseymaid Milk Products Co.

A leader in the food industry, he is a director and executive committee member of the National Association of Food Chains and a director of the California Retailers Association.

Expansion Budget Tops $116 Million

Expenditures totaling $116.6 million are budgeted by Southern California Edison Co. for electric system additions in Los Angeles County during 1965, H. G. Hanawalt, Long Beach district manager, announced last week.

This is the amount of money Edison has earmarked for various expansion projects and system additions to meet the mounting electrical requirements of residents and businesses within the county, he said.

• • • •

ANOTHER INDEX of the electric company's impact on the overall economy of the county, he said, is the direct payroll to employes working and living here.

Edison's wages and salaries paid in the county during 1964 totaled $55 million. This does not include money paid by contractors and suppliers to craftsmen who are doing work related to Edison's continuing construction program in the county.

The company's total gross construction budget for 1965 in the 16 counties it serves in California and Nevada is expected to total $214 million. Total estimated payroll for all Edison men and women during 1964 was $56.9 million.

Signal Oil to Expand at Houston

Signal Oil & Gas Co. will expand petrochemical operations at its Houston refinery with an approximate $3 million construction program early in 1965, Forrest N. Shumway, president, said last week.

Paraxylene is a basic raw material used in the manufacture of plastics and fibers including Dacron.

Ethylbenzene is used almost exclusively for the production of styrene monomer which, in turn, is used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber and plastics.

Signal Oil & Gas Co. will expand petrochemical operations at its Houston refinery with an approximate $3 million construction program early in 1965, Forrest N. Shumway, president, said last week.

New units will be added to petrochemical facilities at the Texas plant for the production of ethylbenzene and paraxylene.

Paraxylene is a basic raw material used in the manufacture of plastics and fibers including Dacron.

Ethylbenzene is used almost exclusively for the production of styrene monomer which, in turn, is used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber and plastics.

Bank Adds 3 to Board

Election of three new members of Bank of America's Board of Directors has been announced by Jesse W. Tapp, chairman.

The new directors, named at a board meeting, are Roy L. Ash, president of Litton Industries, Louis B. Lundborg, executive vice president of Bank of America, and Theodore A. Von der Ahe, president of Von's Grocery Co.

ROY ASH

Ash and Von der Ahe were appointed to the board's Advisory Council last April. Lundborg was named to the Advisory Council in 1957. He becomes the third member of the bank's present management to have a seat on the board, joining President R. A. Peterson and Tapp.

Ash heads Litton's staff of 44,000 which operates nearly a hundred engineering and manufacturing plants in 14 countries. He is a regent of Loyola University of Los Angeles, Marymount College and St. John's Hospital, Santa Monica. He is a director of the Hollywood Bowl Association and the Los Angeles Museum of Science and industry.

L. B. LUNDBORG

Lundborg was named in February, 1963, to his general administrative post at Los Angeles headquarters. In this capacity he has been closely associated with Chairman Tapp, chief executive officer for Southern California.

VON DER AHE

Von der Ahe is a co-founder of the firm he now heads, and also of Jerseymaid Milk Products Co. A leader in the food industry, he is a director and executive committee member of the National Association of Food Chains and a director of the California Retailers Association.

Van der Ahe is a regent of Loyola University of Los Angeles, a director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews and a trustee of the Catholic Welfare Bureau of Los Angeles.

Expansion Budget Tops $116 Million

Expenditures totaling $116.6 million are budgeted by Southern California Edison Co. for electric system additions in Los Angeles County during 1965, H. G. Hanawalt, Long Beach district manager, announced last week.

This is the amount of money Edison has earmarked for various expansion projects and system additions to meet the mounting electrical requirements of residents and businesses within the county, he said.

* * * *

ANOTHER INDEX of the electric company's impact on the overall economy of the county, he said, is the direct payroll to employes working and living here.

Edison's wages and salaries paid in the county during 1964 totaled $55 million. This does not include money paid by contractors and suppliers to craftsmen who are doing work related to Edison's continuing construction program in the county.

The company's total gross construction budget for 1965 in the 16 counties it serves in California and Nevada is expected to total $214 million. Total estimated payroll for all Edison men and women during 1964 was $86.9 million.

Insurance Co Sets Records

The Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. has announced that it established new all-time records in the sale of both individual and group life insurance during 1964.

On an unaudited basis, individual insurance sales for the year, exclusive of paid-up additions and employe life, amounted to $1,198,369,147 as compared to the previous record of $1,055,297,451 established last year.

NAREB Opposes Rural Affairs Post in Cabinet

James C. Hoffman, new president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, announced last week that the 1965 policy statement of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, just adopted, urges Congress to reject pending proposals for the creation of a cabinet-rank department having jurisdiction over urban affairs, because such a department "would erode our constitutional system of federal-state-local relations and result in federal bureaucratic direction of day-to-day problems of community life."

Independent status should be granted to the FHA by the Congress, states the National Association of Real Estate Boards in its recently adopted statement of policy for 1965. This should be done, NAREB contends, because political and social welfare considerations are threatening to undermine the economically sound underwriting standards which have been the hallmark of FHA since its inception.

Local governmental agencies are urged by the National Association of Real Estate Boards in its statement of policy for 1965 to restrain the creation of further tax-exempt areas and to study a program of elimination of the tax exemption of existing properties.

The ceremonies, on the shore front at Neilsen Way and Ocean Park Boulevard, will be attended by many prominent California civic and professional leaders.

This will be the first step in transformation of what had been 20 acres of steadily depreciating Santa Monica shore-front land into a master-planned showplace of high-rise apartment towers and landscaped garden areas.

THE PROJECT is being created by Kern-Webb, a joint venture of the Kern County Land Co. and the Del E. Webb Corp.

Interim and permanent financing of the development was arranged by the Santa Monica Regional Headquarters Office of Union Bank.

First phase of construction will consist of two 17-story apartment towers housing 532 one- and two-bedroom units.

Average Soviet House Less Than Half U.S. Size

The average new single-family home in the Soviet Union has 500 square feet of floor space, a sharp contrast to the 1,254 square feet in new American homes.

This is one of the comparisons between Communist and American housing made by Dr. Michdel Sumichrast, associate economics director of the National Association of Home Builders, in "An Anatomy of Satellite Housing" published by the NAHB.

In Communist Czechoslovakia, Sumichrast said, the average single-family home has 400 square feet.

* * * * *

CZECHOSLOVAKIA produces more than four times as many housing units with three rooms or less as does the United States, he continued. On the average, only 18% of new American housing units contain three rooms or less, in contrast to 73% in Czechoslovakia.

"And yet," Sumichrast said, "Czechoslovakia in this respect has the highest standard among Socialistic countries, excluding Russia."

He added that Yugoslavia built 98% of all new units with three rooms or less, Bulgaria built 95%, East Germany 81%, and Poland 75%.

Czechoslovakia also has more people per living unit (3.6 persons) than does the United States (3.3), Sumichrast stated. Czechoslovakian housing is older, with 67% of all units over 30 years old as of 1962, while the United States has 46% that old.

* * * * *

ONLY 49% of the total housing units in Czechoslovakia had a water supply in 1960, in contrast to 93% in the United States. At the same time, only 33% of the satellite nation's homes had indoor toilets, in comparison to 88% in the United States.

While the bare necessities are provided in Czechoslovakia in new housing, Sumichrast said, "the market place in the U.S.A. would not tolerate such standards."

Since 1957, Czechoslovakia has made a shift to complete fabrication of housing.

Another severe contrast pointed out in the report is the difference in the average home loans. The average loan in Czechoslovakia in 1961 was only 15% of the total house cost, while it was 74% in the United States.

"...you remember what an old grump Ted was becoming after he retired. Well, all the friendly, busy people we've met here at Sun City have sure changed that! "...honestly, Ann, you simply can't beat this climate. No smog and it's so nice and dry. If you and Bob move to Sun City you can practically live outside all year 'round. We do...and we love it. As a matter of fact, John mustered up his courage last winter and taught me lawn bowling. SPACE AGE FACILITY
Aerial view of the recently dedicated Haystack microwave radio/radar research facility in Tyngsboro, Mass. The 150-foot diameter metal-space-frame radome was designed by the M. I. T. Lincoln Laboratory, fabricated and constructed by the H. I. Thompson Fiber Glass Co., Los Angeles.

L.A. Firm Cited on Radome

One of the largest and strongest radomes ever built has been put into operation by the Air Force Electronic Systems Division, and a Los Angeles firm, HITCO (The H. I. Thompson Fibre Glass Co) was cited for its vital role in the new space age radio research facility.

Fabricated and constructed by HITCO, the radome is 150 feet high, weighs 171 tons and includes 930 fiberglass triangles, each with a thickness of only 1/32 of an inch. Yet each panel can withstand a wind pressure of more than 130 miles an hour.

• • • •

THE METAL framework is made of hollow extruded aluminum beams, 3 inches by 5 inches in cross section and 9 to 15 feet in length.

There are 1,375 frame members with an aggregate length of 3 miles, held together by 15 tons of nuts, bolts and washers.

The fiberglass panels in 15 different sizes and shapes have a total area of one-and-one-half acres. The geometry of the radome, designated as "trapezoidal hexacontahedron," was selected on the basis of a rather substantial exploratory research effort, utilizing digital computer techniques, to achieve adequate structural strength, with minimum blockage of the radio beam. A particular effort was made to avoid uniform, parallel frame members.

• • • •

THE RADOME houses a 120-foot-diameter antenna of unprecedented accuracy with the ability to transmit and receive very high intensity needle-sharp beams with a width of only 1/20th of a degree.

The Haystack radar also will be able to receive exceptionally weak signals from space. These capabilities make the facility important in the identification and analysis of satellites in orbit.

Concerning the HITCO radome, Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, commander, Air Force Systems Command, said, "Today our large modern technical facilities demand extremely close tolerances. They require precision work that was very rare in heavy construction efforts as recently as a decade ago. It is evident that the people of H. I. Thompson Fiber Glass Co. and other contractors proved more than equal to the challenges"

Bekins to Buy New Equipment

Bekins Van & Storage Co., which has facilities in Long Beach, will spend $665,000 for new equipment in 1965, according to Daniel P. Bryant, president.

Included in expenditure will be procurement of 43 additional 40-foot "Air Ride" trailers, specially designed by Beakins for the transporting of delicate electronic equipment.

The company also will purchase new tractors to implement its existing fleet of more than two thousand vehicles presently operating in local and long haul moves.

Loans $608,321 on L.B. Projects

Loans to finance $608,321 of real estate projects in Long Beach were disbursed by the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co., during the 11 months ended Nov. 30, according to Karl P. Johnson, Southern California regional investments manager for the company's mortgage loan department.

The entire amount, he reported, was used to finance residential projects.

Total disbursals throughout California amounted to $166,024,522. Total amount disbursed throughout the 13 western states was $269,924,163.

Bankers Tag $5 Million

Recent action of the Arizona Bankers Association in establishing a $5 million industrial fund is expected to open the door in guaranteeing new industry for Arizona, according to James P. Simmons, president, Guaranty Bank, and newly elected president of the association.

It is the first time such a plan has been used by any state to attract new industry to an area.

James Byers, president, First National Bank of Arizona, and immediate past president of the Arizona Bankers Association, was responsible for creating the plan to promote development and relocation of new industry moving into Arizona by providing for the sound financial needs of such industry.

Taking fast action on the plan, the executive committee council of the Arizona Bankers Association formed the Industrial Development Fund Committee under the chairmanship of Robert C. Haden, president, First Security Bank, Mesa.

$14 Million Paid by GE Since '06 for Good Ideas

General Electric Company last week paid out its 14-millionth dollar in employee suggestion awards.

E. S. Willis, the man in charge of Employe Benefit Programs for America's fifth largest employer, said the milestone was reached when Stanley W. Knapp of Schenectady, N. Y., pocketed a $100 check for suggesting a way to prolong tool life.

Knapp, a drill press operator, saved the company an estimated $665 with his idea, Willis said.

General Electric's suggestion plan is one of the oldest in the industry, dating back to 1906. But employees have been turning in more ideas — and collecting more awards— in today's space age than they ever did in the horse and buggy era, Willis said.

• • • •

"LAST YEAR WE received 48 suggestions for every 100 employes eligible to submit them," Willis stated. "About one of every three suggestions resulted in an award, and our total awards for the year set a record of $944,513."

The record, however, may not last long. Willis thinks it will be broken this year, "if we have a real good suggestion month in December."

SPACE AGE FACILITY
Aerial view of the recently dedicated Haystack microwave radio/radar research facility in Tyngsboro, Mass. The 150-foot diameter metal-space-frame radome was designed by the M. I. T. Lincoln Laboratory, fabricated and constructed by the H. I. Thompson Fiber Glass Co., Los Angeles.

L.A. Firm Cited on Radome

One of the largest and strongest radomes ever built has been put into operation by the Air Force Electronic Systems Division, and a Los Angeles firm, HITCO (The H. I. Thompson Fibre Glass Co) was cited for its vital role in the new space age radio research facility.

Fabricated and constructed by HITCO, the radome is 150 feet high, weighs 171 tons and includes 930 fiberglass triangles, each with a thickness of only 1/32 of an inch. Yet each panel can withstand a wind pressure of more than 130 miles an hour.

* * * *

THE METAL framework is made of hollow extruded aluminum beams, 3 inches by 5 inches in cross section and 9 to 15 feet in length.

There are 1,375 frame members with an aggregate length of 3 miles, held together by 15 tons of nuts, bolts and washers.

The fiberglass panels in 15 different sizes and shapes have a total area of one-and-one-half acres. The geometry of the radome, designated as "trapezoidal hexacontahedron," was selected on the basis of a rather substantial exploratory research effort, utilizing digital computer techniques, to achieve adequate structural strength, with minimum blockage of the radio beam. A particular effort was made to avoid uniform, parallel frame members.

* * * *

THE RADOME houses a 120-foot-diameter antenna of unprecedented accuracy with the ability to transmit and receive very high intensity needle-sharp beams with a width of only 1/20th of a degree.

The Haystack radar also will be able to receive exceptionally weak signals from space. These capabilities make the facility important in the identification and analysis of satellites in orbit.

Concerning the HITCO radome, Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, commander, Air Force Systems Command, said, "Today our large modern technical facilities demand extremely close tolerances. They require precision work that was very rare in heavy construction efforts as recently as a decade ago. It is evident that the people of H. I. Thompson Fiber Glass Co. and other contractors proved more than equal to the challenges."

Bekins to Buy New Equipment

Bekins Van & Storage Co., which has facilities in Long Beach, will spend $665,000 for new equipment in 1965, according to Daniel P. Bryant, president.

Included in expenditure will be procurement of 43 additional 40-foot "Air Ride" trailers, specially designed by Beakins for the transporting of delicate electronic equipment.

The company also will purchase new tractors to implement its existing fleet of more than two thousand vehicles presently operating in local and long haul moves.

Loans $608,321 on L.B. Projects

Loans to finance $608,321 of real estate projects in Long Beach were disbursed by the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co., during the 11 months ended Nov. 30, according to Karl P. Johnson, Southern California regional investments manager for the company's mortgage loan department.

The entire amount, he reported, was used to finance residential projects.

Total disbursals throughout California amounted to $166,-024,522. Total amount disbursed throughout the 13 western states was $269,-924,163.

Bankers Tag $5 Million

Recent action of the Arizona Bankers Association in establishing a $5 million industrial fund is expected to open the door in guaranteeing new industry for Arizona, according to James P. Simmons, president, Guaranty Bank, and newly elected president of the association.

It is the first time such a plan has been used by any state to attract new industry to an area.

James Byers, president, First National Bank of Arizona, and immediate past president of the Arizona Bankers Association, was responsible for creating the plan to promote development and relocation of new industry moving into Arizona by providing for the sound financial needs of such industry.

Taking fast action on the plan, the executive committee council of the Arizona Bankers Association formed the Industrial Development Fund Committee under the chairmanship of Robert C. Haden, president, First Security Bank, Mesa.

$14 Million Paid by GE Since '06 for Good Ideas

General Electric Company last week paid out its 14-millionth dollar in employee suggestion awards.

E. S. Willis, the man in charge of Employe Benefit Programs for America's fifth largest employer, said the milestone was reached when Stanley W. Knapp of Schenectady, N. Y., pocketed a $100 check for suggesting a way to prolong tool life.

Knapp, a drill press operator, saved the company an estimated $665 with his idea, Willis said.

General Electric's suggestion plan is one of the oldest in the industry, dating back to 1906. But employees have been turning in more ideas — and collecting more awards— in today's space age than they ever did in the horse and buggy era, Willis said.

* * * *

"LAST YEAR WE received 48 suggestions for every 100 employes eligible to submit them," Willis stated, "About one of every three suggestions resulted in an award, and our total awards for the year set a record of $944,513."

The record, however, may not last long. Willis thinks it will be broken this year, "if we have a real good suggestion month in December."

Huge Derrick Barge to Be Built

Construction of a derrick barge described as having one of the largest revolving derricks in the world will be started immediately by J. Ray McDermott & Co., Inc., New Orleans, Roger W. Wilson, president, has announced.

Wilson said that the derrick on the barge will have a lifting capacity of 500 tons. It is being built to provide additional construction equipment to meet increased offshore activity of the oil industry in the Gulf of Mexico.

Detoy Named to Realty Society

Charles J. Detoy of Coldwell, Banker & Co., which has offices in Los Angeles and Orange Counties, has been named to membership in the American Society of Real Estate Counselors, Hiram P. Holmes, president of the organization, announced recently.

The society, which has stringent membership requirements, has only 285 members in the entire nation.

Builder of Premier Homes Lauds FHA

William Rousey, builder of fast-selling Premier Homes in Huntington Beach, is an enthusiast for FHA construction standards.

In a recent interview, he pointed out that buyers have come to realize that a home built to FHA standards is subject to rigid quality control throughout.

"This reassures the buyer about all the parts of the home he cannot see and completely sets his mind at rest concerning the workmanship and materials in his home," Rousey said.

ROUSEY said FHA requirements are strict. Each phase of the construction is meticulously inspected before the builder proceeds with the next. "These numerous inspections are by a federal agency, which in effect represents the future buyer. They ensure that the FHA home meets America's most exacting quality standards," he said.

Concurring with Rousey's views is sales agent Frank McFarland of McFarland & Mattocks, Inc. McFarland said the buyer of an FHA home benefitted as well from fair pricing and lower payments, in addition to the superior construction standards.

Premier Homes are priced from $23,400, with one loan and no second trust deeds.

• • • • •

PREMIER HOMES are available in 3 and 4 bedroom models, all with 2 baths. FHA-guaranteed construction is one element in Premier's "4 Ways Better" formula, which has produced record sales since grand opening eight weeks ago.

The other three "better" features at Premier are "total convenience" kitchens, custom extras and below market pricing.

"Total convenience" Premier kitchens include double-oven with independent controls, range, disposer, dishwasher, built-in mixer-blender, ceramic tile counters and custom finished cabinets. Premier kitchens are all-electric.

McFARLAND emphasized that Premier's "below market" pricing was not a gimmick. "Most of our more than 40 buyers to date at Premier had thoroughly shopped Huntington Beach home offerings and found Premier homes a superior value," he said.

Model homes are open daily at Premier. Visitors take the San Diego Freeway to Bolsa Chica Road and drive south on Bolsa Chica to Warner. Turn left on Warner to Springdale and Premier Homes.

THE BEAUTY of each individual home is enhanced by the landscaped community in which all utilities are underground with no unsightly poles marring the visual loveliness.

El Dorado Park Estates are priced from $31,450 to $43,450 and conventional financing is available.

Visitors are invited to see the new model home preview by driving east on Spring Street to Los Alamitos, and north to the models.

ROOM OVER GARAGE
Spacious over-the-garage "Bonus Room" gives Westmont Homes buyers a "basement upstairs" and is ideal as rumpus room, play area, den or extra bedrooms. New unit is now set with FHA, Veteran and conventional terms at the near-Long Beach site on Warner Avenue near Highway 39.

Westmont Previewing New Fountain Valley Unit Today

With only eight homes unsold in the 17th unit of Westmont, following its opening just two weeks before Christmas, a preview look at the 18th group of the big "Bonus Room" homes will be held today in Fountain Valley.

The new group of homes will offer all plans and exteriors and will continue to offer FHA, veteran and conventional terms. The prices start at $23,550 with landscaping, block wall, sprinklers, built-ins, and big, over-the-garage "Bonus Room" all part of the package.

• • • •

THE BONUS ROOM paced acceptance last year that saw the George Holstein organization sell over 500 homes in the new Orange County city. The room, according to the pioneer building firm has proved ideal as "upstairs basement" for playroom, rumpus area, or as extra bedrooms.

The Westmont site is adjacent to new shopping centers, schools and main highways and within easy reach of the San Diego Freeway that will make the site just minutes from the heart of Long Beach and vicinity. The Westmont location is less than five miles from Huntington Beach State Beach.

Low-Cost Luxury In Townhouses Stressed by Rosmoor Unit Head

Based on the initial rapid sales of townhouses in the original community of Rossmoor since the luxury development was opened early last fall, a large expansion of interest in the townhouse concept both at Rossmoor and throughout the Southland is predicted for 1965 by a housing authority.

Speaking before a group of industry executives at a luncheon at the Rossmoor Inn last week, William Ballon, president of Jaymarc Corp. pointed out that families which wanted to live within close proximity to urban facilities were turning rapidly to townhouses.

• • • • •

"THE RISING cost of land in metropolitan communities is putting the single detached home out of reach for the average wage earner," Ballon said. "But even if this were not true," he said, "it is our belief that the unusual advantages offered by the townhouse concept would speed the construction and sale of this type of home life."

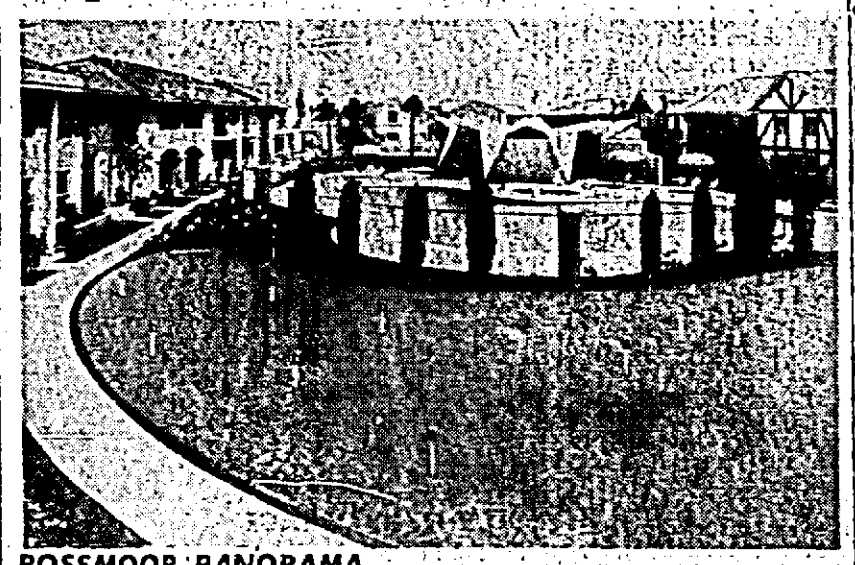

The executive pointed out that at his Rossmoor Townhouse development residents are immediately adjacent to Rossmoor Center and within short walking distance of such facilities as the bank, department store, theater, library, etc.

• • • • •

ROSSMOOR Townhouses' two, three and four-bedroom homes have been built on a luxury scale with quality construction usually found in homes costing over $40,000. Priced from $19,950, these homes have been acclaimed as outstanding values in today's housing market. Under the townhouse plan, each homeowner obtains a grant deed and is taxed separately.

Luxury features enhancing the mansion-type two-story homes include wall-to-wall nylon carpeting; private, concrete patio; two-car garage; complete all-electric kitchens with built-in oven and range, dishwasher, disposal and combination washer - dryer; and master bedrooms. Recreational facilities provide fun and relaxation in the form of swimming pool, special Jacuzzi whirlpool or children's wading pool; shuffleboard courts, putting greens, barbecue pits and private club house.

This carefree Southern California living can be found at Rossmoor Townhouses via the Long Beach or Harbor freeways to the San Diego Freeway; south to the Los Alamitos Blvd. North Exit; left on Los Alamitos Blvd. five blocks to Rossmoor Center. Furnished models open daily 10 a.m. 'til 8 p.m.

Fireplaces Appeal to Buyer of Homes

Woodburning fireplaces at Garden Park Estates in Garden Grove are proving very popular, according to a spokesman for S & S Construction Co., builders. The nippy weather this winter has made the fireplace particularly appealing, he said. Every home at Garden Park Estates has one, and in some models there's even a fireplace in the master bedroom suite.

Garden Park homes offer eight floor plans of three, four and five bedrooms in one and two-story models.

FEATURED ARE lath and plaster walls and ceiling, concrete driveways, natural ash cabinets, ceramic tile top and splash, and Italian mosaic tile over the tubs and in the showers.

The balanced-power kitchens provide built-in gas range and oven, and hooded exhaust fan, all in matching colors. Colored-plumbing fixtures are featured in the baths.

Priced from $21,200 to $27,900, Garden Park Estates offer low down payment and 30 to 35 years financing through FHA. Veterans pay nothing down except costs and impounds.

Visitors are invited to see the Garden Park Estates models by driving east from Long Beach on Seventh St. and the Garden Grove Freeway to Knott St.

Jade Oil Moves Main Office to L.A.

LOS ANGELES — Relocation of Jade Oil & Gas Co.'s offices to 1801 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, Los Angeles, from Houston, was announced by Johnny Mitchell, president of independent petroleum exploration and development company.

"With 50% of our operations now in California and with our stock listed on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange, the establishment of our administrative activities in Los Angeles is a logical move," Mitchell stated.

Will Build in Sun City Industrial Area

SUN CITY — Development of the Sun City Industrial Park was given its first concrete boost with the announcement that Jas. H. Matthews and Co. of Pittsburgh, Pa., had purchased property on which to build a plant for the manufacture of bronze castings and allied products.

Gordon Heath, project manager for the Del E. Webb Corp., reported the purchase of approximately 11 acres between Hwy. 74 and Case Road near Romoland for the purpose of construction by the Matthews Co. of a 20,000 square-foot installation.

The new plant will be the 14th in the Matthews chain and the first west of Searcy, Ark. The firm, founded in 1850, operates plants throughout the eastern United States and Canada and plans to have the latest facility in operation in the spring of next year.

• • • • •

DESIGNED by Novikoff Engineers of Los Angeles, the tilt-up concrete structure will provide jobs for approximately 100 people, most of whom will be hired from the labor pool existing in the area, according to reports.

The industrial structure will have three principal areas—foundry, assembly areas and offices. Offices will be modern and well appointed with wood paneling and a tinted glass front set in bronze anodized aluminum.

The completed industrial operation will consist of a non-ferrous foundry and finishing department in which bronze ingots will be melted in gas fired, crucible-type furnaces. Weight of memorials, tablets and insignia to be cast will vary from a few ounces to nearly one hundred pounds.

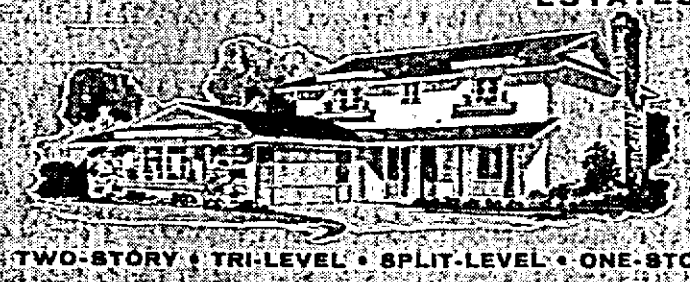

The Matthews foundry, factory and offices will be located on the property adjacent to the Pacific Magneto Co., south of Hwy. 74 and north of Case Road. The Santa Fe Railroad line parallels Case Road to the south.

• • • • •

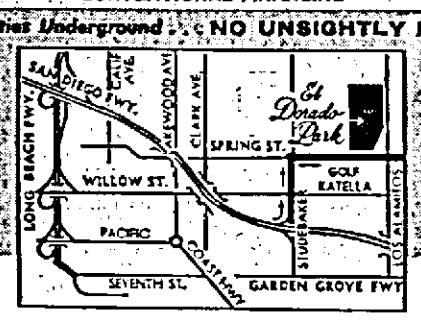

HEATH POINTED out that the industrial leasing department of the Webb Corp. with offices in Los Angeles was also negotiating with other firms.

The Sun City general plan for development provides approximately 900 acres served by Hwy. 74 and the Santa Fe Railroad for industrial use. The property lies in the extreme northeast section of the total Sun City acreage and is separated from retirement communities and planned conventional home communities by a low range of hills.

DESIGNED by Novikoff Engineers of Los Angeles, the tilt-up concrete structure will provide jobs for approximately 100 people, most of whom will be hired from the labor pool existing in the area, according to reports.

The industrial structure will have three principal areas—foundry, assembly areas and offices. Offices will be modern and well appointed with wood paneling and a tinted glass front set in bronze anodized aluminum.

The completed industrial operation will consist of a non-ferrous foundry and finishing department in which bronze ingots will be melted in gas-fired, crucible-type furnaces. Weight of memorials, tablets and insignia to be cast will vary from a few ounces to nearly one hundred pounds.

The Matthews foundry, factory and offices will be located on the property adjacent to the Pacific Magneto Co., south of Hwy. 74 and north of Case Road. The Santa Fe Railroad line parallels Case Road to the south.

HEATH POINTED out that the industrial leasing department of the Webb Corp. with offices in Los Angeles was also negotiating with other firms.

The Sun City general plan for development provides approximately 900 acres served by Hwy. 74 and the Santa Fe Railroad for industrial use. The property lies in the extreme northeast section of the total Sun City acreage and is separated from retirement communities and planned conventional home communities by a low range of hills.

Walt Gives Snow White Work Permit

AT THE WISHING WELL—the "Wishing" song. Civic Light Opera star, Laura Killingsworth, will bring Snow White to life for Children's Theater with lively rendition of Disney melodies.

By MARY NETH

Once upon a time there was a group of women who thought their city's children should have the very best of magical, musical fantasy.

So one day one of these women picked up her telephone (an enchanted one, we suppose) and said . . . "Let me speak to Walt, please—that's right, Mr. Walt Disney, if you please."

Well Walt wasn't in, but lots of his film studio secretaries and receptionists and bookkeepers and file clerks and legal advisors were.

The lady talked to them all . . . well, maybe not quite all, but almost.

And that's how it happens that the long established Long Beach Children's Theater is presenting "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs"—the original Walt Disney version — courtesy of Walt Disney Productions.

"I BELIEVE IN starting at the top," says Mrs. Eugene R. Cuthbertson, the lady who dialed Mr. Disney.

"I decided I'd like to direct a performance of "Snow White" but I didn't want it to be other than Disney's, the one with all those wonderful songs —"Bluddl-Uddl-Umdum," "Someday My Prince," "Whistle While You Work."

"Well, putting on the original isn't cheap—Walt Disney Productions, naturally, charge royalties, and just as naturally, as a non-profit group, we can't afford to pay them.

"But I decided not to let this stop me—I decided I'd ask Mr. Disney, himself, if we couldn't have the script for free. No harm, you know in asking."

AND ASK she did.

The answer, of course, was yes.

Disney Productions mulled over the idea—checked-out Children's Theater and came to the conclusion that it was and is a very worthy organization indeed. Two days later they shipped the script to Long Beach.

It's the VERY first time such a thing ever has been done.

"Why they offered us their costumes," exclaims Mrs. Cuthbertson.

"But we decided that might shine-up our amateur image TOO much. And we're pretty proud of that."

AND WELL LONG BEACH Children's Theater should be. It's been putting on smash hits for small fry for 18 years now—today is the only all-volunteer company of this kind in the U.S. Other members of the American Educational Theater Association and Children's Theater Conference, it seems, lean heavily on the hiring of professional actors and actresses to fill-out their casts.

But back to the delightful production to come.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," directed by a very pleased Mrs. Cuthbertson (with Civic Light Opera star Laura Killingsworth singing the lead), will be presented in 23 performances here beginning Saturday.

Complete down to every last Disney ditty, including and exceeding the princess's "Wishing" song and the dwarf's toe-tapping, "Hi Ho, Hi Ho, it's off to work we go" the fairy tale musicale will be staged as follows:

LITTLE THEATER, California State College at Long Beach, Jan. 16 and 17; Jan. 23 and 24; Jan. 30 and 31 and Feb. 13.

Long Beach City College theater, Feb. 20 (part of Junior Programs production).

Saturday performances will take place at 10 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday performances will be held 1, 2:30 and 4 p.m.

On Jan. 22, 7:45 p.m., CSCLB Little Theater, a benefit presentation of the show will be given with all money going to Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. Kenneth Hurley is in charge of reservations for the benefit event. Tickets for it will be $2.50 per person.

At all other showings tickets will cost 25 cents for children; 50 cents for adults, with sales being handled through local elementary schools.

THE CAST INCLUDES Laura Killingsworth (Mrs. Edward Killingsworth), Snow White; Hartley Karon, Prince; Bill Miller and Cervando Reyes, Woodsmen; Mrs. Campbell Crooker, Queen; Mrs. Harvey Beckman, Doc; Mrs. William Davis, Grumpy; Mrs. B. A. Tower, Bashful; Mrs. William B. Moffett, Happy; Mrs. Donald Wiggam, Sneezy; Mrs. Donald Fylpaa, Dopey; Mrs. J. H. Dobbins, Sleepy. Children performers (students at the Al Ruiz dance studio) are Lourie Herman, rabbit; Kerry Cracknell, Racoon; Susan Donaldson, Chipmunk and Cindy Arnold, Skunk.

"WHISTLE WHILE YOU WORK" is the philosophy of dwarfs —Dopey, Mrs. Donald Fylpaa, background and Happy and Doc, Mrs. William B. Moffett, left, and Mrs. Harvey Beckman.

FOR THE PARTS they play, it's lots of sleepy, sneezy acting-up. Here deep in the Disneyland woods Mrs. J. H. Dobbins (left) and Mrs. Donald Wiggam take on character of their parts—dwarfs Sleepy and Sneezy, of course.

ANIMATED ANIMALS, indeed . . . there couldn't be a happier woodland pair than this twosome. Kerry Cracknell, Raccoon (left), and Lourie Herman, Rabbit, add a furry bit of fervor to "Snow White" show.

HOW do you measure up?

WHY GROW OLD?

New You in Just 8 Weeks

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

There is always something wonderful about a new year because it means that a new chance, a new chunk of life, has been dealt us. That is why most folks make New Year's resolutions. We resolve to wring from the new year values which will make life more vital and rewarding.

Each year at this time tens of thousands of women determine to improve their appearance, to lose overweight and banish bulges which have been making them self-conscious. They resolve to invest, day by day, in beauty and health care which will make them look and feel years younger.

Each January I bring you my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short) to help. This is really a course I will be conducting through your newspaper, just as though I were teaching you in a class. You do not have to wait for a year in order to become more attractive. You can improve your appearance a hundred per cent in just eight short weeks, the next eight weeks!

• • • •

IN THIS length of time you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds, improve your posture, hair and complexion, and streamline your measurements. This is no idle fancy of mine. Over and over again I have watched the change in my pupils from overweight to the correct weight, from self-consciousness to self-confidence, from chronic fatigue to pep, from negative living to vibrant living.

• • • •

NOW LET'S get started! First, if your goal is to lose weight, we must decide what your ideal weight is. Look at the following weight chart. The scientific method for determining whether you have a small frame, a medium frame or a large frame is too technical to describe here. However, you can judge fairly well for yourself.

If you have small dainty bones you belong in the small classification. If your bones are large and heavy that's where you go. If you are in between you belong to the medium classification. Look at your wrists. Are they small or large boned? Are your shoulders wide?

All you have to do to join my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan is to follow the columns in this newspaper.

HOW do you measure up?

WHY GROW OLD?

New You in Just 8 Weeks

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

There is always something wonderful about a new year because it means that a new chance, a new chunk of life, has been dealt us. That is why most folks make New Year's resolutions. We resolve to wring from the new year values which will make life more vital and rewarding.

Each year at this time tens of thousands of women determine to improve their appearance, to lose overweight and banish bulges which have been making them self-conscious. They resolve to invest, day by day, in beauty and health care which will make them look and feel years younger.

Each January I bring you my Eight-Week Beauty Improvement Plan (BIP for short) to help. This is really a course I will be conducting through your newspaper, just as though I were teaching you in a class. You do not have to wait for a year in order to become more attractive. You can improve your appearance a hundred per cent in just eight short weeks, the next eight weeks!

* * * *

IN THIS length of time you can lose from 15 to 20 pounds, improve your posture, hair and complexion, and streamline your measurements. This is no idle fancy of mine. Over and over again I have watched the change in my pupils from overweight to the correct weight, from self-consciousness to self-confidence, from chronic fatigue to pep, from negative living to vibrant living.

* * * *

NOW LET'S get started! First, if your goal is to lose weight, we must decide what your ideal weight is. Look at the following weight chart. The scientific method for determining whether you have a small frame, a medium frame or a large frame is too technical to describe here. However, you can judge fairly well for yourself.

The Diplomatic 'Touch'

DEAR ABBY: I sent out R.S.V.P. invitations to my daughter's wedding, which included the ceremony, reception and dinner. I received a telephone call from one of the invited guests (not a relative) who said that she and her husband couldn't attend because they were going to be out of town, but she was sending her teen-aged daughter and the girl's boy friends to "represent the family." She said it was considered proper because she read where the President and Mrs. Johnson could not attend the wedding of the King of Greece. So they sent their daughter to "represent" them. I didn't know what else to say, so I said, "Your daughter and her boy friend will be very welcome." Would you please tell me if this is really proper?—BRIDE'S MOTHER

ABBY

DEAR MOTHER: Wedding invitations (or any personal invitation, for that matter) are NOT transferable. The heads of state, however, abide by different rules. When a President or King is unable to accept an invitation, it is customary to send someone to represent his country. You got a royal rooking.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: I am 37, have two children, 11 and 15, and have been divorced for nine years. I met a man who was 33 and good-looking. He said he was single. I fell awfully hard for him. He gave me gifts and money, and we talked of marriage, but something always came up to delay it.

In October I found out I was pregnant. When I told him, he said he would marry me. I called the place where he rooms and a woman answered the phone. She said she was his WIFE. I almost fainted. I told her who I was and she said she felt "sorry" for me.

When I told my boy friend everything, he said the woman on the phone calls herself his "wife" but they aren't really married. It's more like a common law arrangement. Can a man with a common law wife take a legal wife? I don't want to get mixed up with bigamy. Where does all this leave me?—TOO DUMB FOR WORDS

DEAR DUMB: It leaves you with approximately 200,000 other trusting souls, who, in 1964, bore illegitimate babies. Ask a lawyer if your state recognizes common law marriages. And if you want the name of a Home for Unwed Mothers, send me your name and address and I will help you.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: Every time I go to the bakery for doughnuts, the clerk uses a small piece of waxed paper to pick up the doughnuts and put them in a sack. I assume this is because she also handles money and does not want to transmit the germs from the money to the doughnuts. So far this is just fine. But then she stuffs the waxed paper, which is full of germs into the sack on top of the doughnuts, closes the sack and gives me the doughnuts, germs and all. While I am carrying the sack home, the germs are finding their way to my doughnuts. What must we do to get the bakeries to KEEP the waxed paper with all the germs on it and give us the doughnuts only?—ANTISEPTIC MALE IN OHIO

DEAL MALE: The next time you buy doughnuts, TELL the clerk please to keep the waxed paper. It's all right to be "germ-conscious," but if you knew how many times daily you are vulnerable to billions of "germs," you would stay in bed.

• • • • •

DEAR ABBY: I have gone with this man for seven years and I am very much in love with him. He is much older than I, but we always have a marvelous time together. My problem is, he never mentions marriage. He is a Mama's boy, and I am sure he is waiting for his mother to pass on before he will marry. I don't know whether I should bring up the subject of marriage or should dump him?—LONGING

DEAR LONGING: You don't say how old you are, or how old HE is, but if you are between 23 and 35, I say dump him. The longest wait in the world is waiting for someone to die.

The CSLB show is the only drawing show of this scope organized on an annual basis within the Los Angeles-Orange County area. The art department of the college has made a permanent collection from this and previous drawing exhibits.

Gallery hours are 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Special arrangements for groups may be made by calling the art department.

Mrs. De Coudres received her education at Long Beach City College, the University of California at Berkeley, the University of Southern California and California State College at Long Beach. Her paintings have hung at Long Beach Museum of Art and in Lakewood and Long Beach Art Association shows.

• • • •

NOVELIST Anais Nin will speak at Downey Museum of Art in Furman Park Thursday at 8 p.m. She will discuss her long friendship with Jean Varda, whose collages are on view at the museum, and will describe her experiences with modern art and literature.

The daughter of a Spanish artist, Miss Nin lived in France and Mexico before coming to California. Her novels have won recognition from Laurence Durrell, author of the "Alexandrian Quartet," and from Henry Miller who has mentioned her in several of his books.

• • • •

SEVENTY-SIX paintings and drawings by Piet Mondrian, the great Dutch painter of abstract art, go on display today at Santa Barbara Museum of Art, and will remain through Feb. 2. Valued at more than $2.5 million, the pictures have been assembled from museums, private collections and galleries throughout the country.

After the exhibit closes in Santa Barbara, it will go to the Museum of Fine Arts in Dallas, Tex., and to the Gallery of Modern Art in Washington, D.C.

"SELF PORTRAIT WITH BIRD," charcoal by Martin P. Mack, is one of 12 prize winners in the Sixth Annual Drawing Show which opens today at California State College, Long Beach.

Cliburn, Stern in Inaugural Concert

The traditional inaugural concert, which will honor Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphry, will take place in Constitution Hall, Washington, D.C., at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 19 on the eve of the inauguration.

Howard Mitchell will conduct the National Symphony which has performed at all presidential inaugurations since 1933. Guest soloists will be Van Cliburn, pianist; Issac Stern, violinist; Theresa Coleman, soprano; and Todd Duncan, baritone.

• • • • •

THE PROGRAM will open with Beethoven's "Leonore Overture No. 3," a musical treatment of the subject of human rights and political freedom.

Stern will perform "Adagio and Rondo" for violin and orchestra by Mozart and "Introduction and Rondo" for orchestra by Saint-Saens.

Cliburn will be soloist for the "Piano Concerto No. 1" by Liszt. The program will close with excerpts from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Duncan created the role of Porgy in the original 1935 production; Miss Coleman has been chosen by Mitchell as "the perfect Bess."

• • • • •

INVITATIONS to the concert were sent several weeks ago. Boxes seating five are $250. Other tickets are $25, $15, $10, $7.50 and $5. If any tickets remain after distribution to the invitees, they will go on sale at the National Symphony box office Monday.

Gilbert and Sullivan at Center

Final performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" will be given today at 2 and 7 p.m. by the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co. in the Pavilion of the Music Center, Los Angeles.

Three performances of "The Pirates of Penzance" will be offered Monday through Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. and "The Mikado" will be repeated Saturday at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m.

"The Pirates of Penzance" is the only one of Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas that had its world premiere in the U. S. Along with Richard D'Oyly Carte, the team had brought its original version of "H.M.S. Pinafore" to New York in 1879 to combat pirated productions of the musical comedy. Their "Pinafore" was so successful here that they were inspired to prepare another operetta to follow it. Thus "The Pirates" was written in New York and produced at the Fifth Avenue Theater on Dec. 31, 1879.

"The Pirates of Penzance" will be presented also Jan. 18 through 20 and will be followed by "Iolanthe" Jan. 22 through 24.

Want to Tour Pavilion? There Are Some 'Ifs'

In response to widespread interest in the new Pavilion of Los Angeles Music Center, the management has announced that group tours soon will be available.

There are, however, some restrictions.

Because visitors cannot enter the auditorium when it is in use, and because the house is almost solidly booked, evening tours will not be scheduled. Tours must be planned around the dates and times of performances and rehearsals, and there will be no tours on Saturdays or Sundays.

• • • •

ON DAYS not otherwise booked, tours may be arranged for groups of 15 or more, but the management warns that a large group becomes unwieldly and it is difficult for all members to hear the tour conductor. Approximately one hour should be alloted for the sightseeing trip and it must be timed so that all visitors can leave the building by 6 p.m.

• • • •

DATES MAY be scheduled after Jan. 18 by writing to the Music Center, attention Tours, 135 N. Grand Ave., Los Angeles 12. Alternate dates and the approximate number in the group should be given. To combine luncheon or dinner at one of the restaurants in the center with a tour, make reservations directly with either the Curtain Call or the Pavilion restaurants.

'Gateways' Leads Off Film Series

"Six Gateways to the Caribbean," first international Film Series program of the new year, will be presented at five local high school auditoriums this week.

Opening in the Wilson auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday, the film-lecture will be repeated Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan. Season tickets are still available at all Long Beach City College offices, and single admission tickets will be sold at the door each night.

• • • •

NARRATOR will be Eric Pavel, former staff member of the scientific film department of the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology and later the founder of the Pan American Press and Film Co. in Brazil. In recent years Pavel has produced educational and television documentaries in the United States and has done many special assignments for National Geographic Magazine.

"Six Gateways to the Caribbean" covers Panama, Venezuela, Haiti, Guatemala, Martinique and Trinidad.

Cliburn, Stern in Inaugural Concert

The traditional inaugural concert, which will honor Lyndon B. Johnson and Hubert H. Humphry, will take place in Constitution Hall, Washington, D.C., at 8:30 p.m. Jan. 19 on the eve of the inauguration.

Howard Mitchell will conduct the National Symphony which has performed at all presidential inaugurations since 1933. Guest soloists will be Van Cliburn, pianist; Issac Stern, violinist; Theresa Coleman, soprano; and Todd Duncan, baritone.

Cliburn will be soloist for the "Piano Concerto No. 1" by Liszt. The program will close with excerpts from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess." Duncan created the role of Porgy in the original 1935 production; Miss Coleman has been chosen by Mitchell as "the perfect Bess."

Gilbert and Sullivan at Center

Final performances of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore" will be given today at 2 and 7 p.m. by the D'Oyly Carte Opera Co. in the Pavilion of the Music Center, Los Angeles.

Three performances of "The Pirates of Penzance" will be offered Monday through Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. and "The Mikado" will be repeated Saturday at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m.

"The Pirates of Penzance" is the only one of Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas that had its world premiere in the U. S. Along with Richard D'Oyly Carte, the team had brought its original version of "H.M.S. Pinafore" to New York in 1879 to combat pirated productions of the musical comedy. Their "Pinafore" was so successful here that they were inspired to prepare another operetta to follow it. Thus "The Pirates" was written in New York and produced at the Fifth Avenue Theater on Dec. 31, 1879.

"The Pirates of Penzance" will be presented also Jan. 18 through 20 and will be followed by "Iolanthe" Jan. 22 through 24.

Opera Class Slated

Long Beach City College announces an opera production class, to be jointly taught by members of the music and theater arts departments, for the spring semester opening on Feb. 1. The class will be open both to singers and to persons interested in all other phases of opera production.

The new LBCC Opera Workshop, scheduled from 7-10 p.m. Wednesdays, grew out of the successful world premiere last spring of "Mike Fink," folk opera by Morris Hutchins Ruger of the City College music faculty.

• • • •

FIRST PRODUCTION this spring will be Jacques Offenbach's comic opera "La Perichole," scheduled for April 8-9 in the LBCC auditorium.

Auditions for singers and members of the chorus were begun last week by Wayne B. Gard, musical director. Dancers and persons interested in the dramatic and production phases of opera may make appointments with David M. Emmes of the theater arts department at the Liberol Arts campus, 4901 E. Carson St.

Works of Great Merit on View at LBMA

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Southern California Art Association," showing at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., through January, is a remarkable exhibit. Most of these 10 groups include some professional artists; even discounting these, the caliber of the work is high.

In the upstairs foyer, one is struck by "Blue Space," a thicket of vertical strokes of intense blues, greens, and purples by Joseph S. Cook of Westwood. Lynn Babior's "EveryMan Looking Around the Corner for Hope" in white, red, and gray is sprightly with its arrows and lollypop people. M. Berchin's "D-4" intaglio is thoughtfully enigmatic.

The Long Beach Association holds up very well. (The works were recently reviewed here.) Lakewood, too, makes it contribution, particularly in Judy Leiker's brilliant silk screen, "Fields, Fields, and Fields."

• • • •

DOWNSTAIRS is a handsome wood sculpture, "Autumn Corso," by Maria of Palos Verdes. The richly convoluted forms reveal marvels of wood grain. An astounding work, Mildred Beckstrand's "Double Profile," is a suggestive assemblage of three bones presented pristinely on a marble cube, shown under glass. Riley Smith's "Untitled" is in thin washes of pink and yellow . . . an enormously fat tattooed man in pink tights.

• • • •

FROM PASADENA, Walter Askin's "Tragic Garden" is strong action painting in oil, dynamic though small in scale. Two Riverside offerings are outstanding: "Grey Morning" by Mildred Zornes is a classic in transparent water color: "Decision of Lot" by Saul Bernstein is vast and powerful in overlayed glazes of oil.

This is just a brief sampling of 80 works, each of which has great merit.

Students to Compete for Awards

Long Beach junior and senior high school students will enter the 19th annual regional Scholastic Art Awards competition which is open to art students in nine Southern California counties.

Don Williams, art supervisor of Los Angeles City Schools and chairman of the awards, said some 6,000 entries are expected. Approximately 1,000 will be chosen for two weeks public exhibition at Bullock's Downtown store, Los Angeles beginning Feb. 13.

• • • •

A JURY of artists and art critics, headed by Williams, will judge the entries. They will select 300 to receive gold keys of achievement and 200 will be named finalists for entry in the 38th national Scholastic Art Awards later in the year.

Honors in the national competition include scholarships, gold medals, cash awards and display in the National High School Art Exhibition in New York City.

Isabel Connor, recently retired art supervisor of Long Beach Unified School District is a member of the Regional Advisory Committee.

Expedition Film Slated at LBMA

"Scott's Last Journey" will be screened at 3 and 8 p.m. Thursday at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The film vividly describes the expedition of Capt. Robert Falcon Scott and his four companions who died on their return journey from the South Pole in 1912.

Museum doors will open for the evening performance at 7:30 p.m.

'River Nile' at Dana Tuesday

"The River Nile," a full-length color film which high lights archeological treasures of Egypt, will be shown at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave., at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday.

The Long Beach Public Library's current weekly film series alternates between Dana and Alamitos Branches. Scheduling the films in different sections of the city and presenting afternoon programs at Alamitos Branch will provide better service for a larger number of people, says Miss Blanche Collins, City Librarian.

Auditions Scheduled

Spring high school graduates as well as performers on the college and graduate levels are eligible to audition for Juilliard School of Music scholarships Feb. 15.

The Naumberg and Lifshey scholarships in orchestral instruments (viola, string bass, oboe, English horn, bassoon, trombone, tuba) and the Satterlee scholarships for advanced singers with operatic potential will be held in the Sutro Auditorium, 4900 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles.

• • • •

JUDGES will be Jean Morel, conductor of the Juilliard Orchestra, and Christopher West, director of the Juilliard Opera Theater.

In addition to training and studying at Juilliard, winners will experience the excitement of living in New York City with its many cultural opportunities.

In the upstairs foyer, one is struck by "Blue Space," a thicket of vertical strokes of intense blues, greens, and purples by Joseph S. Cook of Westwood. Lynn Babior's "EveryMan Looking Around the Corner for Hope" in white, red, and gray is sprightly with its arrows and lollypop people. M. Berchin's "D-4" intaglio is thoughtfully enigmatic.

The Long Beach Association holds up very well. (The works were recently reviewed here.) Lakewood, too, makes it contribution, particularly in Judy Leiker's brilliant silk screen, "Fields, Fields, and Fields."

* * * *

DOWNSTAIRS is a handsome wood sculpture, "Autumn Corso," by Maria of Palos Verdes. The richly convoluted forms reveal marvels of wood grain. An astounding work, Mildred Beckstrand's "Double Profile," is a suggestive assemblage of three bones presented pristinely on a marble cube, shown under glass. Riley Smith's "Untitled" is in thin washes of pink and yellow . . . an enormously fat tattooed man in pink tights.

* * * *

FROM PASADENA, Walter Askin's "Tragic Garden" is strong action painting in oil, dynamic though small in scale. Two Riverside offerings are outstanding: "Grey Morning" by Mildred Zornes is a classic in transparent water color: "Decision of Lot" by Saul Bernstein is vast and powerful in overlayed glazes of oil.

This is just a brief sampling of 80 works, each of which has great merit.

Expedition Film Slated at LBMA

"Scott's Last Journey" will be screened at 3 and 8 p.m. Thursday at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The film vividly describes the expedition of Capt. Robert Falcon Scott and his four companions who died on their return journey from the South Pole in 1912.

Museum doors will open for the evening performance at 7:30 p.m.

Students to Compete for Awards

Long Beach junior and senior high school students will enter the 19th annual regional Scholastic Art Awards competition which is open to art students in nine Southern California counties.

Don Williams, art supervisor of Los Angeles City Schools and chairman of the awards, said some 6,000 entries are expected. Approximately 1,000 will be chosen for two weeks public exhibition at Bullock's Downtown store, Los Angeles beginning Feb. 13.

* * * *

A JURY of artists and art critics, headed by Williams, will judge the entries. They will select 300 to receive gold keys of achievement and 200 will be named finalists for entry in the 38th national Scholastic Art Awards later in the year.

Honors in the national competition include scholarships, gold medals, cash awards and display in the National High School Art Exhibition in New York City.

Isabel Connor, recently retired art supervisor of Long Beach Unified School District is a member of the Regional Advisory Committee.

'River Nile' at Dana Tuesday

"The River Nile," a full-length color film which high lights archeological treasures of Egypt, will be shown at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave., at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday.

The Long Beach Public Library's current weekly film series alternates between Dana and Alamitos Branches. Scheduling the films in different sections of the city and presenting afternoon programs at Alamitos Branch will provide better service for a larger number of people, says Miss Blanche Collins, City Librarian.

H-A-T IS OLD HAT

Teen Talk Is Going to Your Head

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON
I, P-T Fashion Editor

NEW YORK CITY—There's a whole new language beating the airwaves: frug, watusi, fab, mashed potato, Beatles, Rolling Stone, scopitone, Mod, Rocker, discotheque and Killer Joe.

"It's a language indicative of today's new way of thinking and doing," said in-the-know Rosemary McMurtry, fashion director of Seventeen Magazine.

She was making her point before a packed house at the Millinery Institute's spring showing for the nation's fashion press. "The language, the new beat belongs really to one age group, the teens," she continued.

"They are the ones who have taken up the torch of textured stockings and the new-again toeless shoes. They are the fashion leaders of today."

* * * * * *

IT WASN'T the first time this week we'd heard of the teen-age influence on fashion. New York designers, previewing their spring collections the past several days for the fashion press, have echoed that same philosophy over and over again.

But Miss McMurtry did more than talk about it.

To give fashion writers a firsthand look at what's happening in young fashions, she paraded a bevy of fresh-scrubbed teens in far-out spring get-ups straight from the pages of Seventeen.

The cute kooks appeared as grand finale for the showing of spring-summer collections by New York's couture milliners—Mr. John, Emme, Lilly Dache, Hattie Carnegie, etc.

* * * * * *

THERE WAS method in their madness.

As Miss McMurtry put it: "If EVERYONE today wants to look young . . . if the adults are emulating the young in music, dancing and fashion (and they are!), hats on the heads of the girl under 20 could put hats on the heads of adults."

But when mom sneaks a "hat" out of daughter Susie's closet come spring, it will probably be a "pitter-patter" (for rain), a "wind-scoop" (for blow-y days), a "solar shield" or a "wave-saver" (for sand and surf).

Don't say we didn't warn you, though mom. You dare not call it a H-A-T.

"Teenagers don't like the word," cautioned the teen-age fashion authority. "They don't think of hats as an important part of fashion. Their memories don't go back to the days when hats made big headlines."

Soooooo . . . the nation's milliners are meeting young girls on their own fashion cloud.

"We feel that the first step toward covering young heads with more than just head is to present headgear that is keyed specifically to the lives they lead."

THE SCARF HAT—soft, back-draped and pure teen-age 1965. In navy and white hound's-tooth checked acetate, with a bow at the neck, it flatters all face shapes and travels with ease, teen-age fashion. By Nell.

SMASHING WAY for teens to protect their hair from rain: a patent-vinyl "peakini" in wild combinations of polka dots and stripes to match or contrast with raincoat. By Ray Strauss.

FOR KEEPING HAIR fashionably anchored, Therese Ahrens white fishnet snood (left) with perky pink back bow. And for neat tresses while riding the air waves (bike or convertible), a chin-strap helmet. By Sally Victor.

The Show's Always On in the 'Big Tent' of New York

(Editor's Note: Mary Ellis Carlton, our fashion editor, is a gal who loves cities — big cities, little cities and medium-sized cities. In New York the past week to report the unveiling of spring collections by the fashion capital's top-name designers, she can't help but sop up some of the New York atmosphere. Here's her vignette of the Big City and its incesssant roar.)

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

NEW YORK CITY — A few fine citizens on earth are sideshows in themselves. New York is not one of those. New York is the Big Tent.

It's the headquarters, the main office, the nation's show window. It's yesterday, today and tomorrow . . . it's [illegible], skyscrapers and [illegible].

And it's Utopia for people-watchers and anything-watchers, like myself. Take Fifth Avenue . . .

Some of the best-dressed, best-groomed females you see on Fifth Avenue are poodles. This season, they're wearing everything from bright-colored sweaters to mink coats and jeweled collars.

Most often they're tugged from fireplug to lamp post by fur-clad fashionables at the other end of mink-trimmed leashes.

* * * * * *

SPEAKING of the animal kingdom, everytime I'm in New York I fear more and more for survival of our four-legged friends. How can they keep up the pace?

Every kind of fur known to man—and, especially, to women — is stalking the streets of New York — as coats, suits, babushkas, muffs, boot tops and collars.

Women here don't need hair—they just wear mink or fox pulled down over their ears.

And men are going furhatty, too. They cover their pates with fur toppers, usually Persian lamb or karakul, that look like Russian Cossack hats, fezs or Scotch Hihglander caps. One male designer showed up at a fashion show wearing brown seal coat. He likes it so well, he's having a black one made.

And now comes a zebra-covered automobiles (exclamation).

A 1965 Renault, it was put on display for the nation's fashion editors this week as the sideshow for Singer Sewing Machine's luncheon. "This is a custom-made job," said the auto designers. Sporting a thousand dollars worth of that striped fur, it was Renault's contribution "to the culture explosion" and was raffled off as a door prize.

Citizens of Cleveland, Ohio, can get set for a surprise—a Zebra on wheels. It was won by Cleveland's TV-gal Paige Palmer of station WEWS. Clutching the business end of my own raffle ticket, I was hoping — natch (exclamation) — that Long Beach would be its destination.

* * * * * *

AND, no doubt about it, New York is the shopping-est town on earth.

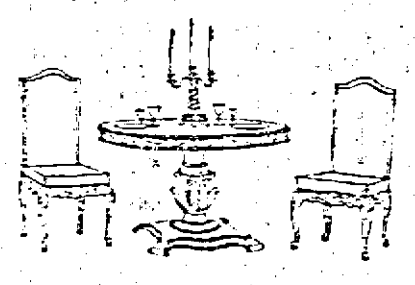

Here you can buy alligator soup, butterfly wings, kangaroo hides, old phonograph cylinders, zithers, death-curse candles, cat-sitter services, gambling luck powders and kosher chow mein.

Down on 58th Street, in the same posh block with Mr. John and his Napoleonic salon, there's a slither-narrow shop run by a gal named Maryln Evans, who has a new slant on pants.

A customer comes in before noon and gets fitted, picks out her material and gets the finished product the next morning—or, if it's an emergency, the customer may get them the same evening. Miss Evans calls them "instant slacks." "It's perfect for people who suddenly decide to go to Arabia or Venice or Concord on short notice," says Miss Evans.

And, no doubt, it's a service you can find only in New York. Across the street from the same shop is a place which sells second-hand fur coats that, the sign says, were worn by people whose names you would know. And up the block is a beauty salon that stays open all night.

Waring Is Sharing Pennsylvania Recipes

Fred Waring gets culinary assist from singer Ellen Warren

Chef of the Week

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

He's known as "The favorite of millions." His recipes will be YOUR favorites, too, after you've tried them. They're for Lemon Sponge Pie and Chicken Stew with Dumplings.

Since the Chef of the Week column is devoted to outstanding men who can cook (or sorta), we've chosen as today's candidate none other than Fred Waring, the maestro himself. He, you know, complete with "The Pennsylvanians," will bring their newest production to the stage of the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium, Thursday.

His musical fame started back in 1917. Billed as a "Banjazzatra" a small combo (two banjos, drums and piano) from Tyrone, Pa., Fred and Tom Waring, Poley McClintock and Fred Buck, played dance dates. Their uniforms: white trousers, green shirts and white bow ties. Their style: play-it-by-ear, singing all the way because "something had to carry the melody." The pay: $3 per player per evening.

* * * *

THE GROUP MADE its first radio appearance over Station WWJ, Detroit, in 1922. Result: Their first engagement as theater entertainers. Fred puts aside banjo for baton; marquee now reads "Waring's Pennsylvanians." A reviewer calls them a "jazz band riot."

The year 1928, Waring's Pennsylvanians perform at Les Ambassadeurs in Paris. Waring is awarded the Palms of the French Academy for his contributions to American music interpreting works of Cole Porter, Jerome Kern, George Gershwin, and other immortals.

From 1940 to '45, during five memorable war years, they satisfied millions. More than 1,00,000 service men were entertained at two Fred Waring unpublicized canteens. They recorded their famous interpretation of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" which, today, remains as one of America's favorites.

WARING'S endeavors have not all been in the line of entertainment. He has established a Fred Waring Music Workshop at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., where, each summer, upwards of 1,200 teachers and students in quest of new ideas and added college credits toward degrees, are joined by other music lovers seeking a new musical experience. They live in a "dorm" that was once a summer hotel, and spend eight hours a day learning Waring choral techniques and such elements in showmanship as program planning, staging, and lighting. They eat in a common dining room, and—might we say—enjoy EXCELLENT food . . . like this.

The recipes are supplied by Fred Waring himself. They're Pennsylvania Dutch, of course.

LEMON SPONGE PIE

1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
1 lemon—grated rind and juice

Mix sugar, flour and butter together. Add egg yolks, then rind and juice of lemon, then milk. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Bake in moderately hot oven until set.

CHICKEN STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

THE CHICKEN:

Boil 5 pound fowl until tender. Remove fowl and cut it into eight or more boneless pieces. In a saucepan melt ¼ pound butter, blend with 3 tablespoons of flour. Add stock to make a nice medium thick gravy. Let simmer for 10 or 15 minutes. Add to gravy 12 boiled silver onions, 12 small cut cooked carrots. Season with salt and pepper. Pour over the chicken and let simmer for five minutes.

THE DUMPLINGS:

Mix 1 to 1½ cups of sifted flour, 3 teaspoons of baking powder, 1 egg, pinch of salt, ½ cup milk. When mixed and ready, dip teaspoon in hot water and cut portions small or medium, drop in boiling and salted water for 10 minutes. Use a tight covered pot. Serve with the chicken.

What's on the Menu?

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Jan. 11-15:

MONDAY: Neapolitan macaroni, buttered whole kernel corn, cherry sauce with whipped topping, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

TUESDAY: Hamburger on bun, pickle chips, potato salad, sliced apples and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Lasagne, buttered spinach, apricot halves, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

THURSDAY: Turkey in gravy on mashed potatoes, garden salad, peach half, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

FRIDAY: Toasted cheese sandwich, creamy coleslaw, fruit gelatin, homemade peanut butter cookie and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 30c.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Spaghetti, southern style, creamy coleslaw, apricot halves, hot buttered French bread and milk.

TUESDAY: Taco, chili beans, buttered carrots, fruit gelatin, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Hot roast beef sandwich, mashed potatoes-gravy, waldorf salad, oatmeal cookie and milk.

THURSDAY: Lasagne, buttered spinach, cherry sauce with whipped topping, hot buttered French bread and milk.

FRIDAY: Baked fish with au gratin potatoes or tamale pie, buttered green beans, fruit ambrosia, raised biscuit-butter and milk.

'Hard Luck Joe' Cries

I ran into my old acquaintance "Hard Luck Joe" recently and as usual he had a tale of woe ready for my unwilling ears.

It wasn't bad enough that he had made an unfortunate play that cost him a rubber, but it seems that his partner had criticized him severely and he was looking for sympathy.

I sympathized with his loss, but could not help but feel that Joe had made the wrong play as usual.

He was sitting East and had won the first two tricks with the ace and king of hearts. Then he had led his singleton diamond, whereupon declarer had won that trick, cashed the ace and king of spades and conceded one trick to Joe's queen. As West pointed out, if Joe had led a club the defense would have made a club trick also.

Joe contended that the club play would only be successful if West would turn up with either king-queen or king-ten of clubs and the jack of spades and would lose any time West held the diamond ace and no spade jack.

JOE WAS closer to being right than he is most of the time but his play was bad. Even if West did not hold the jack of spades, there was no guarantee that South would finesse successfully for Joe's queen. Furthermore, if West held the king of clubs and not the ten, there was also no guarantee that South would make the right play in clubs. Joe had opened the bidding and might well have the club king as part of his opening.

So Domineering Now, What of the Future?

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I am 19 and going with a boy of 23. We are both working and plan to be married in the near future. He wants to be able to pay cash for all new furniture and all other necessities. I think that's a good idea.

My problem is that I want to buy a lot of the small things we need since I am working but he says "that's out!"

What is your opinion?—NO HOPE CHEST

DEAR NO HOPE CHEST:

Many girls have a "hope chest" long before they even start looking for the man to go with it. It's a lot of fun and I've never heard of a groom refusing to let her use it.

It's fine for a husband to insist on supporting his wife all by himself but when he goes so far as to refuse to let her buy (with her own money) little things she likes and needs, he is a little on the domineering side.

Right now, before the wedding, is a good time to let him know you also have a mind of your own and that you don't intend to let him become more than 50% boss of your lives.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I have been married two years and have an 11-month-old girl. My mother and his mother didn't approve of our marriage and they are constantly trying to cause trouble. They have even urged our old boy friends and old girl friends call us and ask us for dates, saying we were at odds.

At first we were polite about it but we finally got nasty and told them all off, had our phone number changed and unlisted. But, somehow, these people got the number and it started all over again. We don't mix with these people; our friends are young married couples like us.

What can we do now? We both love each other and worship our baby but sometimes all this outside interference causes trouble between us. We need advice so we have turned to you.—L.J.W.

DEAR L.J.W.:

What gall this pair of in-laws have! But what an easy way you have of erasing all the trouble they're trying to cause.

Don't disconnect the phone, don't have an unlisted number, don't refuse to answer calls. In fact, if such calls still come in, answer cheerfully and laughingly and say there must be some mistake, that you and your husband are most happily married, and that even though in-laws might be after causing trouble, you two couldn't care less.

Invite the friends to drop in and see the baby. Your happiness and cordiality will be answer enough.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I've been married 27 years, have a swell husband and three nice kids. The first 16 years I married for "worse." I played housekeeper, chauffeur (plus gas), baby sitter, nurse, adviser, pawn broker, funeral director, laundress and cook for relatives and in-laws.

Eleven years ago, I started clamping down, hurt a lot of feelings, but I made more room for our family with less expense and less work. Now some of my relatives and in-laws don't come around any more, thank heavens. One of them had the nerve to say, "You should be more of a helpmate!" I shut her up, too!

I got sick and tired of sponging, back-biting in-laws and relatives and decided to put a stop to it.

Did I do wrong? — NOT SORRY

DEAR NOT SORRY:

You did wrong in only one thing and that was letting yourself be kicked around and taken advantage of for 16 long years. (I have many letters from young women who are extremely set upon by close family and in-laws and I always try to tell them to establish their independence early in the game.)

You know—or at least you have found out—the more you allow yourself to be kicked around (or taken advantage of) the more you're going to be taken for a football.—M.M.

Waring Is Sharing Pennsylvania Recipes

Fred Waring gets culinary assist from singer Ellen Warren

Chef of the Week

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

He's known as "The favorite of millions." His recipes will be YOUR favorites, too, after you've tried them. They're for Lemon Sponge Pie and Chicken Stew with Dumplings.

Since the Chef of the Week column is devoted to outstanding men who can cook (or sorta), we've chosen as today's candidate none other than Fred Waring, the maestro himself. He, you know, complete with "The Pennsylvanians," will bring their newest production to the stage of the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium, Thursday.

His musical fame started back in 1917. Billed as a "Banjazzatra" a small combo (two banjos, drums and piano) from Tyrone, Pa., Fred and Tom Waring, Poley McClintock and Fred Buck, played dance dates. Their uniforms: white trousers, green shirts and white bow ties. Their style: play-it-by-ear, singing all the way because "something had to carry the melody." The pay: $3 per player per evening.

* * * *

THE GROUP MADE its first radio appearance over Station WWJ, Detroit, in 1922. Result: Their first engagement as theater entertainers. Fred puts aside banjo for baton; marquee now reads "Waring's Pennsylvanians." A reviewer calls them a "jazz hand riot."

The year 1928, Waring's Pennsylvanians perform at Les Ambassadeurs in Paris. Waring is awarded the Palms of the French Academy for his contributions to American music interpreting works of Cole Porter, Jerome Kern, George Gershwin, and other immortals.

From 1940 to '45, during five memorable war years, they satisfied millions. More than 1,00,000 service men were entertained at two Fred Waring unpublicized canteens. They recorded their famous interpretation of "Battle Hymn of the Republic" which, today, remains as one of America's favorites.

WARING'S endeavors have not all been in the line of entertainment. He has established a Fred Waring Music Workshop at Delaware Water Gap, Pa., where, each summer, upwards of 1,200 teachers and students in quest of new ideas and added college credits toward degrees, are joined by other music lovers seeking a new musical experience. They live in a "dorm" that was once a summer hotel, and spend eight hours a day learning Waring choral techniques and such elements in showmanship as program planning, staging, and lighting. They eat in a common dining room, and—might we say—enjoy EXCELLENT food . . . like this.

The recipes are supplied by Fred Waring himself. They're Pennsylvania Dutch, of course.

LEMON SPONGE PIE

1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
1 lemon—grated rind and juice

Mix sugar, flour and butter together. Add egg yolks, then rind and juice of lemon, then milk. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Bake in moderately hot oven until set.

CHICKEN STEW WITH DUMPLINGS

THE CHICKEN:

Boil 5 pound fowl until tender. Remove fowl and cut it into eight or more boneless pieces. In a saucepan melt ¼ pound butter, blend with 3 tablespoons of flour. Add stock to make a nice medium thick gravy. Let simmer for 10 or 15 minutes. Add to gravy 12 boiled silver onions, 12 small cut cooked carrots. Season with salt and pepper. Pour over the chicken and let simmer for five minutes.

THE DUMPLINGS:

Mix 1 to 1½ cups of sifted flour, 3 teaspoons of baking powder, 1 egg, pinch of salt, ½ cup milk. When mixed and ready, dip teaspoon in hot water and cut portions small or medium, drop in boiling and salted water for 10 minutes. Use a tight covered pot. Serve with the chicken.

What's on the Menu?

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of Jan. 11-15:

MONDAY: Neapolitan macaroni, buttered whole kernel corn, cherry sauce with whipped topping, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

TUESDAY: Hamburger on bun, pickle chips, potato salad, sliced apples and milk.

THURSDAY: Turkey in gravy on mashed potatoes, garden salad, peach half, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

FRIDAY: Toasted cheese sandwich, creamy coleslaw, fruit gelatin, homemade peanut butter cookie and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 30c.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Spaghetti, southern style, creamy coleslaw, apricot halves, hot buttered French bread and milk.

TUESDAY: Taco, chili beans, buttered carrots, fruit gelatin, whole wheat bread and butter and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Hot roast beef sandwich, mashed potatoes-gravy, waldorf salad, oatmeal cookie and milk.

'Hard Luck Joe' Cries

I ran into my old acquaintance "Hard Luck Joe" recently and as usual he had a tale of woe ready for my unwilling ears.

It wasn't bad enough that he had made an unfortunate play that cost him a rubber, but it seems that his partner had criticized him severely and he was looking for sympathy.

I sympathized with his loss, but could not help but feel that Joe had made the wrong play as usual.

He was sitting East and had won the first two tricks with the ace and king of hearts. Then he had led his singleton diamond, whereupon declarer had won that trick, cashed the ace and king of spades and conceded one trick to Joe's queen. As West pointed out, if Joe had led a club the defense would have made a club trick also.

Joe contended that the club play would only be successful if West would turn up with either king-queen or king-ten of clubs and the jack of spades and would lose any time West held the diamond ace and no spade jack.

JOE WAS closer to being right than he is most of the time but his play was bad. Even if West did not hold the jack of spades, there was no guarantee that South would finesse successfully for Joe's queen. Furthermore, if West held the king of clubs and not the ten, there was also no guarantee that South would make the right play in clubs. Joe had opened the bidding and might well have the club king as part of his opening.

MEMENTOS of a two-year stay in Iceland as a secretary for the State Department are displayed by Maxine Davis, now on home leave in Long Beach. The glistening rock is in bright shades of pink, lavender and gold and was gathered at a sulphur spring.

THE NEXT ADVENTURE IS TOKYO . . .

She's a Traveling Secretary

Fresh From Icelandic Idyl

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

The first night she was in her new apartment in Reykjavik, Iceland, the roof blew off.

"IT'S A VERY windy country," said Maxine Davis, who is visiting her family here en route from secretarial duties for the United State Department of State in Iceland to a two-year tour in Tokyo.

"It's also a very interesting country," Miss Davis continued. "Reykjavik, the capital, uses natural hot springs for hot water and 75% of its heating."

There are very few trees on the island. When an embassy employee returned from a leave spent in England and was absolutely glowing in his admiration of the trees he had seen, an Icelandic girl countered with a remark that she didn't like trees. "They spoil the view," she explained.

And the beautiful views are everywhere, according to Miss Davis. Called the "Country of contrasts with sunny summer meadows, steaming lava beds and ice fields.

"Icelanders are generally reserved until you get to know them," said Miss Davis. "I made some wonderful Icelandic friends."

Prior to her duty in Iceland, Miss Davis was stationed in Lima, Peru.

"The history there is so astounding," she said. "Everyone should see the magnificent ruins of Cuzco and Macchu Pichu, the Inca settlements."

"I WENT TO WORK for the State Department after 14 years as corporate secretary and secretary to the president of UPA Pictures in Hollywood because it seemed like a wonderful chance to see the world.

"Not only am I seeing the world, but meeting so many people with different and wider ranges of interest than I had before.

"One thing I have found is that people all over the world have the same hopes and fears and ambitions."

A new residence in a new country every two years can provide a few problems. In Tokyo, furnished quarters are provided embassy employees, so the furniture Miss Davis bought in Peru and had shipped to Iceland is now in storage in New York.

Miss Davis leaves San Francisco Jan. 21 by ship, her first ocean voyage. "I've always been in too much of a hurry before."

She will bid fond farewell to her mother, Mrs. Olive Davis, and her sisters, Mmes. Robert Hildreth and Glynn Cleland, all of Long Beach, knowing that she'll return in two years with stories to tell of a first hand glimpse of the Far East.

INFORMATION concerning secretarial and clerical work with the Department of State in Washington and overseas may be obtained by writing the department in care Federal Office Building, Room 11420, 450 Golden Gate, San Francisco.

There are very few trees on the island. When an embassy employee returned from a leave spent in England and was absolutely glowing in his admiration of the trees he had seen, an Icelandic girl countered with a remark that she didn't like trees. "They spoil the view," she explained.

And the beautiful views are everywhere, according to Miss Davis. Called the "Country of contrasts with sunny summer meadows, steaming lava beds and ice fields.

"Icelanders are generally reserved until you get to know them," said Miss Davis. "I made some wonderful Icelandic friends."

Prior to her duty in Iceland, Miss Davis was stationed in Lima, Peru.

"The history there is so astounding," she said. "Everyone should see the magnificent ruins of Cuzco and Macchu Pichu, the Inca settlements."

"I WENT TO WORK for the State Department after 14 years as corporate secretary and secretary to the president of UPA Pictures in Hollywood because it seemed like a wonderful chance to see the world.

"Not only am I seeing the world, but meeting so many people with different and wider ranges of interest than I had before.

"One thing I have found is that people all over the world have the same hopes and fears and ambitions."

A new residence in a new country every two years can provide a few problems. In Tokyo, furnished quarters are provided embassy employees, so the furniture Miss Davis bought in Peru and had shipped to Iceland is now in storage in New York.

Miss Davis leaves San Francisco Jan. 21 by ship, her first ocean voyage. "I've always been in too much of a hurry before."

She will bid fond farewell to her mother, Mrs. Olive Davis, and her sisters, Mmes. Robert Hildreth and Glynn Cleland, all of Long Beach, knowing that she'll return in two years with stories to tell of a first hand glimpse of the Far East.

INFORMATION concerning secretarial and clerical work with the Department of State in Washington and overseas may be obtained by writing the department in care Federal Office Building, Room 11420, 450 Golden Gate, San Francisco.

Toast Lightly

Here's a dessert quickie the youngsters will love. Place canned cling peach halves cup-sides up in shallow pan. Fill centers with marshmallow creme and sprinkle generously with chopped peanuts. Slip under broiler for a minute to heat peaches and toast marshmallow creme lightly.

GOING TO HAWAII?

That Little Grass Shack Is Waiting

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

So you are planning that trip to Hawaii—the newest state that had more than 400,000 visitors in 1964 — but you are worried about finding hotel accommodations upon arrival.

Relax. More than 9,400 hotel rooms are available in Honolulu's Waikiki district alone, with 2,000 more either under construction or on the drawing boards.

The island of Maui, second as a destination resort area, has almost 1,000 available rooms. Kauai and Hawaii, other spots on the itinerary of most visitors, are well-stocked with rooms and have more building, some of which will open in February.

If this is to be your first visit to Honolulu in a year or two, the beach skyline is going to surprise you. Several magnificent new hotels, among them the Ilikai, are imposing and offer the ultimate in accommodations.

• • • •

BUT THOSE who said five years ago that Waikiki was then "overbuilt" hotel wise should take a long look at the building going on now. Among new hotels expected to see completion there within the next 12 to 24 months are the 212-room Alohalani, on the fringe of Kapiolani park; the 500-room Outrigger being built on the old Outrigger Canoe Club site; a 300-room convention-type hotel to be constructed next to the 30-story Ilikai, and a 19-story, 350-room addition to the Moana Hotel. Plans also have been announced for a 450 to 500-room hotel across from Kuhio beach.

More than 500 of the 1,000 units on Maui are located in the Lahaina-Kaanapali-Napili area. Most recently finished is the 160-room increment of the Kaanapali Hotel, first resort in the $60 million Janss Corporation-American Factors development which ultimately will include 2,500 rooms, convention facilities, shopping complex and golf course. (Janss, it will be remembered, recently purchased the Sun Valley Resort in Idaho from Union Pacific.)

Inter-Island Resorts has announced it will operate a 200-room resort in this development as has Hilton, who is planning a 200 to 400-room hostelry in the same area.

• • • •

OTHER HOTELS are announced or building in the Kapalua Beach and Iao Valley areas.

Sixty units open in February in the Kalapaki cliff cottage at Kauai Surf, on Kauai, and a summer completion is slated for a 98-unit addition to the resort.

On the Island of Hawaii, Kona Village—Hawaii's first luxury-type dude ranch — will open in the summer at Kaupelehu. Ground-breaking took place recently for the 300-room Pacific Empress Hotel in Kona, the construction should start soon on a Hilton Inn in Kona.

But the largest of the new hotels on Hawaii is the Mauna Kea Beach, within a few minutes by car from the Parker Ranch. This 154-room hotel, financed by Laurance Rockefeller, should open by early summer.

• • • •

WHAT TO SEE in the flamboyant Hawaii spring, once you get quartered?

Coming up Feb. 8, and extending through March 28, the Honolulu Cherry Blossom Festival. Japanese movies and classic theater. Kimono parades and oriental fashion shows. Fireworks. Lantern parades. Pageantry like that.

Next, on March 26, comes Kuhio Day. Typical Hawaiian celebration honoring Prince Kuhio. Ancient chants. Royal Hawaiian Band special concert and the like.

Then, April 8, comes Wesak Day (Buddha) observance. April 18, interdenominational Easter Sunrise services at Punchbowl National Memorial Cemetery. Finally, April 21-23, the Merry Monarch Festival at Hilo, on the island of Hawaii. This is big stuff.

Aloha!

Everybody gets whipped up about the wine and mushrooms and pasta in Rome. Not many people find a real sleeper—the ice cream. The best in Europe. Maybe the best in the whole world. And the best place for it is the ice cream place right alongside Tre Scalini in Piazza Navona.

RICHARD R. EPPING, 34, of Torrance, has been appointed district agency and interline manager for National Airlines, it is announced by district sales manager Ed Lepper. He has been with National since 1962.

Rail Tour to Sea World

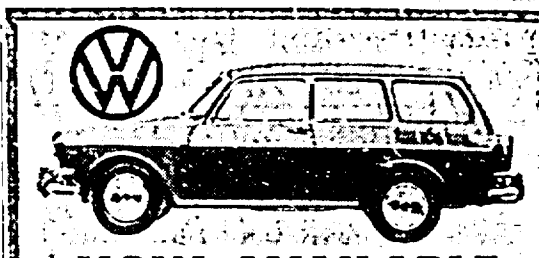

A special excursion train, using hi-level passenger cars, as well as an old-time, open-platform observation car, will be run by Santa Fe Railway from Los Angeles to San Diego next Sunday. A four-hour stop-over is scheduled, allowing excursionists time to visit Sea World, San Diego's newest tourist attraction, on Mission Bay.

The train, leaving Los Angeles Union Station at 9 a.m., will stop at Fullerton and Santa Ana to pick up additional passengers. Arrival back in Los Angeles is set for 7 p.m.

Fares, including bus from San Diego station to Mission Bay and admission to Sea World, are announced at $11.50 for adults and $7.55 for children. For tickets or further information contact Santa Fe or Golden West Rail Tours, sponsors of the excursion, at 2210 S. Sepulveda Blvd., Los Angeles.

Colorful Fiji

The 300 islands of the Fiji group form one of the largest archipelagos of the South Pacific. Suva, the capital, is one of the most colorful cities of the South Seas. Its harbor is always busy, as are its winding streets with Indian shops and huge central market. Photographers cannot resist pictures of Fijian policemen as they direct traffic in their wrap-around skirt.

Discover New Luxury

By BILL EMERY

American Motors, whose policy is one of continuous improvement, has produced a series of Ramblers for 1965 with the most sweeping advances in Rambler's history. With three different sizes and wheelbases — American, Classic and Ambassador—Rambler offers a choice of seven advanced engines including both sixes and V-8s.

Spectacular transmission options include a choice of column shift of floor shift for the Flash-O-Matic (automatic), and a twin floor shift —one automatic and the other manual with overdrive. A column shift overdrive is offered optional with the latter.

Our motorlog car for this adventure, an Ambassador hardtop, was sponsored by Jim Pinegar, general manager of Rancho Rambler, 2160 Long Beach Blvd. in Long Beach.

With Rambler's top-of-the-line luxury car, we set out to visit Gene Autry's Ocotillo Lodge in East Palm Springs at 1111 Palm Canyon Drive where we made our headquarters in a smartly decorated bungalow facing the hour-glass pool.

All suites, bungalows and villas have a sitting room, bedroom, kitchen, spacious bath and private patio or lanai. TV and music are also furnished along with refrigerated air conditioning.

Unique among desert resorts, the Ocotillo (named after a desert candlewood tree) is designed in true harmony with the desert on a low horizontal plane. Sounds pass over the sprawling villas and bungalows instead of reverberating back as they do on towering structures.

Winter rates are now in effect to the first of May and range from $30 to $48 per couple on the European plan.

The service and food are considered by many frequent patrons of Palm Springs' better restaurants as the finest in gourmet dining. Moderate in price, elegant in decor and breathtaking in combining the desert and mountain panoramic views, Ocotillo's Terrace dining room offers Ambassador pleasure to its dinner guests.

Ambassador pleasure, to those drivers unfamiliar with the new longer '65, is spectacular performance—327 cubic inch V-8 engine, stunning combination of extras—bench seat, bucket seats with console or center arm rest, or wide bucket seats (all of which recline) that touch together like a bench seat, and sensible extra values—body and frame in one unit, deep-dip rustproof body and curved side windows.

An interesting side trip about six miles up Palm Canyon from Ocotillo Lodge takes you to Andreas and Palm canyons where 3,000 palm trees extend 15 miles up a beautiful canyon. These trees have survived fire, flood and all the harshness of the desert climate for centuries.

There are nearly a hundred canyons in the Colorado desert and Baja California where these native California palms thrive. A Lt. W. H. Emory of the U.S. Army is credited with discovering the first group of trees about 1772 (no doubt while doing a "horse-log").

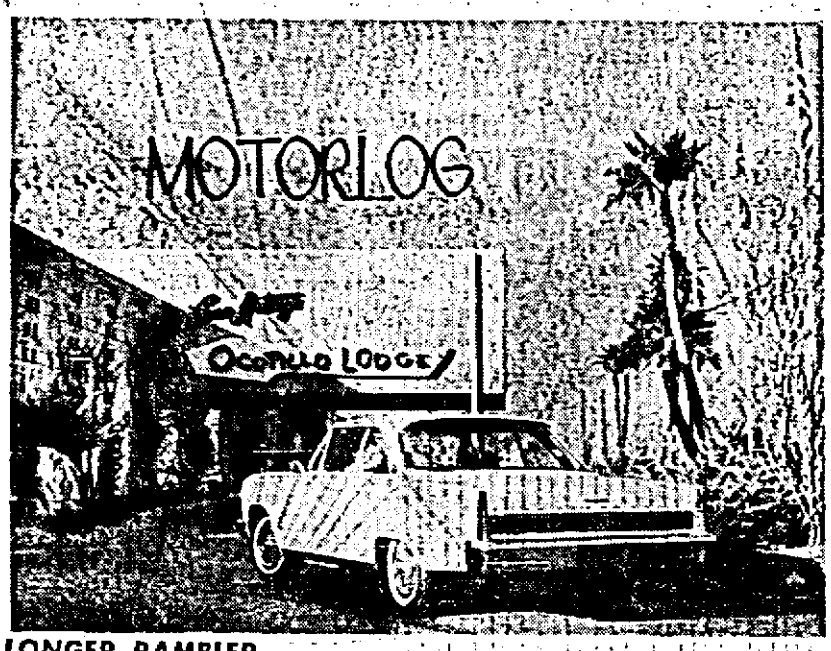

At Andreas canyon are well-preserved Indian relics, a large cave used by the tribe and grinding holes in the rocks where the women prepared their food. Traces of Indian sign writing are still visible on the rocks over the cave.

Botanists are still debating the origin of these palms. Fossil remains are found from Mexico to Alaska. One theory suggests that these are the survivors of great palm groves that once grew along the shores of prehistoric Lake Cahuilla. Another theory contends that the Gulf of California once extended into this area and that these palms grew along its tropical shores.

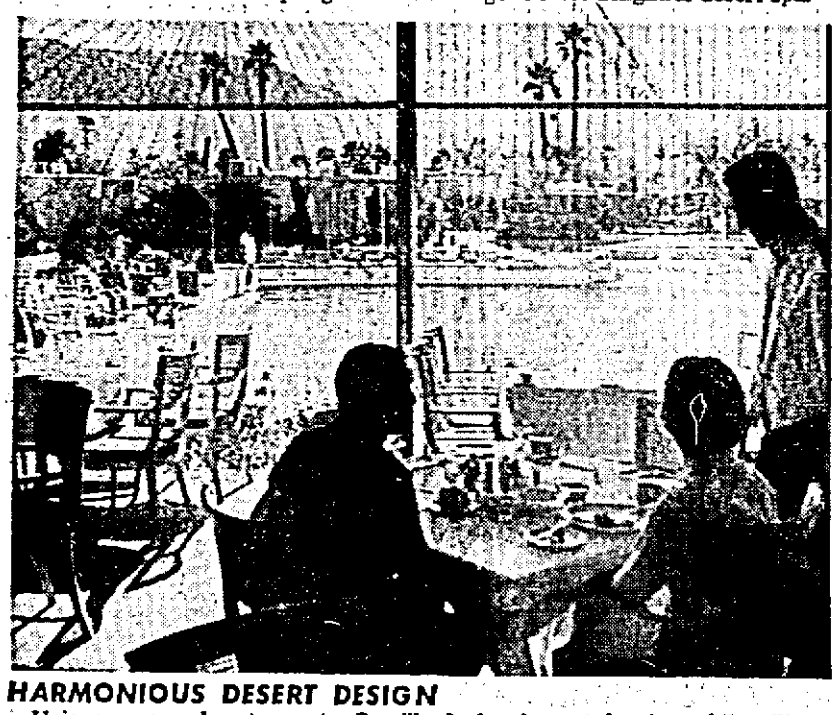

Mother nature provided the Indians with fresh water and cool shade from the desert in the summer and the healing mineral springs a short distance away on the desert for summer and winter bathing.

The Indians still control most of this valuable land, and the Palm Springs Spa stands today as the finest equipped spa in the world.

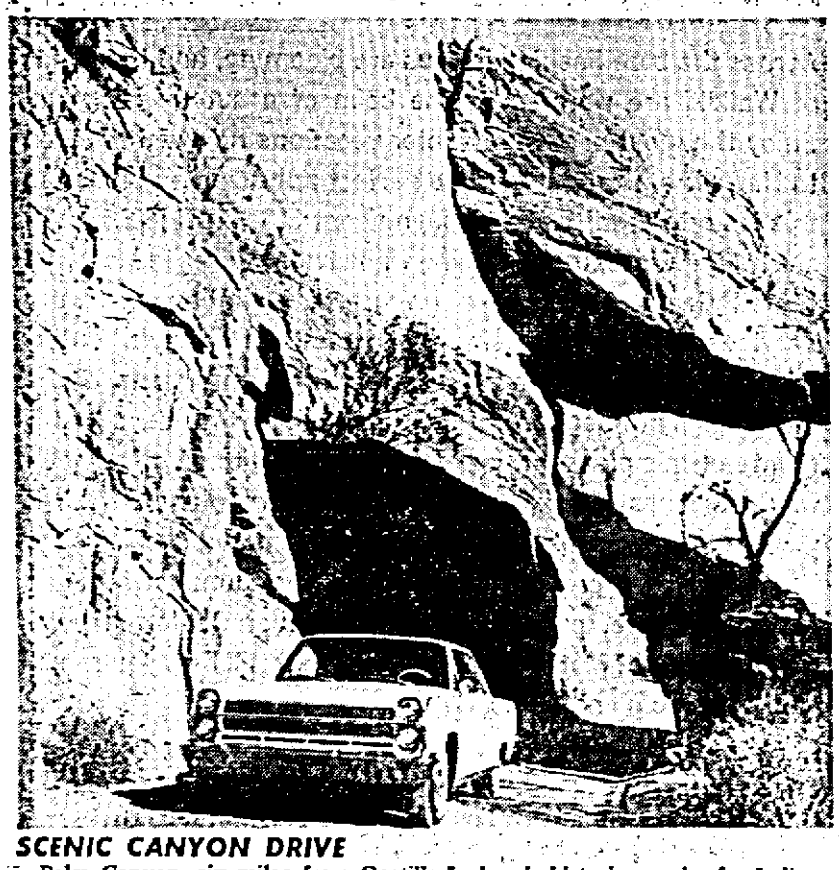

Something else that's better equipped than ever is the elegantly new Ambassador for 1965. Here is a car full of surprises in ride, style and luxury appointments. Pricewise, we're convinced that it's far below its Detroit rivals. This car will come on strong in '65!

LONGER RAMBLER
The 1965 Ambassador, elegantly longer, is full of surprises and luxury optional features. Palm Springs' Ocotillo Lodge is most delightful desert spa.

HARMONIOUS DESERT DESIGN

SCENIC CANYON DRIVE

OUR COVER

Ever since Noah received the olive branch from the dove, birds have fascinated mankind. Modern space-hopping might have been delayed much longer if our ancestors had not admired birds and envied their ability to fly. From Leonardo da Vinci to the Wright brothers, all who sought the airways have studied nature's construction for flight. Ancients of wealth maintained aviaries and a modern industry is based upon birds as pets and show business performers. Palos Verdes Bird Farm is a modern center of such activity, and the macaw that graces Southland's cover resides there. With him is Charlene Geisel of Rolling Hills, author of "That Swingin' Birdland Set," a story about the bird farm, on Page 9.

NEW WEEK

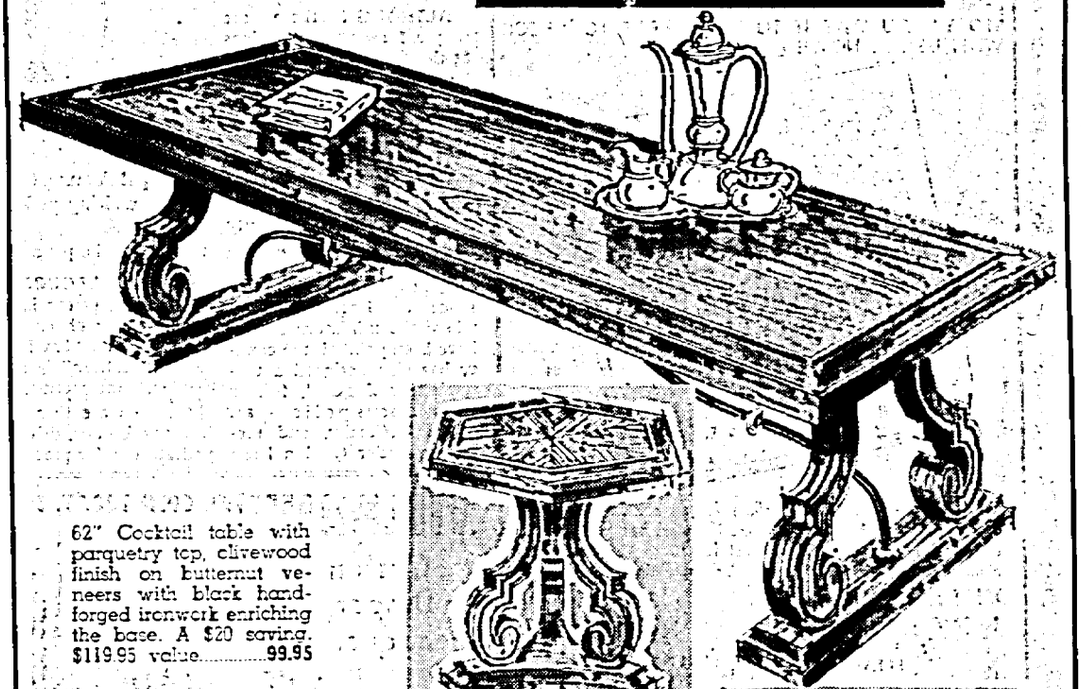

Thousands of couples every year drift through the quickie divorce mills and the hurry-up marriage bureaus as casually as a stroll down the avenue, giving never a thought to the legality of shedding mates and acquiring new ones. What may be legal in one state or one country, may not be recognized at all in another. In fact, some remarriages may be quite bigamous should there ever be a question in court. An attorney discusses this problem in "The Marital Merry-Go-Round" in next Sunday's Southland Magazine.

A NEW LOOK AT SAFETY

Traffic School for Tiny Tots

By Bill Stephens

"TRAFFIC School," a pilot project conducted by Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation on Tuesdays and Thursdays at Roosevelt Park in Los Angeles, puts tiny tots behind the driver's wheel for a new perspective on safety.

Driving over miniature streets in kiddy cars, youngsters ranging in age from 4 to 7 years practice traffic safety in a program which might serve as a model to public parks and recreation departments everywhere.

Streets conventionally marked with lanes, pedestrian cross-walks, stop signs, a portable traffic signal, and even lined with sidewalks and play school and hospital buildings, test the children's knowledge of safety, both as pedestrians and drivers.

ALTHOUGH there are frequent rear-end collisions at the outset, by the end of three one-hour sessions included in each course the children are thoroughly versed in basic safety.

The county department is running the pilot project at the request of Supervisor Kenneth Hahn. His deputy Phil Pennington saw the program in Vancouver, B.C.

Aside from providing space at Roosevelt Park where the miniature streets have been painted, the county has also assigned a uniformed park guard, former Massachusetts policeman Elmer McCarthy, and recreation leader Gordon Horn to conduct the program.

Oops! Youngster drives through hospital zone crosswalk without noticing waiting pedestrians. He'll learn the law in the county's traffic school.

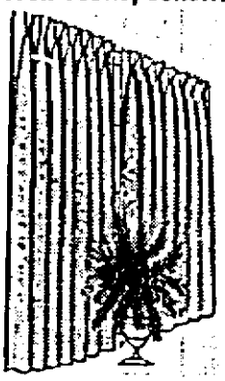

AT THE BEGINNING of the course, safety laws are taught to the children. Walt Disney's film "I'm No Fool as a Pedestrian" is used to reinforce instruction.

Children are then divided into two groups, drivers and pedestrians, for practical application of classroom lessons.

They are tested at the program's conclusion, and successful graduates are awarded certificates.

Traffic School for Tiny Tots

By Bill Stephens

"TRAFFIC School," a pilot project conducted by Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation on Tuesdays and Thursdays at Roosevelt Park in Los Angeles, puts tiny tots behind the driver's wheel for a new perspective on safety.

Driving over miniature streets in kiddy cars, youngsters ranging in age from 4 to 7 years practice traffic safety in a program which might serve as a model to public parks and recreation departments everywhere.

Streets conventionally marked with lanes, pedestrian cross-walks, stop signs, a portable traffic signal, and even lined with sidewalks and play school and hospital buildings, test the children's knowledge of safety, both as pedestrians and drivers.

ALTHOUGH there are frequent rear-end collisions at the outset, by the end of three one-hour sessions included in each course the children are thoroughly versed in basic safety.

The county department is running the pilot project at the request of Supervisor Kenneth Hahn. His deputy Phil Pennington saw the program in Vancouver, B.C.

Aside from providing space at Roosevelt Park where the miniature streets have been painted, the county has also assigned a uniformed park guard, former Massachusetts policeman Elmer McCarthy, and recreation leader Gordon Horn to conduct the program.

AT THE BEGINNING of the course, safety laws are taught to the children. Walt Disney's film "I'm No Fool as a Pedestrian" is used to reinforce instruction.

Children are then divided into two groups, drivers and pedestrians, for practical application of classroom lessons.

They are tested at the program's conclusion, and successful graduates are awarded certificates.

The Loom of Recovery

When a stroke laid E. R. Tanner low, he turned to weaving for very successful therapy. He is shown at his loom where he spends many hours.

By Walter Finch

FOR 32 YEARS E. R. Tanner was a downtown Long Beach fixture.

From 1930 to 1962 he operated a bath and massage parlor at 22 Elm Ave.

Then a stroke laid him low, resulting in partial paralysis.

"You can either weave, or you can take expensive therapy," doctors told him.

The choice was easy, because he already had a loom, and some skill in weaving.

NOW TANNER spends happy days and many evenings in a workshop converted from a garage at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Diona L. Finn, 4417 La Cara St., creating rugs, carpeting, place mats, etc., of exceptional beauty.

"I built my first loom about the time I opened up downtown," he says. "I used rags, old garments, whatever people gave me.

"Came the war, and you know what I got one time? NINE gunnysacks of men's socks. Where did they come from? The induction center. The boys who were drafted took off their clothes and put on uniforms. They figured they wouldn't need civies for a while, if ever. Nine gunnysacks of socks came to me. It took a long time to work them out. There may still be a few around.

"After the stroke, I bought a better, bigger loom that can do fancier things than the old one. Now I work mostly in yarn — have 20 colors on hand."

TANNER LIKES to work out intricate patterns and unusual color combinations. Some of his rugs are reversible, the sides of different colors.

Tanner believes that the weaving, which employs arms and hands, feet and legs, has helped restore the use of those paralyzed members.

TRAVELTOWN:

Land of the Little Engineers

Author's Photo

Young cowboy screams delight at Traveltown. In background is a Navy bomber of World War II.

Two narrow-guage steam locomotives that once puffed around the sugar plantations of Hawaii arrived via Matson Navigation Co. ship and are now in service for fun at Griffith Park's Traveltown.

By Jodi Lawrence

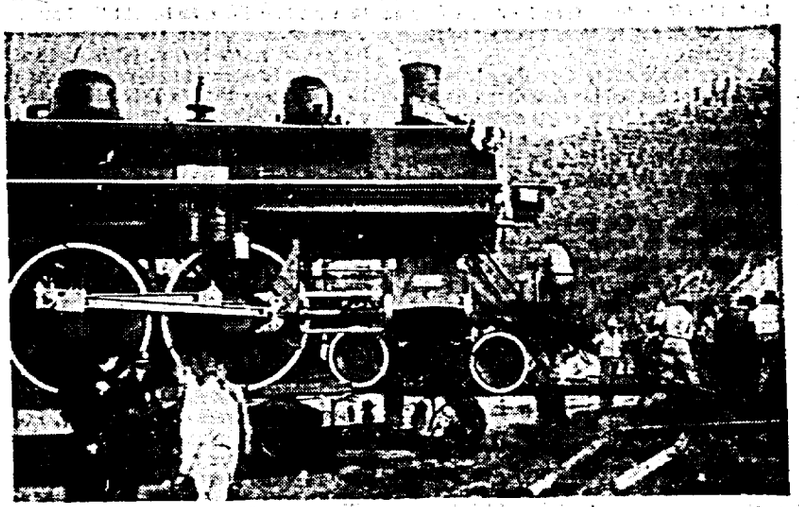

IMAGINE what happens when a child is turned loose among acres of real trains, planes and boats in a world of mechanical wonder where visitors may "steer" and "drive" all exhibits. Such a place is the newly redeveloped Traveltown, an admission-free transportation park in Griffith Park recently reopened after extensive remodeling by the Los Angeles Park Commission.

Traveltown visitors enter through the buff-colored doors of the Arcadia Railroad Depot and find themselves among hundreds of transportation vehicles, many in working order. In the rear of the public park is the new exhibition hall housing a display of transport models, photographs, and such classic cars as a 1904 Cadillac and a 1927 Packard.

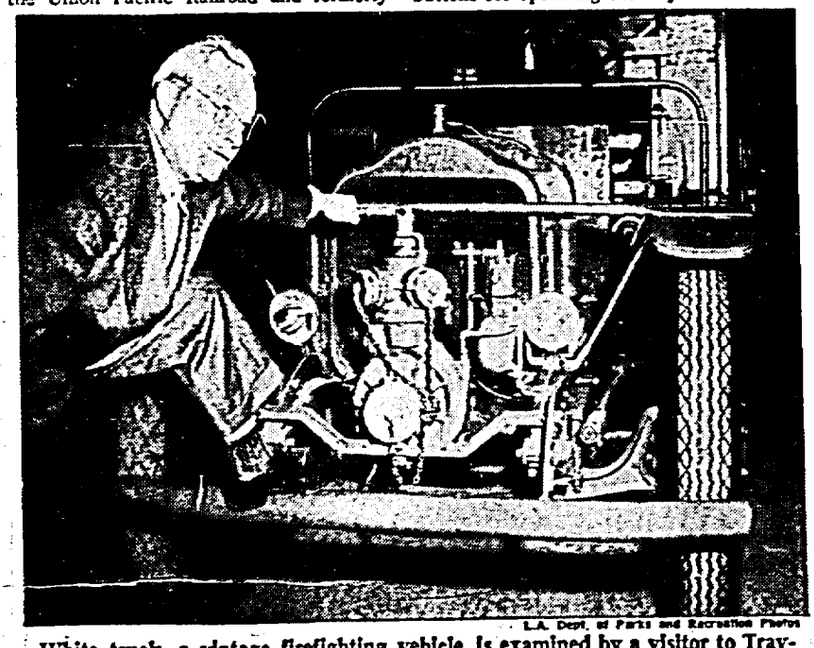

Prize park exhibits include the famous "Little Nugget" lounge car which was furnished at a cost of more than $150,000 by the Union Pacific Railroad and formerly served on the crack streamliner "City of Los Angeles." This much-photographed car features velvet-covered walls, photos of famous vaudevile and theater stars and flickering gas lights. The car was donated to Traveltown by Union Pacific.

Los Alamitos Naval Air Station donated a Cutlass fighter plane with folding wings, and a Neptune bomber, that flew hundreds of missions in World War II in the European theater of action. The big Neptune bomber was flown to Los Angeles International Airport by a volunteer group of pilots, The Flying Ducklings. The group then dismantled the plane, carted it to Traveltown and reassembled it for exhibition.

THE CHILDREN'S favorite at the park, to date, seems to be the Revell Car, a full-sized railroad car crammed inside with model trains and fitted with banks of push buttons for operating the tiny models.

Southern Pacific's Locomotive 3025 made a dramatic entrance to Traveltown with more than 24 workmen, two truck firms and police supervising journey.

L.A. Dept. of Parks and Recreation Photos

White truck, a vintage firefighting vehicle, is examined by a visitor to Traveltown. Other ancient automobiles on display: 1904 Cadillac, 1927 Packard.

Fire equipment exhibits represent the past in such restored models as the 1920s' engine with its wooden wheels, and the present in a shiny 1950s fire truck given by the city of San Fernando.

A truly historic locomotive at the park is Engine 3025, Southern Pacific's unit used to haul the campaign trains of four United States Presidents campaigning in California—Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Warren Harding.

ANOTHER EXHIBIT, Eastern Railroad's Engine No. 1, ran the longest in service of any locomotive in the United States, hauling lumberjacks and gold prospectors between Sacramento and Stockton for 86 years.

Traveltown was conceived and promoted as a public service by the late Charles Atkins. Atkins lost a fortune in stocks and bonds during the depression days, and went to work for the park department as a maintenance man. He loved trains and dreamed of a vast transport park, filled with real transport vehicles so children could roam freely and play at being engineers. By 1952 he had gathered enough exhibits by soliciting donations from various transport companies for the first Traveltown opening.

The park lacked organization and few people knew of it. Last year, funds were allocated for development of the project by the Los Angeles Park Commission. The two-phased program has been completed and included realignment of exhibits, laying of 1,000,000 railroad ties, construction of a large exhibition hall and museum and extensive landscaping.

ALMOST EVERY item at Traveltown is a donation or is on "permanent loan." The Southern California Gas Co. donated a gaily-decorated wagon. The United States Marine Corps gave a World War II tank, and RKO Studios sent a river boat that figured in countless western movies.

When the Los Angeles Transit Lines donated a streetcar, park officials had to transport it on a special truck. Today, the streetcar is a favorite picnic spot.

Free rides are currently available on the Oahu train, a narrow gauge steamer from Hawaii's sugar cane fields. Other free rides are planned for the future. Two special Traveltown services are individual lecture tours and weekend parties, both available with advance reservation. The birthday parties are given by the park department for a minimum charge of $3 for up to 20 people, and feature ice cream, soda, and a cake decorated with a train in icing. Reservations are available by telephoning Area Code 213, MAdison 4-5211, Department of Parks and Recreation.

Traveltown is located on Crystal Springs Drive in Griffith Park, east of the zoo area, and is open from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m. daily. Guided tours depart hourly from the Arcadia Depot on the grounds.

Free tickets anyone?

Sutter's Fort still stands, a monument to history.

'Gold from the American River!'

Sutter's Fort, as depicted in a woodcut in Gleasons' Pictorial, Boston, in 1851. Stronghold was a goal and a haven for immigrants to California.

By Hortense Hoffman

"I BELIEVE this is gold," James W. Marshall whispered.

He arrived at Sutter's Fort in a lashing rain, unexpectedly. He demanded that Capt. John Augustus Sutter see him alone, and lock his office door. Then he unwrapped a dirty cotton rag to show the gold in flakes and grains.

They made every test they knew and then Sutter opened his Americana Encyclopedia and they tried every suggested test. Without knowing how much misfortune this would bring to him, Sutter felt inward misgiving as he agreed, "This is the finest kind of gold."

In spite of the continued heavy rain, Sutter went to the place on the American River where Marshall had started to build a sawmill for him. It would never be completed because here was where the gold had been washed out of the soil. Sutter picked up samples and had a finger ring made bearing his coat-of-arms, and inscribed "The first gold discovered in January, 1848." Men working at the mill claimed that they had "salted" the tailrace with gold to make "Old Cap" feel good. However, many nuggets were found so that the discovery was no longer a secret. In fact, a Mormon storekeeper, Sam Brannon, ran down a main street in San Francisco, swinging his hat in one hand and holding a quinine bottle full of gold dust, yelling, "Gold! GOLD! Gold from the American River!"

IF GOLD had not been discovered on his property, John Augustus Sutter could have become the richest man in the world. When he was a young man, 31 years old, he was penniless, and owed 35,000 francs in Switzerland. He would have been sentenced to prison for debt. But he left his wife and five children and came to the New World to earn a place in history in the settling of California and by helping immigrants who came overland.

He came to the Sacramento Valley by way of Indiana, Missouri, the Santa Fe Trail, the Rocky Mountains, the Columbia River, Fort Vancouver, the Sandwich Islands (Hawaii) and Sitka, Alaska. King Kamehameha of the Islands was impressed with Sutter. He gave his permission for eight Kanaka seamen (two of whom were married and brought their wives) to work for Sutter. He was to pay them each $10 a month and if they wished to return to the islands after three years he would send them home. They never wanted to leave him and served him so well that he said he never could have built Sutter's Fort nor controlled the unfriendly Indians without them.

Since California belonged to Mexico, Sutter had to become a Mexican citizen in order to be eligible to own land. Gov. Alvarado, who was glad to have the Sacramento Valley developed, granted him 11 leagues of land, the largest he could give by law. Sutter represented the Mexican government in his district, holding power of life and death over the Indians and whites alike. When the Russians decided to leave Fort Ross, he bought the Fort from the Russian-American Fur Co. for $30,000. He gained many horses, cattle, cannon, a launch and assorted furnishings. During the 10 years from 1839 to 1849 he became famous and powerful. He employed newcomers and Indians in extensive industries: fur trade, tannery, distillery, bakery, blanket factory, mill, and planted wheat and other products.

WITH THE gold rush everything was ruined. Nobody worked. Everybody mined. His tannery, for example, was a total loss, filled with half-finished leather and a large stock of raw hides. Squatters took up claims on his land.

After the United States moved into California, ceded by Mexico just before gold was discovered, the government changed to American military rule. Leading citizens organized a constitutional assembly. Sutter was one who went to Monterey to write a state constitution. By the time 31 guns saluted the adoption of the constitution, his star had fallen. The fort passed into many other hands and the thick walls crumbled.

When he left his family in Switzerland he did not hear from them for two or three years, even after he had established himself in California. It took his letter a year to be received whether he sent it via the Hudson's Bay Co., which conducted a regular express service over the Rocky Mountains to Canada with 50 armed men, or whether he sent it with someone going to Sitka, Alaska, from there with the Russian mail to St. Petersburg by way of Kamchatka and Siberia.

AFTER 15 YEARS, his eldest son joined him at Sutter's Fort. John A. Sutter Jr. arrived in 1848 when his father was being swindled out of his property, and pressed for immediate payment by the Russian company. Sutter put everything in his son's name and moved to his farm on the Feather River. There he lived with his wife, daughter and two sons until the house burned down on June 21, 1865, destroying historical records.

The rest of his life was spent trying to get government compensation for the loss of his land grant. The California legislature voted him $15,000 in 1864, to be paid $250 per month for five years. In Washington, Congress adjourned on June 16, 1880, without passing the bill to compensate Sutter with $50,000, but he died two days later at the age of 77 years in Lititz, Pa., a German community. It was there that the California historian, Hubert Howe Bancroft, interviewed him in 1876:

"He was rather below medium height and stout. His features were of the German cast, broad full face, fairly intellectual forehead, with white hair, bald on top, white side whiskers, mustache and imperial; a deep, clear, earnest eye met yours truthfully. Seventy-five years sat upon him not heavily. He was suffering severely from rheumatism and used a cane to assist him in walking about the house. He complained of failing memory but I saw no indication of it in the five days dictating which followed."

SUTTER'S FORT State Historical Monument stands in the heart of old Sacramento, capital of California. The State Indian Museum is on the fort grounds. Thousands of visitors, young and old, in Scout groups, classes and separately, wander around the exhibits, wondering how the world of today evolved from yesterday, as seen in these historic museums.

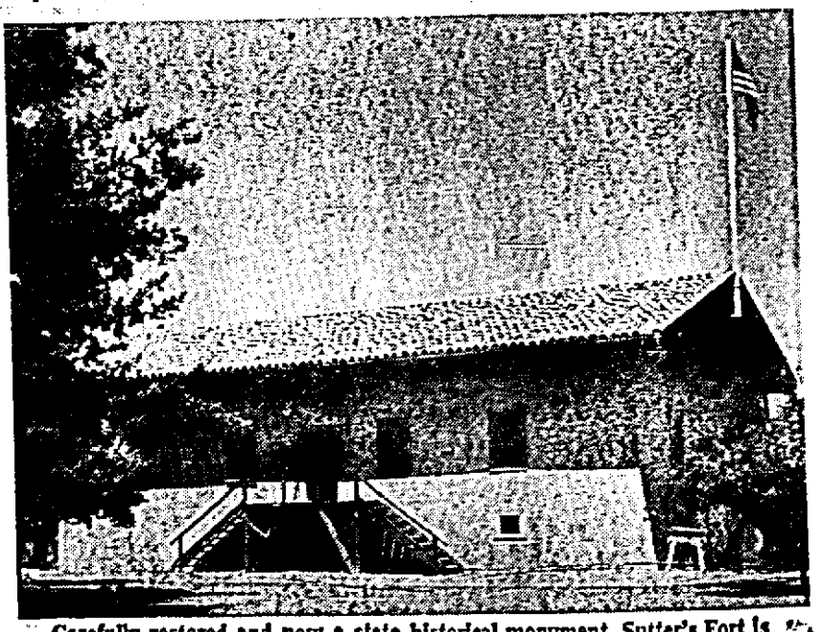

The fort dwindled to a crumbling central building in the 1860s through the '80s. In 1888, the Native Sons of the Golden West raised $20,000 to purchase the property and donated it to the state. The California legislature voted funds to reconstruct and maintain the fort and work commenced in 1891.

In 1958, workmen began the re-restoration of the central building. Since 1947, it had become a part of the state park system, administered by the Division of Beaches and Parks, Department of Natural Resources. The policy of the Division is to restore historical properties, as far as possible, to their original appearance. Consequently, contemporary descriptions, particularly a plan of the fort made by Sutter, published in Germany in 1848, were studied carefully.

THE CENTRAL building, like the rest of the original fort, was made of sun-dried adobe bricks. During the first restoration, holes in the walls were filled with regular bricks, cement or new adobe, so that the effect was a patchwork covered with cement stucco. This stucco was removed in 1958-59, the joists between the bricks were refilled with thorite, sand and cement, and the foundations were strengthened. The walls, inside and out, were resurfaced to carry out a uniform adobe finish and this concealed the first patchwork. The heavy floor joists, which Sutter had his Indians hew from oak trees, suffered from time and beetles, so that a number had to be replaced. All were then reinforced with iron T-bars inserted in the top of each joist where they cannot be seen. A new floor and a shake roof were installed in keeping with the Sutter period.

The central building had been Sutter's administrative center with offices, dining room, parlor, and private quarters. In the basement he is said to have stored powder, balls, guns and various supplies.

Sutter's Fort was the goal for weary, thirsty and starving immigrants coming over plains, mountains and desert. They always found food, shelter, help for every need. It is a lasting monument to a unique California pioneer.

Carefully restored and now a state historical monument, Sutter's Fort is a mecca for tourists and townspeople alike in valley of the Sacramento.

Sutter's Fort still stands, a monument to history.

That Swingin' Birdland Set

By Charlene Geisel

Miss Paradise, above, has enjoyed distinction in recent years as "world's most wanted bird." She's worth close to $1,000. Left above, Cookie, a cockatoo, likes an under-wing scratch such as Hank Bates is administering. Left below, three Australian finches are real "swingers," taking to the swing-perch together. Below, two blue and gold macaws that are good pals. Both hope that some visitor to their bird farm home will give them appropriate names.

THE INTERNATIONAL jet set has taken over at the Palos Verdes Bird Farm. Most of the new headliners hail from the four corners of the world, and many have experienced remarkable adventures along the way.

For instance there's Miss Paradise. Her globe-trotting began when she was captured in the Moluccan Islands and sold to a United States naval commander. That was only a couple of years ago. Since then she has been kidnaped twice, once by a smuggler, and, just recently, by a young Canadian fugitive. Through persistent detective work the valuable cockatoo, $1,000 worth, was rescued and returned to a safe perch. To help keep her there, she and the rest of the flock at the bird ranch are guarded, during the night, by the security patrol and a trained police dog.

Miss Paradise is by no means the only "flight queen" at the Walteria birdland. Besides two male Moluccan cockatoos, imported to keep her company, she is surrounded by up to 1,000 near and distant relatives. They range through 50 to 75 species of birds. Included in the group are finches, Java temple birds, parrots, cockatoos, rare and familiar forms of parakeets, and the rainbow-hued macaws. (See Southland cover.)

MACAWS, despite their foreboding beaks, and massive talons, usually are quite gentle. One former resident of the Palos Verdes farm liked to be picked up and carried around like a babe in arms. At other times he enjoyed gripping a finger inserted into his beak and then swinging to and fro. All macaws are not so easily handled. Most of them, however, are highly intelligent and fun loving. The young play together in a rough and tumble manner resembling puppies. Because of this activity, their tail feathers are often ripped and broken.

Four colorful South American parrots are on view at the farm. They replace former representatives destroyed in a fire at the aviary a year ago. Many of the new birds are unnamed, due to the loss of so many pets in the fire. Suggestions for naming the macaws are desired from visitors.

Only two dedicated aviculturists such as owners Hank Bates and Bob Busenbark could have rebuilt and restocked their establishment so quickly. Working, sometimes as many as 16 to 18 hours a day, the foster brothers have completely restored the aviary. Hank and Bob have had lives that closely parallel each other. Both of them have been collecting and breeding tropical birds and fishes since they were children. Bob stayed in Hank's home for a while and they were in the Air Corps together. Both graduated from Fresno State College. After graduation they became so involved with their mutual interest of raising birds that they decided to go into business. They chose a Southern California location because of the easy access to shipping ports.

THE PALOS VERDES Bird farm has been in business since 1952. Needless to say, both of the men were deeply shocked by last year's fire and the loss of their huge stock of birds. Nearly 1,000 died, among them Tommy, a greater sulphur-crested cockatoo. A movie and TV star, this popular bird would have visitors from all over the country attend his court. Upon verification of his death many of his fans actually shed tears.

Cookie, a bird of the same species as Tommy, is now in training to take over where his predecessor left off. Although he still has a lot to learn in order to fill the previous cockatoo's perch, he's making rapid strides in that direction. Cookie dearly loves attention, especially from the ladies. He likes to be rubbed under his wings and on top of his crest, and he will ask visitors to attend to whichever of the two spots are bothering him the most. No mimic, this bird really knows what he's talking about. If he wants a cracker he will ask for it; and no substitutes, please.

Sole survivor of the disastrous fire is Jiggs, a female conure (half-moon) parrot. As a reward for coming through the drastic experience, in one piece, Hank Bates gave her the pick of a half-dozen male conures for a mate. She made her selection and the pair are now busy raising their family in a large private cage.

Unfortunately, the possibility of adopting one of these intelligent birds as a pet seems to grow more remote every year. The high price—cockatoos from $500, macaws, around $200—excludes the majority of bird fanciers. The Psittacine law, a 120-day quarantine on all parrots, is partly responsible for the price hike. During this four-month period, the bird is closely observed to make certain it doesn't carry the Ornithosis virus, the organism causing parrot fever. Since the quarantine is often accomplished in zoos or aviaries that charge up to a dollar per day for food and care, it isn't difficult to understand the high cost of most members from the psittacidae tribe. No parrot may enter this country unless this rule has been complied with.

IN AN AGE of antibiotics, and advanced virus control methods the Psittacine law, passed in the 1930s, is actually outdated. In the first place, say experts,

Some Didn't Have It So Good!

By HOYT McAFEE

JAMES KNOX POLK, 11th President of the United States, felt like giving some of his White House callers a good swift kick in their rumble seats! Too many of them thought they could put "the bite" on Polk for a quick personal loan.

This was how the President recorded his experiences with them: "Had the usual number of callers today. I was greatly annoyed by beggars for money and the beseeching wails of last-minute job seekers. The idea seems to persist among many persons that the President has an obligation to contribute to every loafer who applies — provided he swears that the sum he wants will be used to build a church or college!"

In a moment of high drama, four years earlier, James Knox Polk had been nominated as the first "dark-horse" presidential candidate in U.S. history. On the heels of that "overwhelming surprise" (to Polk) came a decisive victory for his ticket in the national election.

BUT NOW, with inauguration day for his successor less than two weeks away, Polk could suppress his "disenchantment" with the presidency no longer. Unmistakably the prospect of returning to private life imbued him with "a feeling of relief and cheerful anticipation."

But whereas Polk became President without desiring the office, not so the everlasting bachelor from Cove Gap, Pa. — James Buchanan. He fought for the top prize with a zeal and persistence seldom if ever matched in public life.

On his fourth try, in 1856, he finally made the grade!

After all that strenous effor and sacrifice to reach the White House, expectations were that he'd shrug off any disappointments he might encounter in office. Toward the end of his term, however, Buchanan wrote a close friend:

"I am heartily tired of my position as President. Frankly, I shall leave it in March with much greater satisfaction than when I first assumed the duties of this office."

AS FOR Buchanan's successor—a rail-splitter named Abraham Lincoln — historians singled him out as one of the five greatest Presidents of all time. But he had numerous moments of anguish and self doubt.

In a "fretful and depressed mood" one day, he voiced these revealing sentiments: "From boyhood on, my ambition was to be President . . . Now look at me! Fire in my front and rear. I have to contend with the jealousies of my military commanders.

"From Congress I receive no cordial cooperation or support—even though an active and formidable enemy in the field threatens the very lifeblood of the government. The presidency is a white elephant on my hands. How I wish I had never been born!"

Despite those "assaults of melancholia," as historians call them, Lincoln had a rare talent for "bouncing back" to a creative level. He'd seek out a trusted friend and swap funny stories—bits of humor—with him.

LINCOLN'S "lonely strolls" about night-time Washington proved even more revitalizing to him. Striking off alone and unguarded, he'd literally "walk his troubles away" — later returning to the White House much refreshed in mind and spirit.

In the earliest days of our Republic, President George Washington, as President, spoke with feeling of the "tortured attacks upon me and my administration." He went on: "I am referred to in exaggerated and indecent terms, as could scarcely be applied to Nero, a notorious defaulter, or even pickpocket!"

Both Washington and Thomas Jefferson grew heartily weary of serving as President. "Long Tom," the spirited red-head from Virginia, summed up his feelings thusly:

"I am tired of an office where I can do no more good than others—who would be glad to be employed in it. It brings me unceasing drudgery and daily loss of friends. One consolation sustains me: The belief that my fellow citizens at large will give me credit for good intentions."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
Times of Frustration

W. HOWARD TAFT
'Most Lonesome Place'

Years later John Quincy Adams (the only son of a former President to win this country's highest office) spoke despairingly of his White House term. He insisted: "The four most miserable years of my life were spent in the Presidency!"

INDIAN FIGHTER William Henry Harrison lived only one month after his inauguration in March 1841.

But that proved long enough for him to "sour" on the office. One of his scribbled memos eloquently bears that out:

"Job-seekers pack the White House every day. They pursue me so closely that I cannot attend to the necessary functions of nature!"

James A. Garfield had no wish to be President of the U.S. His Republican colleagues thrust the nomination into his unwilling hands —and Garfield's election followed soon afterward. After one stormy month in the White House, Garfield wailed:

"My God—the misery I feel here! What is there in this place (the White House) to make men seek it?"

AFTER GARFIELD'S assassination, Chester Alan Arthur succeeded to the Presidency. He found much to arose his scorn and contempt in his "new home." Consider one of his "milder" outbursts:

"Have you seen this—the White House? I will not live in a house looking this way! If Congress refuses me an appropriation, I will go ahead and make improvements out of my own pocket.

"It is a house full of modern abominations of upholstery and garish gilding! All the rooms look staring, pretentious, and Frenchy. God almighty—what a creepy place!"

Rutherford B. Hayes entered the White House after the most heated post-election dispute in history. Newspapers of that day openly assailed him as "a cheat and a fraud"—sure, in their prejudiced opinion, that Hayes had "stolen" the election from Samuel Tilden, the Democratic candidate.

These storms of abuse appear to have ruffled Hayes, but not as much as one might expect. This was what he wrote a friend, "I am not liked as President—by the politicians in office, by the press, or by Congress. But," he added, "I am content to abide the judgment—the sober thought—of the American people."

BULKY WILLIAM Howard Taft was another who found the Presidency "no bed of roses." He lamented: "I have come to the conclusion that the major part of a President's work consists of increasing gate receipts at expositions and fairs—and luring tourists into town!"

"I'll be damned if I'm not getting tired of this! It seems to be the profession of a President simply to hear other people talk. And to those who envy me this office, let me say: The White House is the most lonesome place in the world!"

Woodrow Wilson reached a conclusion similar to the one arrived at by Taft. He summed it up: "The office of President requires the constitution of an athlete, the patience of a mother, and the endurance of an early Christian. Thus the President is a superior kind of slave!"

With such an outpouring of disappointment from Presidents over their terms of office, the reader may wonder: What about the others? Did any of them speak of their Presidential roles in more hopeful, creative, and encouraging words?

HISTORIANS provide the answer to that — an emphatic "yes." For example, Harry Truman made these intriguing observations: "What would Christ have preached if he had taken a poll in Judea? What would have happened to the Protestant Reformation if Martin Luther had taken a poll?

"Polls and public opinion of the moment aren't all that count. A President must decide between right and wrong, accept the challenges of leadership, and let the courage of his convic-

Some Didn't Have It So Good!

By HOYT McAFEE

JAMES KNOX POLK, 11th President of the United States, felt like giving some of his White House callers a good swift kick in their rumble seats! Too many of them thought they could put "the bite" on Polk for a quick personal loan.

This was how the President recorded his experiences with them: "Had the usual number of callers today. I was greatly annoyed by beggars for money and the beseeching wails of last minute job seekers. The idea seems to persist among many persons that the President has an obligation to contribute to every loafer who applies — provided he swears that the sum he wants will be used to build a church or college!"

In a moment of high drama, four years earlier, James Knox Polk had been nominated as the first "dark-horse" presidential candidate in U.S. history. On the heels of that "overwhelming surprise" (to Polk) came a decisive victory for his ticket in the national election.

BUT NOW, with inauguration day for his successor less than two weeks away, Polk could suppress his "disenchantment" with the presidency no longer. Unmistakably the prospect of returning to private life imbued him with "a feeling of relief and cheerful anticipation."

But whereas Polk became President without desiring the office, not so the everlasting bachelor from Cove Gap, Pa. — James Buchanan. He fought for the top prize with a zeal and persistence seldom if ever matched in public life.

On his fourth try, in 1856, he finally made the grade!

After all that strenous effor and sacrifice to reach the White House, expectations were that he'd shrug off any disappointments he might encounter in office. Toward the end of his term, however, Buchanan wrote a close friend:

"I am heartily tired of my position as President. Frankly, I shall leave it in March with much greater satisfaction than when I first assumed the duties of this office."

AS FOR Buchanan's successor—a rail-splitter named Abraham Lincoln — historians singled him out as one of the five greatest Presidents of all time. But he had numerous moments of anguish and self doubt.

In a "fretful and depressed mood" one day, he voiced these revealing sentiments: "From boyhood on, my ambition was to be President . . . Now look at me! Fire in my front and rear. I have to contend with the jealousies of my military commanders.

"From Congress I receive no cordial cooperation or support—even though an active and formidable enemy in the field threatens the very lifeblood of the government. The presidency is a white elephant on my hands. How I wish I had never been born!"

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
Times of Frustration

W. HOWARD TAFT
'Most Lonesome Place'

Despite those "assaults of melancholia," as historians call them, Lincoln had a rare talent for "bouncing back" to a creative level. He'd seek out a trusted friend and swap funny stories—bits of humor—with him.

LINCOLN'S "lonely strolls" about night-time Washington proved even more revitalizing to him. Striking off alone and unguarded, he'd literally "walk his troubles away" — later returning to the White House much refreshed in mind and spirit.

In the earliest days of our Republic, President George Washington, as President, spoke with feeling of the "tortured attacks upon me and my administration." He went on: "I am referred to in exaggerated and indecent terms, as could scarcely be applied to Nero, a notorious defaulter, or even pickpocket!"

Both Washington and Thomas Jefferson grew heartily weary of serving as President. "Long Tom," the spirited red-head from Virginia, summed up his feelings thusly:

"I am tired of an office where I can do no more good than others—who would be glad to be employed in it. It brings me unceasing drudgery and daily loss of friends. One consolation sustains me: The belief that my fellow citizens at large will give me credit for good intentions."

Years later John Quincy Adams (the only son of a former President to win this country's highest office) spoke despairingly of his White House term. He insisted: "The four most miserable years of my life were spent in the Presidency!"

INDIAN FIGHTER William Henry Harrison lived only one month after his inauguration in March 1841.

But that proved long enough for him to "sour" on the office. One of his scribbled memos eloquently bears that out:

"Job-seekers pack the White House every day. They pursue me so closely that I cannot attend to the necessary functions of nature!"

James A. Garfield had no wish to be President of the U.S. His Republican colleagues thrust the nomination into his unwilling hands —and Garfield's election followed soon afterward. After one stormy month in the White House, Garfield wailed:

"My God--the misery I feel here! What is there in this place (the White House) to make men seek it?"

AFTER GARFIELD'S assassination, Chester Alan Arthur succeeded to the Presidency. He found much to arose his scorn and contempt in his "new home." Consider one of his "milder" outbursts:

"Have you seen this—the White House? I will not live in a house looking this way! If Congress refuses me an appropriation, I will go ahead and make improvements out of my own pocket.

"It is a house full of modern abominations of upholstery and garish gilding! All the rooms look staring, pretentious, and Frenchy. God almighty—what a creepy place!"

Rutherford B. Hayes entered the White House after the most heated post-election dispute in history. Newspapers of that day openly assailed him as "a cheat and a fraud"—sure, in their prejudiced opinion, that Hayes had "stolen" the election from Samuel Tilden, the Democratic candidate.

These storms of abuse appear to have ruffled Hayes, but not as much as one might expect. Glass is used extensively in the living room, another view of which is shown above. Beyond the glass is a portion of the entrance court yard.

Living room sofa curves for a full eighteen feet.

Burnished gold occasional chairs are across the way. Stone surrounding the fireplace is enhanced by a black steel hood above the fireplace itself.

The high, beamed ceiling of the living room extends across to the adjacent dining room. Chairs are upholstered in avocado with gold leaf and the large oval table is set on two pedestals. A large chandelier hangs above the table. Plaques on the wall are original and unusual — King Solomon's Warriors. A custom made Mediterranean grass plant stands majestically near the floor-to-ceiling glass wall. Carpeting in the rooms is neutral off-white.

The master bedroom is furnished in Italian modern. An out-size floral display on a pedestal picks up all the colors in the bedspread. The bath overlooks a private garden.

The family room is done in oiled walnut furnishings with a contemporary modern decor. Rust, black and gold tones predominant.

The home is one of the showplaces of the area, skillfully designed and decorated with no small detail overlooked.

Solomon's Warriors add interest to the dining room, which has its own garden view through wall of glass. Beyond the garden is a harbor inlet.

WITH PENNSYLVANIANS

Heir to Talent

By Vera Williams

FRED WARING JR. Heir to Talent

FRED WARING JR. will be among the favorites welcomed when the Pennsylvanians—and his famous dad—appear next Thursday in the Municipal Auditorium.

Heir to a prodigious musical name, with talent to match, Fred Jr. is bass trombonist with the Pennsylvanians, and he handles a variety of executive assignments.

Fred Jr. was with the Pennsylvanians in 1955 and 1956, then he joined the Navy band for two years. Next came four years at the University of Indiana. His musical mentors include such notable teachers as Thomas Beversdorf, William Bell and Buddy Baker. His experience includes a stint with the Warren Covington orchestra before he joined the Pennsylvanians.

WARING — the father — believes that on stage action is as important to a concert as to a musical show. During a Waring presentation, there are no static moments, and the evening is characterized by a kaleidoscopic forming and reforming of groups, as in a ballet.

The music man says the 1964-65 season was four months taking place, with tryouts of new material, auditions for additional performers and rehearsals at home base — Shawnee-on-Delaware in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, followed by four weeks of intensive work at the rehearsal center at Delaware Watergap, Pa. Musicians and singers rehearse separately at first, then are brought together to work out the details of the production. Then come lights, action and costume ideas.

VIRGINIA (Mrs. Fred) Waring, decorator and designer, decides on the costumes. Dancer Nadine Gae, wife of producer-stage manager Ray Schroeder, works out the choreography and the action. Conductor-commentator Waring develops comfortable interchange with featured Pennsylvanians as the show takes shape.

The 1965 Waring concert will reflect the know how of 49 seasons on the road. As usual, Waring will defy typing as the conductor of popular, jazz, classical and semi-classical music; his group will play the field in orchestral, choral and solo approaches and in a combination of all three. As usual, the orchestra will include a choral section as well as the traditional sections of brass, woodwinds and strings.

Recipe of the Week

CANDIED squash is this week's prize recipe, winning $5 for Mrs. George Childress, 13301 Nevada St., Westminster. The recipe:

Heir to Talent

By Vera Williams

FRED WARING JR.
Heir to Talent

FRED WARING JR. will be among the favorites welcomed when the Pennsylvanians—and his famous dad—appear next Thursday in the Municipal Auditorium.

Heir to a prodigious musical name, with talent to match, Fred Jr. is bass trombonist with the Pennsylvanians, and he handles a variety of executive assignments.

Fred Jr. was with the Pennsylvanians in 1955 and 1956, then he joined the Navy band for two years. Next came four years at the University of Indiana. His musical mentors include such notable teachers as Thomas Beversdorf, William Bell and Buddy Baker. His experience includes a stint with the Warren Covington orchestra before he joined the Pennsylvanians.

WARING — the father — believes that on stage action is as important to a concert as to a musical show. During a Waring presentation, there are no static moments, and the evening is characterized by a kaleidoscopic forming and reforming of groups, as in a ballet.

The music man says the 1964-65 season was four months taking place, with tryouts of new material, auditions for additional performers and rehearsals at home base — Shawnee-on-Delaware in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains, followed by four weeks of intensive work at the rehearsal center at Delaware Watergap, Pa. Musicians and singers rehearse separately at first, then are brought together to work out the details of the production. Then come lights, action and costume ideas.

VIRGINIA (Mrs. Fred) Waring, decorator and designer, decides on the costumes. Dancer Nadine Gae, wife of producer-stage manager Ray Schroeder, works out the choreography and the action. Conductor-commentator Waring develops comfortable interchange with featured Pennsylvanians as the show takes shape.

The 1965 Waring concert will reflect the know how of 49 seasons on the road. As usual, Waring will defy typing as the conductor of popular, jazz, classical and semi-classical music; his group will play the field in orchestral, choral and solo approaches and in a combination of all three. As usual, the orchestra will include a choral section as well as the traditional sections of brass, woodwinds and strings.

Here's a cake that hasn't seen an oven. It's an Orange Cheese Cake . . . fragile but fullsome and low in calories.

No-Bake Cake

By Mildred K. Flanary

Sunland Magaine Home Economics Editor

IT LOOKS FATTENING! . . . but it isn't!

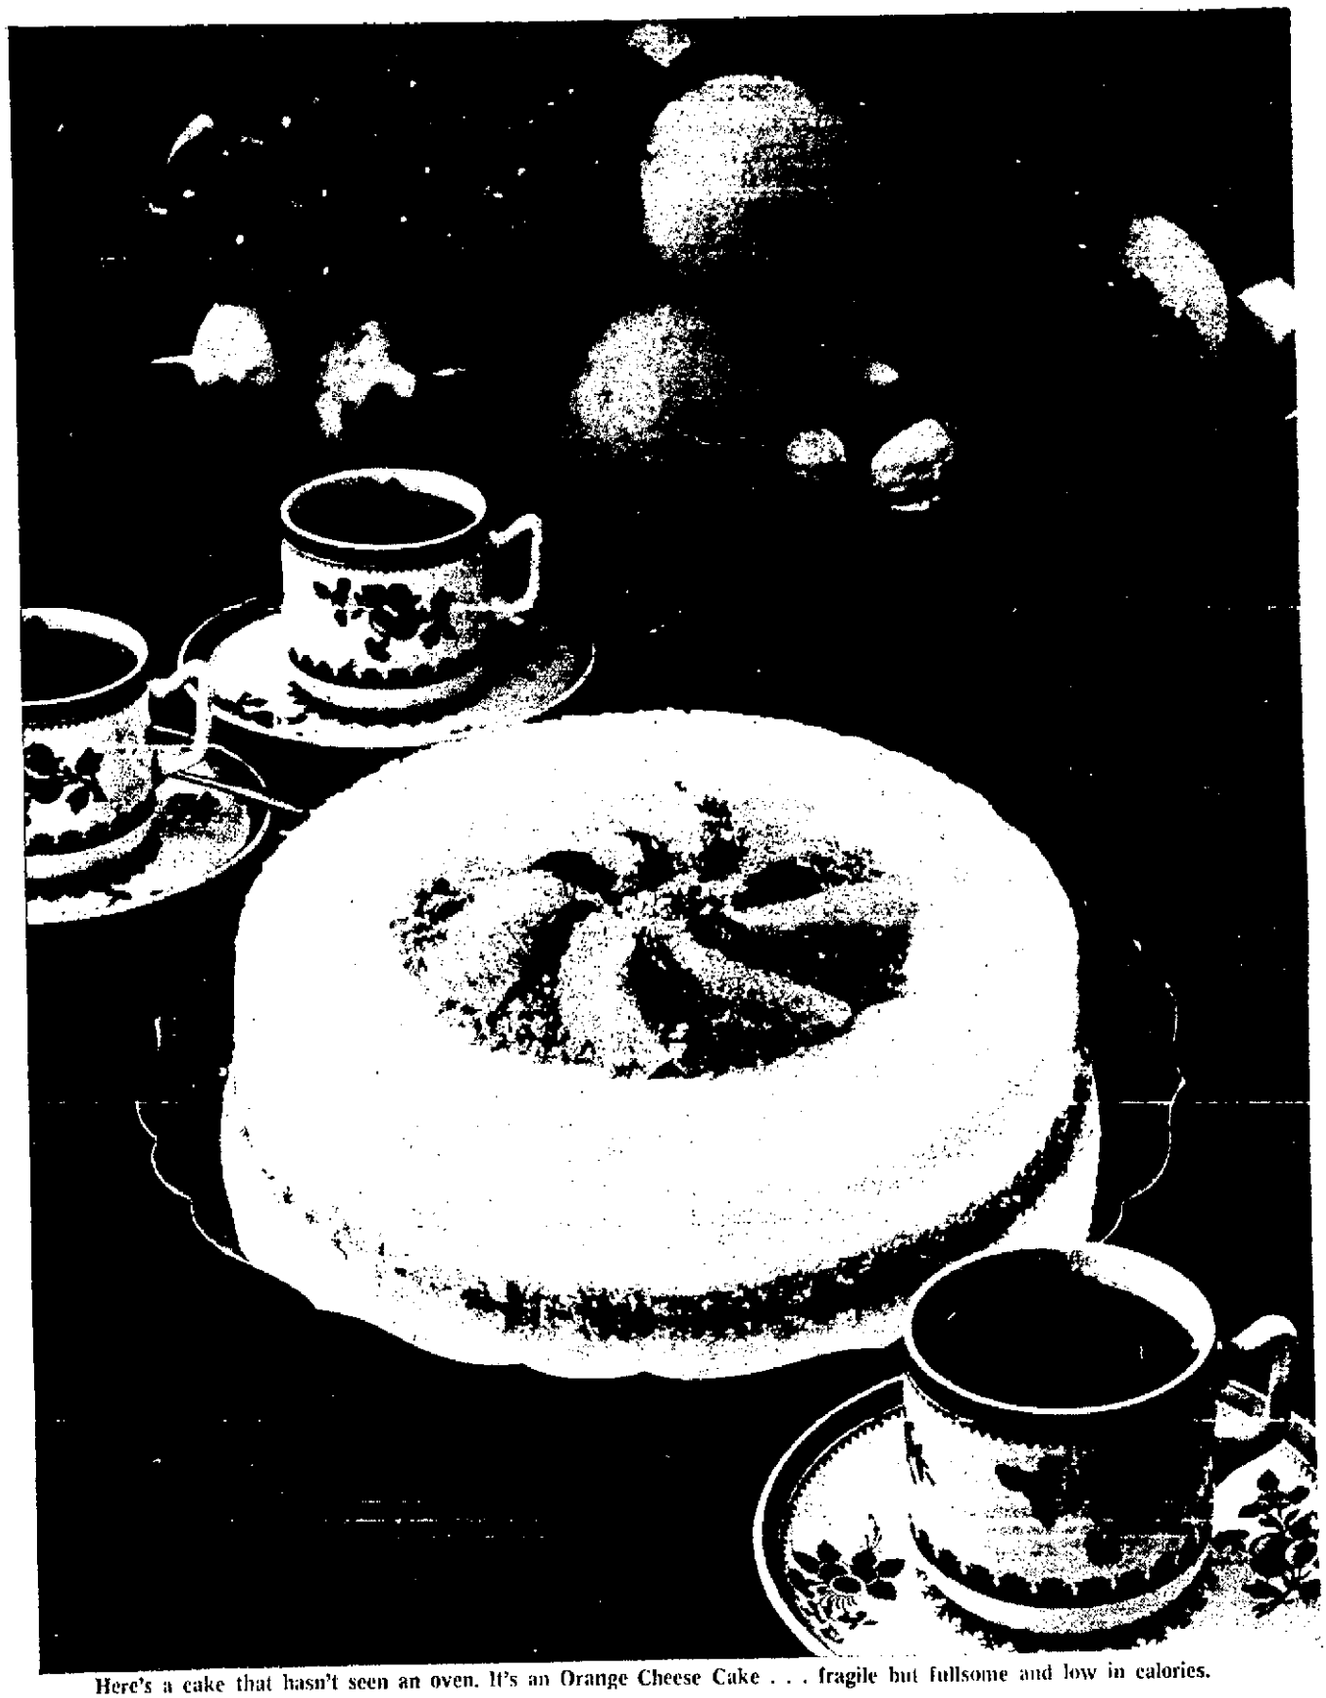

And when is a better time than today to start the "battle of the bulge"? It can be done dessert-wise, too.

The dessert is a cream-and-gold cheese cake that is "baked" in the refrigerator, ready to add the finishing touch to a dinner menu. This No-Bake Orange Cheese Cake is made with instant nonfat dry milk crystals . . . whipped to give the cake an airy consistency. It is fullsome, but fragile, so that the most sated appetite will do it justice. Low in calories, too.

No-Bake Orange Cheese Cake

Crumb mixture, given below*
1 package (3¼ ounces) vanila pudding and pie filling mix
2 envelopes unflavored gelatine

The Legacy of a Singer

By BETH HARNEY

In "Your Cheatin' Heart," George Hamilton plays role of country singer Hank Williams.

HAD THE life story of country singer-composer Hank Williams appeared on the fiction stands under another guise, many readers would have credited the writer with a more than vivid imagination. That is how dramatic and extraordinary Williams' passage through life was.

Born into humble circumstances, he learned basic country-music chords from a Negro street singer and parlayed his otherwise untutored talent into a major success. Before his untimely death in 1953, at the age of 29, Williams was acknowledged the king of country music, had written more than 500 songs, sold millions of records and was an international favorite.

This is the absorbing story that unfolds in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Your Cheatin' Heart," in which George Hamilton portrays Hank Williams. Susan Oliver, Red Buttons and Arthur O'Connell also are starred in the Sam Katzman production.

WILLIAMS was an Alabama lad who started early on his musical career. When only twelve, he won an amateur contest and a radio job. At fourteen, he had his own band which played for dances all over the state. His success kept building until he was signed for the Grand Ole Opry in 1949.

Even in his lifetime he was a legend. His personal appearances were consistently SRO. Few singers have had his gift for touching the hearts of the people. His songs, whether ballads, novelties or religious compositions, were always received with great enthusiasm.

The remunerations his career brought permitted Williams to buy expensive cars, fancy, custom-made clothes and all the glittering trappings of stardom. But he never forgot that he was essentially a country boy, and perhaps it was this disparity that pressured him to the breaking point.

WILLIAMS left the world a legacy of his records, his songs and his story. However, many of his tunes are lost to posterity because he never bothered — in fact, could not — write them down. A born music-maker, Williams was not able to read or write music. He merely picked out the melodies on his guitar as they came to him and had someone take down the notes.

Among his biggest hits are "Your Cheatin' Heart," "Cold, Cold Heart," "Jambalaya," "Hey, Good Lookin'," "Ramblin' Man," "Roll Um Pete," "Long Gone Lonesome Blues," "Just Waitin'," "I Saw the Light" and "Kawliga." All are spotlighted in "Your Cheatin' Heart," with Hank's son, Hank Williams, Jr., singing on the sound track.

For the most part, the lyrics tell of love, both happy and unrequited, simple misfortune, country-style celebrating and religious faith. All are a reflection of Hank Williams' own life, a story alternating between joy and tragedy.

Hamilton and Susan Oliver portray a scene in the film that's based on the singer's life.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have genealogy data on GRIMM. — L. G., Lakewood; F. W., Huntington Beach.

L. G., F. W.: GRIMM was initiated and honored as a warrior-hero name in old Germany. The source word "Grimo" deciphers as "wearer of a steel helmet in battle." The Grimm coat-of-arms has three spear heads on a red shield. This name is world renowned from the famous "Brothers Grimm" (Jacob and Wilhelm Grimm), 19th century German writers of Grimm's fairy Tales.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please give data on CHRISTIAN, CHRISTMAN, CRISMON, CHRISTISON.—J.C., Lakewood; E.C., Hollydale; C.P., Anaheim; R.C., Long Beach.

CHRISTIAN and the surname variations CHRISTMAN, CRISMON and CHRISTISON all refer to ancestors who were devoutly religious men. Christian is usually shortened from McChristian which originated on the Isle of Man, off England's coast. This family's shield is blue, crossed by a gold chevron between three covered golden cups. No shield is available for Christison which was formerly Christian's-son. Christman and its variation Crismon represent "follower or adherent of Christian." The Christman lineage was Swiss. The coat-of-arms has a white swan below a gold star on a gold-bordered, blue shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze FORD.—T.F., J.C., Long Beach; J.F., Bellflower.

FORD was initiated in old-time Britain from a forefather who lived by a ford, a shallow river crossing location on a highway. David Atte Ford was a Somerset taxpayer in 1327. The primary Ford shield is blue, emblazoned with three gold-crowned rampant lions.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly inform us on CHAVEZ—M.C., Long Beach.

M.C.: CHAVEZ, a famous California name, originated a thousand years ago in old Spain. Chavez had two sources. One meant "son of Isabel," commemorating a female progenitor. The other source signifies "son of the bald one." The Chavez shield from Castile is gold, emblazoned with five silver keys. The shield has a red border decorated with eight gold "X"-shaped crosses.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly inform us on KESSINGER, KESINGER—C.K., J.K., S.W., Long Beach.

KESSINGER in old German records is considered to signify "sons of the great speaker." The Kessinger shield from Saxony has the upper half of a rampant silver stag deer on a green background for the upper portion and a pair of crossed silver tongs on silver for the lower section.

Ellis or Elias, from the Biblical Eliyah, means "God the Lord." English Ellises were Earls of Bristol. Their shield is gold centered with five silver crescents on a black cross.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on ESCHER, ESSER.—W. E., K. E., Long Beach; W. E., Santa Ana.

The Escher shield is blue, embossed with a silver cup below a gold star. The shield of the Von Esser lineage is red, with an arm in silver armor, holding a sword spearing a crown, issuing from the left side.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly inform us on BEEGHLEY. —C. B., Garden Grove.

C. B.: BEEGHLEY has two ancient Irish sources. O'Beachlaoich, which evolved into Beeghley in the 1500s, meant "sons of the little bee," a quaint archaic significance. O'Beaghlaoich, more apropos as a name meaning, denotes "sons of the young hero." No shield is available for this family.

No-Bake Cake

2 cups orange juice
½ cup sugar
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 cup creamed cottage cheese
½ cup instant nonfat dry milk crystals
½ cup ice water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup sugar
2 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
¼ cup red maraschino cherries
Orange sections, sliced

Prepare crumb mixture, given below:

Combine pudding mix, orange juice, ½ cup sugar and egg yolks in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Cook thoroughly. Beat cottage cheese until creamy. Beat in pudding mixture until blended.

Combine instant crystals and ice water in bowl, whip until soft peaks form (3 to 4 minutes). Add lemon juice and continue whipping until stiff peaks form (3 to 4 minutes longer). Gradually add ½ cup sugar. Fold whipped instant crystals and egg whites into pudding mixture. Pour into pan over crumb mixture. Chill until set (about 3 hours). At serving time remove sides of springform pan and garnish cake with left-over crumbs, maraschino cherry slices and orange sections.

*Crumb mixture: Blend ½ cup fine graham cracker crumbs with 1 tablespoon sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butted. Line bottom of 8-inch spring-form pan with waxed paper or foil. Press crumbs over bottom of pan, reserving a few for garnish. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Delirium Relieved in Heart Surgery

By Ben Zinser

Scripps Newspapers Medical-Science Writer

POSTOPERATIVE delirium occurs in more than half of patients undergoing extensive heart surgery, a new study shows.

However, the condition is only temporary and can be treated, when it occurs, with the drugs Thorazine and Stelazine.

Drs. P. H. Blachy and Albert Starr of the University of Oregon Medical School say postoperative delirium occurred in 57% of 139 patients who survived open heart surgery (that involving use of a heart-lung machine to circulate the patient's blood).

The delirium, they say, usually occurs as the patient is "getting out of danger" and as his temperature approaches normal.

Dreams were more frequent and intense among delirious patients, the doctors found. Forty-two of the entire series reported having vivid dreams, usually of fires, crushing injuries and escape. None had such dreams before surgery.

The report is in the American Journal of Psychiatry.

VIOLENT antifluoridationists can take comfort in a report which shows that 95% of fluoride in a one-part-per-million solution can be removed. Method: Pass the fluoridated water through a water-softener previously filled with calcined bone meal. The report is in the British Dental Journal.

FORTY-FOUR of 60 lung-disease patients who stopped smoking noted complete or almost complete relief from coughing, Colorado researchers report. And during the subsequent 20 years, these 44 had a lower death rate than did 84 patients who continued to smoke, says the report in the AMA Journal.

MANY NORMAL children have oral temperatures of 99 to 100 degrees Fahrenheit daily and even higher readings after exercise or emotional excitement, two pediatricians remind in a report in Postgraduate Medicine. "Everyone's body temperature varies from one hour to the next," the doctors say.

PAIN AND numbness in the hands or arms of middle-aged women is thought to be due to a hormonal imbalance, an Australian researcher says. Attacks usually occur at night.

Injections of progesterone, a hormone, brought relief to five women who had suffered such attacks, reports Dr. K. R. Heber in the Medical Journal of Australia.

BRITISH researchers have developed a portable machine to take the tiring, tedious work out of closed-chest heart massage in cases of heart standstill (cardiac arrest).

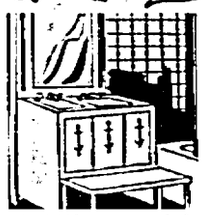

The device, described in British Heart Journal, operates on compressed air and weighs but 22 pounds, according to doctors at Westminster Medical School, London.

A CONDITION called phantom pregnancy sometimes occurs in women. The patient's abdomen enlarges and she thinks she's pregnant—but she's not. It's a hysterical condition.

Now a similar condition has been reported in a male by the Journal of the Oklahoma Medical Association.

The man displayed extreme abdominal protrusion and a tense abdominal wall. It all began when he discovered that his wife was pregnant.

Hysterical origin, doctors explain.

Birdland Set

it's nearly impossible to make an accurate diagnosis by observation because symptoms similar to the fever are witnessed in a severe cold or pneumonia. A blood sample taken from the bird and analyzed would be a better way to arrive at an accurate conclusion, it is pointed out. Although this would be an inadvisable procedure for small parrots, it would benefit the larger birds by eliminating the expensive waiting period, thus inducing greater importation interest. Smuggling, an underworld activity, would be erased.

The Psittacine law isn't the only fly in the ointment. Many of the world's most exotic birds are imported into this country from Australia. Now the British Commonwealth has slapped a ban on the exportation of its wildlife. Since the remote island has few stringent conservation laws, many species of birds are doomed. The ban should be lifted, at least until enough breeding stock can be taken out of Australia and distributed to other countries.

The Palos Verdes Bird Farm, located on Pacific Coast Highway in Walteria, between Crenshaw and Hawthorne Boulevards, is open daily from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. There is no charge for admission.

(Hank Bates and Bob Busenbark have written a beautifully illustrated book, "Parrots and Related Birds," which deals with all species and sub-species of parrots. It comes in hard cover and paperback and includes data on the popular parakeet and small conure parrot as well as the various macaws and cockatoos. Suggestions on the care, feeding and training of these pets is discussed.

(Other books by these bird fanciers include "Finches and Soft-Billed Birds," "Java Temple Birds and Pets," and Cage Birds.")

WORKSHOP

Kitchen in Miniature

Kiddie kitchen for a little miss who wants to launch her home-making career early is shown with Susie France and Patricia Barry on NBC-TV.

By Steve Ellingson

MAKING learning fun is one sure way to teaching, and so it is with lessons in home-making. The child-sized kitchen layout illustrated with this article is just right for carrying out such a teaching idea—and Dad's workshop is just the place to develop it.

Each item is an exact duplicate of adult models in miniature. The refrigerator has two doors, the top is a freezer compartment and the bottom has three shelves. There are also shelves on the inside of the doors. The Dutch cabinet has open grooved shelves for an effective display of dishes. It has drawers and doors for dinnerware and silver. The sink is equipped with a plastic dish pan and simulated hot and cold water taps. A range completes the kitchen. It has four simulated burners and an oven with a window in it and a storage space for cookware.

THE KITCHEN is easy to duplicate when you use patterns; economical, too. To obtain the patterns No. 363 for all four of the items pictures, send name and address and $1 by check, currency or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Demountable Divider

By Bill Meyerriecks

ROOM dividers have proven their popularity in the world of interior decoration. However, they are usually costly and once installed, there's no changing your decor without expensive renovation and considerable upset.

Today's Sketchbook design, the Demountable Divider, overcomes disadvantages of cost and permanence. It requires only a modest amount of lumber. And by making use of a relatively new pole attachment, the divider's uprights can snap into place without a scratch to floor or ceiling.

Special spring-loaded attachments at top of uprights hold movable room divider in place.

YOU CAN install it, then later move it to another location in the room or home, or take it down for a party in a matter of minutes. Shelves and the sliding door cabinets are supported by dowels running through the wooden poles. Pull the dowels and the entire assembly comes apart in a jiffy. Cabinet backs and doors are plywood or hardboard.

In the divider illustrated here, there's also plenty of room for individual decorating taste. The tall framed panel is a piece of hardboard painted white with a modern drawing mounted in its center. You could just as easily mount a mirror, or inexpensive prints of colorful paintings.

Plan S-195 gives all the necessary details for building the divider and may be obtained by sending 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Special spring-loaded attachments at top of uprights hold movable room divider in place.

YOU CAN install it, then later move it to another location in the room or home, or take it down for a party in a matter of minutes. Shelves and the sliding door cabinets are supported by dowels running through the wooden poles. Pull the dowels and the entire assembly comes apart in a jiffy. Cabinet backs and doors are plywood or hardboard.

In the divider illustrated here, there's also plenty of room for individual decorating taste. The tall framed panel is a piece of hardboard painted white with a modern drawing mounted in its center. You could just as easily mount a mirror, or inexpensive prints of colorful paintings.

Plan S-195 gives all the necessary details for building the divider and may be obtained by sending 50 cents with name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Laughing With a Pope

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

INTIMATE glimpses into the life of the late Pope John XXIII are revealed in "A POPE LAUGHS" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Inc., $3.95), a 158-page volume of human interest stories collected by Kurt Klinger and translated by Sall McDevitt Cunneen.

Klinger recounts the time when the First Lady of the United States, Mrs. John F. Kennedy, was to be received by the Pope. Carefully Pope John memorized enough English for his opening greeting which he decided should be "Mrs. Kennedy, Madame." However, the minute she crossed his threshold John forgot everything he had memorized and advanced toward her with arms outstretched crying out, "Jacqueline!"

When President Dwight D. Eisenhower walked into the Pope's private library on Dec. 6, 1959, Pope John appeared a little disconcerted, Klinger states. He was painfully aware that his spoken English was not exactly perfect. For this reason he delivered most of his talk to President Eisenhower in French. However, he concluded his remarks with "God bless you," spoken in English. President Eisenhower was touched. "Your Holiness speaks English well," he said. With disarming candor the Pope replied in Italian, "I'm going to night school but I'm not doing very well . . . always at the bottom of the class."

In a story emphasizing the church's concern for social justice, Klinger states that the Pope suggested that the porters who carry the papal sedan chair should be given a bonus during his pontificate to compensate them for the increase in papal weight! Then, there was the time when the Pope received a contingent of French paratroopers. After addressing the paratroopers on spiritual matters he commented, "At the same time that you are eager to remember how to come down from the heavens, I should very much like you not to forget how to get back up."

On Jan. 25, 1959, over the protest of many of the Curia, Pope John announced his intention of calling an Ecumenical Council. When they inquired as to the necessity of the Ecumenical Council the Pope stood up with an impassive countenance. He walked calmly to the window, opened it wide and took a deep breath. Then he paused, smiled and said, "That's why."

REMEMBER that every day comes straight from God urges Ruth C. Ikerman in "THE DISCIPLINED HEART" (Abingdon Press, $2.25.) Mrs. Ikerman, whose articles on a variety of subjects appear frequently in this magazine, in her new book directs 24 unique devotions to the volunteer church worker who wishes to make the most of her crowded time. Twelve chapters relate to the months of the year and 12 chapters deal with the problems humans meet daily, such as money difficulties, giving and receiving sympathy, handling gossip, meeting deadlines. The author gives constructive suggestions for spiritual action as well as inner growth. If the reader begins by strengthening her own heart, she can serve, believes Mrs. Ikerman.

DID YOU grow up in a small town? Do you remember what small town life was like?

To preserve that era now fast disappearing, 12 regional towns are presented in "A VANISHING AMERICA: The Life and Times of the Small Town" (Holt, Rinehart and Winston, $3.95) introduction by Wallace Stegner.

The towns vary in type as well as geography and range from the New England to the Spanish-American village, from the social experiment to the conservative Victorian business center, from the ante-bellum to the Rocky Mountain mining town, from the town imprisoned by a forest to the town exploiting its river, from the Southern vacation spa to the cowboy and cattle town. Writers include Pulitzer prize winners Hodding Carter, Conrad Richter and A. B. Guthrie.

JOHN JAMES Audubon knew the American wilderness as few men knew it, at a time when its great forests were untouched and the balance of nature undisturbed. In his journeys from Maine to Texas, from Florida to Montana, he kept journals and made paintings that preserve for posterity the land of incredible abundance and a wide variety of wildlife.

Present-day naturalist Edwin Way Teale went through Audubon's folios and compiled "AUDUBON'S WILDLIFE" (Viking, $15) which presents Audubon's birds and animals in the same size that he rendered them. Audubon's comments, and Teale's own absorbing account of the life and work of Audubon complement the text. Teale's notes on each plate give nature lovers pertinent information about each bird and animal.

. . . IN "ELEANOR ROOSEVELT: A Friend's Memoir" (Doubleday, $4.95) Joseph Lash shares the enviable experience of having known and worked with one of the world's great women during her most exciting years. From 1939 on, Lash, who at first represented America's rebellious youth and later became a strong New Deal supporter, was close to Mrs. Roosevelt.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt held this dynamic point of view: "I conceive the Presidency as pre-eminently a place of moral leadership. All of our really great Presidents were leaders of thought at times when certain historic ideas had to be clarified."

Theodore Roosevelt — as much as any President in history—found the nation's No. 1 office very much to his liking. With characteristic gusto he once remarked (shortly before leaving office):

"I have reached the ultimate dream of every American boy. In short, I have fought in a war, killed lions, and served as President of the U.S."

Giant Outboard

Young woman standing on propeller housing guard indicates the size of this new engine.

By Lou Jobst

A SOUTHLAND firm has developed a king-size "outboard" engine for the Navy's new generation of oceanographic research and survey ships.

The retractable 350 horsepower propulsion unit, capable of generating 12,000 pounds of thrust and as tall as five average men, is being built by Western Gear Corporation's precision products division in Lynwood.

The engines are to be installed on the bows of AGS-26 research ships being built under a U. S. Navy Ten Year Oceanographic Research Plan (TENOC) which was launched in 1961.

THESE UNITS are specifically designed to enable a research-survey ship to maintain accurately a fixed surface position despite wind conditions and ocean currents. They also provide more efficient means of docking and maneuvering.

The propulsion unit is so rigged on the bow that the propeller and Kort nozzle can be rotated 360 degrees, providing thrust in any direction.

Fitted with eight sleeve bearings, the 30,000 pound engine unit can be raised and lowered on four stanchions. When extended the propeller and nozzle reach 15 feet below the supporting deck.

ONCE THE UNIT is retracted, a fairing plate is attached to the nozzle, allowing the unit to blend into the hull, reducing drag.

Operation of the engine is controlled in the ship's pilot house.

The Navy is building eight new ocean research and survey ships. The AGS-26s are being built by American Shipbuilding Corp.

Mascot in the Sky

Mascot of Avianca, Columbian airline, was photographed on recent visit to Long Beach with Avianca stewardess Adela Santo Domingo.

By Eleanor Avery Price

COLUMBIAN Avianca Airways seems unique in that it is, as far as I can learn, the only airline that has a mascot. (If there are any airlines that I did not contact that have mascots, I'd like to know.)

A mascot is a little sorcerer supposed to bring good luck and protect its owner from evil spirits, and is the exact opposite of a hoodoo. The idea goes back to pagan customs and witchcraft but still brings a bit of magic interest to the company having a mascot. Even our armed forces have mascots.

Cats seem to have had more to do with the custom of mascots than any other animals, although jackals, baboons and crocodiles have been associated with dieties. In ancient Egypt cats were considered sacred, part of the whole divine order. They were worshiped in temples, paraded, garlanded, and buried with pomp and grandeur in "holy ground." Some were embalmed or mumified.

PENALTY for killing a cat was death. According to the historian, Herodotus, a Roman soldier was nearly lynched by an angry mob for having accidentally killed a cat. The incident traveled to high diplomatic circles and was supposed to be one of the reasons for a war between Egypt and Rome.

The Egyptians so worshiped cats that a legend says Cambyses, son of Cyrus the Great of Persia, threatened to toss cats over the walls of the port of Peluslum should the Egyptians refuse to surrender. The Egyptians capitulated promptly rather than see a single cat harmed.

Gradually, and in devious ways such as smuggling since the Egyptians forbade cat exporting, felines spread eastward to the Orient and into Europe. Although greatly honored in such countries as Burma and Siam, the cat lost its divine status and became a mouse catcher. Years later it became a popular house pet.

The ocelot as a house pet is a fairly new idea. Most are jungle born and "civilized" with patience and understanding.

DEADLINE for dogs shows is now three weeks. This means entries close tomorrow noon for Orange Empire Dog Club's show and trial Jan. 31 at National Orange Show Grounds, San Bernardino.

Troubles We Don't Talk About

What Troubles? Complaints so personal that few people talk about them—burning, irritation and itching in the sensitive perianal (rectal and genital) area.

What Causes Them? Many things, but especially the lack of hygiene. Doctors say that lack of proper cleanliness often prevents the condition from clearing up. This is true because the perianal area is repeatedly contaminated with potentially harmful bacteria and fungi.

What Do Specialists Recommend? Thorough and regular cleansing, particularly after each bowel movement. This halts the vicious "itch-scratch" cycle. In many cases, this alone will solve the problem of burning, itching, and irritation.

Why Not Plain, Ordinary Soap? Because soap washes away natural skin oils. Frequent and repeated use of soap can cause dryness and irritation, resulting in itching.

What Should Be Used? A new, foamy aerosol medication called ANNUL. It is a gentle but thorough cleanser to be used on toilet tissue or cotton. ANNUL is an antibacterial, antifungal cleanser—soothing, emollient and protective. Soothes burning and irritation. Helps to protect against secondary infection of raw, irritated skin.

The Best Way to stop itch-irritation is never let it get started. Begin regular use of ANNUL this week. Or if you suffer now, begin relief in seconds with ANNUL. It relieves itch-irritation without local pain killers that can mask symptoms and postpone sound medical treatment. If your discomfort persists by all means see your doctor. Ask your doctor whether it isn't wise to use ANNUL with other medications.

Effective Deodorant: Women especially, can be troubled with embarrassing odor. ANNUL is an effective deodorant foam because of its superior cleansing and antibacterial actions. Makes you feel fresher. Secure. Completely groomed.

Most people, after they have tried ANNUL, never use toilet tissue without it. And so inexpensive. You'll find ANNUL in your pharmacy.

Troubles We Don't Talk About

What Troubles? Complaints so personal that few people talk about them—burning, irritation and itching in the sensitive perianal (rectal and genital) area.

What Causes Them? Many things, but especially the lack of hygiene. Doctors say that lack of proper cleanliness often prevents the condition from clearing up. This is true because the perianal area is repeatedly contaminated with potentially harmful bacteria and fungi.

What Do Specialists Recommend? Thorough and regular cleansing, particularly after each bowel movement. This halts the vicious "itch-scratch" cycle. In many cases, this alone will solve the problem of burning, itching, and irritation.

Why Not Plain, Ordinary Soap? Because soap washes away natural skin oils. Frequent and repeated use of soap can cause dryness and irritation, resulting in itching.

What Should Be Used? A new, foamy aerosol medication called ANNUL. It is a gentle but thorough cleanser to be used on toilet tissue or cotton. ANNUL is an antibacterial, antifungal cleanser—soothing, emollient and protective. Soothes burning and irritation. Helps to protect against secondary infection of raw, irritated skin.

The Best Way to stop itch-irritation is never let it get started. Begin regular use of ANNUL this week. Or if you suffer now, begin relief in seconds with ANNUL. It relieves itch-irritation without local pain killers that can mask symptoms and postpone sound medical treatment. If your discomfort persists by all means see your doctor. Ask your doctor whether it isn't wise to use ANNUL with other medications.

Effective Deodorant: Women especially, can be troubled with embarrassing odor. ANNUL is an effective deodorant foam because of its superior cleansing and antibacterial actions. Makes you feel fresher. Secure. Completely groomed.

Most people, after they have tried ANNUL, never use toilet tissue without it. And so inexpensive. You'll find ANNUL in your pharmacy.

Mascot in the Sky

Mascot of Avianca, Columbian airline, was photographed on recent visit to Long Beach with Avianca stewardess Adela Santo Domingo.

By Eleanor Avery Price

COLUMBIAN Avianca Airways seems unique in that it is, as far as I can learn, the only airline that has a mascot. (If there are any airlines that I did not contact that have mascots, I'd like to know.)

A mascot is a little sorcerer supposed to bring good luck and protect its owner from evil spirits, and is the exact opposite of a hoodoo. The idea goes back to pagan customs and witchcraft but still brings a bit of magic interest to the company having a mascot. Even our armed forces have mascots.

Cats seem to have had more to do with the custom of mascots than any other animals, although jackals, baboons and crocodiles have been associated with dieties. In ancient Egypt cats were considered sacred, part of the whole divine order. They were worshiped in temples, paraded, garlanded, and buried with pomp and grandeur in "holy ground." Some were embalmed or mumified.

PENALTY for killing a cat was death. According to the historian, Herodotus, a Roman soldier was nearly lynched by an angry mob for having accidentally killed a cat. The incident traveled to high diplomatic circles and was supposed to be one of the reasons for a war between Egypt and Rome.

The Egyptians so worshiped cats that a legend says Cambyses, son of Cyrus the Great of Persia, threatened to toss cats over the walls of the port of Pelusium should the Egyptians refuse to surrender. The Egyptians capitulated promptly rather than see a single cat harmed.

Gradually, and in devious ways such as smuggling since the Egyptians forbade cat exporting, felines spread eastward to the Orient and into Europe. Although greatly honored in such countries as Burma and Siam, the cat lost its divine status and became a mouse catcher. Years later it became a popular house pet.

The ocelot as a house pet is a fairly new idea. Most are jungle born and "civilized" with patience and understanding.

DEADLINE for dogs shows is now three weeks. This means entries close tomorrow noon for Orange Empire Dog Club's show and trial Jan. 31 at National Orange Show Grounds, San Bernardino.

Rose Axiom: Good Roots . . . Fine Roses

By Joe Littlefield

SOME gardeners are more interested in the number and development of canes of bare root roses than they are concerned about the size and number of the roots. However, roots are most important because they actually determine the health of the rose bush.

An instance in mind is that of an estate where a large rose garden proved to be a problem. After a long period of mediocre production, roses were dug up and it was found that, five years before, the plants had been replanted and the main roots had been cut back to within 4 to 6 inches of the main trunk. Thus, the roses had been struggling for existence over the intervening period.

Should you find a rose or two among a group you've purchased with roots cut back to short stubs, or one sided, take them back to your nurseryman and he'll replace them.

INSPECT ALL the roots carefully for bruises, or breaks. Cut off only the damaged areas. Spread the roots downward over a firmed cone of soil in the planting hole. Firm soil gradually up to the level of surrounding ground. Soak down well, keep moist till rose sprouts new growth.

The quickest, laziest, yet surest way to encourage quick new growth is to cover the rose branches to the ground with burlap, old discarded towels or a portion of an old sheet. That cover should be sprinkled every day and the soil kept damp till new growth is about one-half inch long. The cover provides constant humidity and prevents wind and sunny weather from drying the branches, thereby delaying sprouting.

Good, sturdy root systems are important in selecting bare-root roses. Contrast above shows good roots (right), poor stock (left).

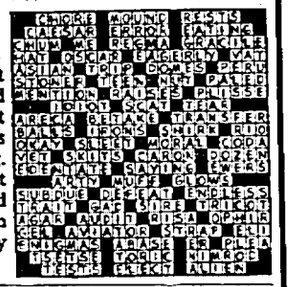

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . This is the time to get bare-root plants. Roses, fruit trees, flowering trees, deciduous shrubs and shade trees are all available bare-root now.

Check the camellias and azaleas in bloom now at your nursery to see if they are the ones you've been looking for.

Clean up your garden for the new year. Get rid of any fallen leaves and spent blooms and weeds that are still cluttering the ground; then get to work pruning summer and fall blooming deciduous shrubs, but not the early spring bloomers.

A SUBTLE CHANGE has been noted in the dining habits of patrons at Welch's restaurant, Atlantic Ave. at San Antonio Drive.

For years a majority of the discriminating diners at this fashionable establishment ordered sea foods from the many selections offered on its famed green and black menu. Ocean delicacies prepared with skill and imagination, are still very much in vogue there, but recently a new beef item scored a major success, becoming one of Welch's most popular entrees.

The new item is prime rib au jus with Yorkshire pudding. When I tried it not so long ago, I was impressed first of all with the beef's fine-grained texture. It was firm but so tender you could almost cut it with a fork. Secondly, I was impressed with its fine flavor, which was rich and satisfying. Thirdly, I was impressed with the price, $1.95.

Welch's is such a beautiful place, with its long, glassed entryway and spacious dining rooms, that I would expect to pay far more for prime rib of that quality. I have paid twice as much in other restaurants for beef I didn't enjoy as much. Welch's unusual price is the result of much study by its veteran proprietor, Rex Welch. When he introduced the item last year, he decided that good volume would result if he could keep the price low enough.

His calculated risk paid off. The popularity of his prime rib exceeded all predictions, winning scores of new patrons for the restaurant who have returned again and again to enjoy it, often bringing along their friends. Like all the other entrees at Welch's the price includes appetizing soup or a big fresh salad with croutons; whipped potatoes, baked potato or French fries, hot light rolls and beverage.

SUNDAY TREAT—Everybody knows the Apple Valley Steak House, 733 E. Broadway, is a great place for charcoal broiled steaks. But not everyone knows that this fine restaurant also serves a roast Long Island duckling dinner which is raveworthy. The tender, succulent duckling is $3.25, with applesauce, candied yams, superb soup, king-sized salad, assorted dark and light sourdough breads and beverage.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

No 'Gary Goodguy' Role for Brian Kelly

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

PLAYING SECOND BANANA to a dolphin, a pelican and two boys wasn't Brian Kelly's idea of a great opportunity.

They wanted him for the father's role in "Flipper," a Saturday night NBC-TV series centered about a dolphin.

The offer was financially attractive.

But Kelly had strong feelings about the series.

To be truthful about it, he really didn't give a hang whether he was second banana, third banana or low skin on the bunch.

WHAT HE CARED ABOUT was the way the father was to be portrayed on the screen.

As a father himself — he has a 9-year-old son named Kevin — and manager of a Little League team, Kelly has very strong feelings about television fathers.

"Females dominate the screen," he said.

"A father doesn't have much of an image on television. He's weak, insecure. He's Gary Goodguy who pays the bills."

Brian didn't want to be another Gary Goodguy.

His feelings on how to raise children would be violated if he took a "Pop" role that was "pap."

TYPICAL OF THOSE feelings was the way he feels about discipline.

"Children not only need discipline, but they crave it," he said.

"It expresses love.

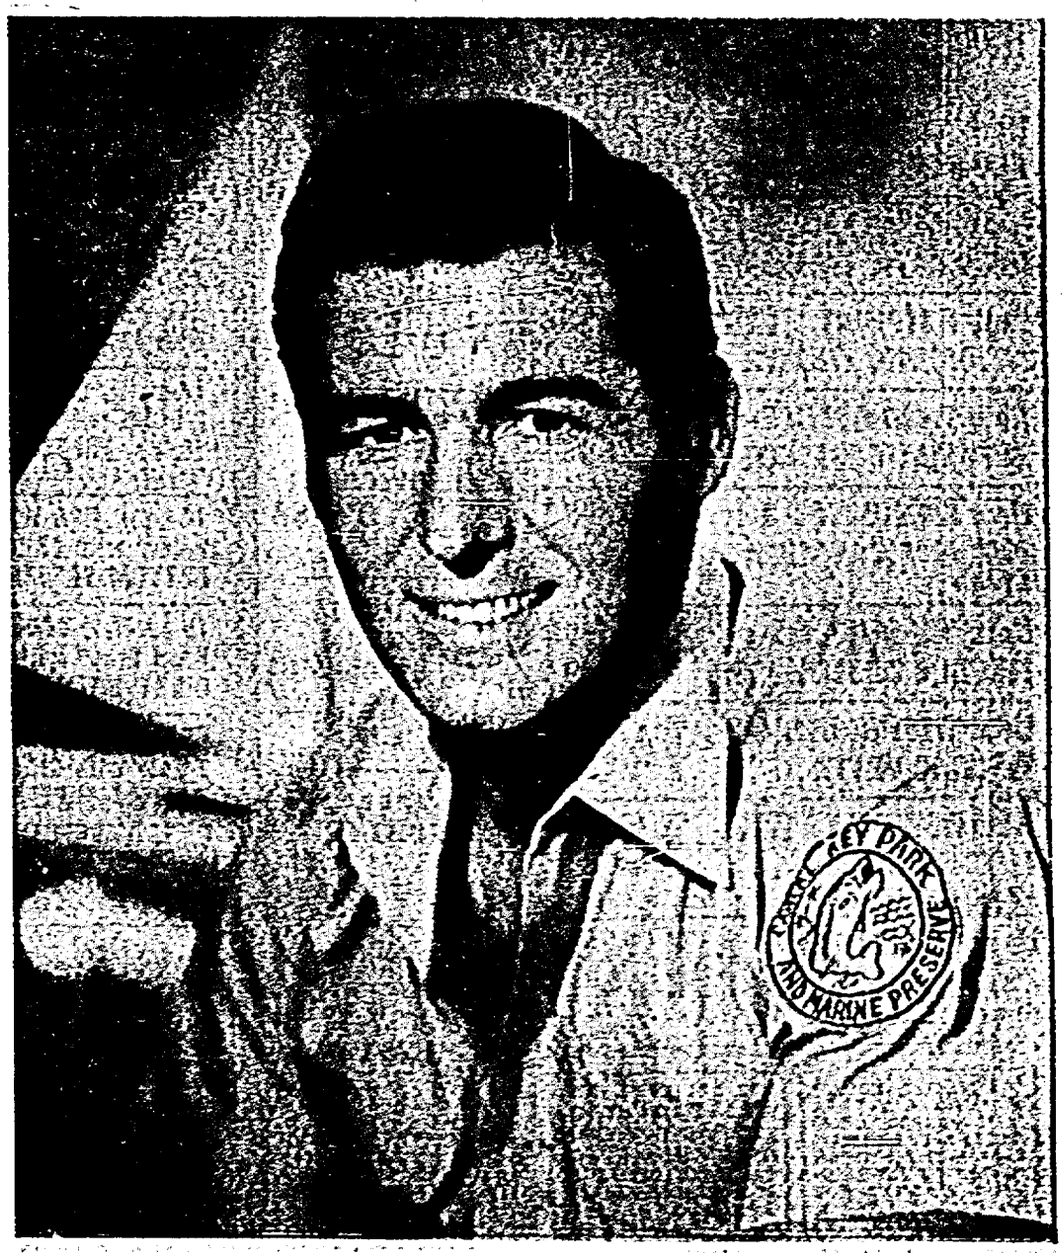

"I'm not talking about sadism. I mean discipline mixed with love — there's not really too much difference.

"If they don't get it, they'll try and push you that extra inch hoping you'll respond someway."

The producers of "Flipper" responded to Kelly's ideas about how a father should appear on television.

As a result, he's not weak-kneed, not vacillating, not Gary Goodguy. He may be "Pop," but not "pap."

And most of his fanmail is from adults who are grateful someone finally has managed to present an authentic father on television.

Program: "The Entertainers" in new Saturday time slot on channel 2.

The first edition of "The Entertainers" in its new Saturday night spot on CBS showed signs of living up to its title. Anyway, it seems to be picking up steam. Carol Burnett's material was not as good as Miss Burnett, but there was a lot of bright singing and the addition of Peter Gennaro brought some attractive dancing. Now, if they can just do something about improving the comedy sketches, it will be a fine Saturday evening diversion.

Program: "The Decision to Drop the Bomb," aired Jan. 5 on channel 4.

Twenty years ago World War II ended, and last night's documentary traced the activities that led to the decision to drop the bomb, which was followed quickly by the Japanese surrender. The program was yet another in the growing network trend of presenting safe, historical and frequently hashed-over subjects rather than more immediate and controversial news specials of a less featurish nature. Yet there is also no question that a good historical documentary, such as last night's, despite a large portion of old material mixed in with the apparently new, has a very worthwhile place in broadcasting, particularly a program of such seeming clarity in its reconstruction of events.

Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

The decision to drop the first atomic bomb on Japan may have been, as Chet Huntley stated, the "most important decision of our time." But almost 20 years later, it is still debatable and debated.

NBC, in one of its "White Paper" programs, devoted 90 minutes last night to the circumstances surrounding the decision by President Harry S Truman. The story was told primarily by persons close to the development and use of that terrible weapon, with the notable exception of Truman himself.

From James F. Byrnes, who was secretary of state, to Gen. Leslie Groves, who directed the top-secret development of the bomb, we heard repeatedly that the decision was made completely on the ground that it would end the war quickly, thus saving American lives.

ROBERT VAUGHN, star of "Man from UNCLE," reminds that the series moves to 8 p.m. Mondays, channel 4, starting this week.

SPECIAL

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E.—A new time slot and some name guests are NBC's prescriptions for this ailing series' low blood ratings. It gets the first tonight at 8 p.m., ch. 4, as two Bristol Court apartments hang up the vacancy signs, and the second next week as Ken Murray tackles his first "bad guy" role while Dan O'Herlihy plans a double-crossing safe-cracker. In today's segment, Ralph Taeger and Joanna Moore guestar as THRUSH agents pull out all the stops in an effort to free one of their top leaders before Solo can deliver him to the C.I.A. A decoy plan by UNCLE works well—for a while.

ANDY WILLIAMS — In what is billed as one of the "most movin' hours of the season," Andy teams up with singers Bobby Darin and Vic Damone, plus Oscar-winning Henry Mancini, George and Olive Osmond pinch-hitting for their sons, and the Good Time Singers. After switching styles, with Darin "singing" "Moon River," Damone lip sincing "Mack the Knife" and Andy mouthing a suntan lotion commercial of Vic's, the three decide to stick to their own types. It's colorcast at 9 p.m., ch. 4.

CBS NEWS REPORT — "Viet Nam: How We Got In —Can We Get Out?" examines the U.S. predicament and offers opposing views of what action now should be taken. Charles Collingwood and Peter Kalischer report at 10 p.m., ch. 2, with appearances by former U.S. Ambassador Frederick E. Nolting Jr. Highlight is a debate between Democratic Senators Mike Monroney (Okla.) and Wayne Morse (Ore.), moderated by Eric Sevareid.

SPECIAL

MAN FROM U.N.C.L.E.— A new time slot and some name guests are NBC's prescriptions for this ailing series' low blood ratings. It gets the first tonight at 8 p.m., ch. 4, as two Bristol Court apartments hang up the vacancy signs, and the second next week as Ken Murray tackles his first "bad guy" role while Dan O'Herlihy plans a double-crossing safe-cracker. In today's segment, Ralph Taeger and Joanna Moore guestar as THRUSH agents pull out all the stops in an effort to free one of their top leaders before Solo can deliver him to the C.I.A. A decoy plan by UNCLE works well—for a while.

ANDY WILLIAMS — In what is billed as one of the "most movin' hours of the season," Andy teams up with singers Bobby Darin and Vic Damone, plus Oscar-winning Henry Mancini, George and Olive Osmond pinch-hitting for their sons, and the Good Time Singers. After switching styles, with Darin "singing" "Moon River," Damone lip sincing "Mack the Knife" and Andy mouthing a suntan lotion commercial of Vic's, the three decide to stick to their own types. It's colorcast at 9 p.m., ch. 4.

CBS NEWS REPORT — "Viet Nam: How We Got In —Can We Get Out?" examines the U.S. predicament and offers opposing views of what action now should be taken. Charles Collingwood and Peter Kalischer report at 10 p.m., ch. 2, with appearances by former U.S. Ambassador Frederick E. Nolting Jr. Highlight is a debate between Democratic Senators Mike Monroney (Okla.) and Wayne Morse (Ore.), moderated by Eric Sevareid.

SPECIAL

HULLABALOO—Premiere. Take a large portion of "Shindig," add the guest-host idea of "Hollywood Palace," a dash of comedy and some talent not unknown to adults, blend well with color and serve under the production of a man (Gary Smith) whose credits include Judy Garland, Perry Como and the Phone Hour, and you've NBC's new musical hour for the young, and young in heart, at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Singer Jack Jones is host for the opener, joining Woody Allen, the New Christy Minstrels, Joey Heatherton, the Zombies, Jocelyne, the Hanover Park (N.J.) high school marching band and Gerry and the Pacemakers, the latter first in a weekly London-taped segment by pop music impresario Brian Epstein, discoverer of the Beatles. The singing son of Allen Jones and Irene Hervey, who celebrates his 27th birthday Friday, turns next week's host chores over to Paul Anka, followed Jan. 26 by George Hamilton.

THE CAPITOL: Chronicle of Freedom—The U.S. Capitol building is spotlighted as a national shrine and museum, symbol of democratic government, within whose walls glows the best illumination, anywhere in the land, of the American story. Raymond Massey is off-camera narrator for Lou Hazam's color news special at 10 p.m., ch. 4, as the hour views the works of art that line the marble corridors and echoes the history that has taken place in the building. Cameras, allowed inside the U.S. Senate for the first time in history, film that Chamber and that of the House, the Rotunda (where 80-foot scaffolding was built every night and dismantled every morning), the Old Supreme Court chamber, the Brumidi Corridor, the Statuary Hall, the President's Room, the Congressional Prayer Room, the Senate dining room, the House restaurant and other locations that evoke the story of the U.S. as a nation.

SPECIAL

HULLABALOO—Premiere. Take a large portion of "Shindig," add the guest-host idea of "Hollywood Palace," a dash of comedy and some talent not unknown to adults, blend well with color and serve under the production of a man (Gary Smith) whose credits include Judy Garland, Perry Como and the Phone Hour, and you've NBC's new musical hour for the young, and young in heart, at 8:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Singer Jack Jones is host for the opener, joining Woody Allen, the New Christy Minstrels, Joey Heatherton, the Zombies, Jocelyne, the Hanover Park (N.J.) high school marching band and Gerry and the Pacemakers, the latter first in a weekly London-taped segment by pop music impresario Brian Epstein, discoverer of the Beatles. The singing son of Allen Jones and Irene Hervey, who celebrates his 27th birthday Friday, turns next week's host chores over to Paul Anka, followed Jan. 26 by George Hamilton.

THE CAPITOL: Chronicle of Freedom—The U.S. Capitol building is spotlighted as a national shrine and museum, symbol of democratic government, within whose walls glows the best illumination, anywhere in the land, of the American story. Raymond Massey is off-camera narrator for Lou Hazam's color news special at 10 p.m., ch. 4, as the hour views the works of art that line the marble corridors and echoes the history that has taken place in the building. Cameras, allowed inside the U.S. Senate for the first time in history, film that Chamber and that of the House, the Rotunda (where 80-foot scaffolding was built every night and dismantled every morning), the Old Supreme Court chamber, the Brumidi Corridor, the Statuary Hall, the President's Room, the Congressional Prayer Room, the Senate dining room, the House restaurant and other locations that evoke the story of the U.S. as a nation.

WHICH JIM BACKUS SERIES TO BACK?

JIM BACKUS . . . And Cartoon Friend

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Comedian Jim Backus is inadvertently trying to knock himself out of a job.

He's the only performer in prime time television starring in two series—"Mr. Magoo" and "Gilligan's Island." The shows are pitted opposite one another on NBC and CBS respectively on Saturday nights.

Thus, if one show knocks the other out of the box in the ratings, Backus will have accomplished the feat of losing himself a high-paying show.

"Life has never been easy for me," Backus sighed with shoulders hunched up around his ears.

"During the 'I Married Joan' series I collected more than 100 suits for my role, and when the show went off the air they gave 'em to me. But they weren't the kind of suits I'd wear, and I didn't know what to do with them.

"One day the grocery boy came to the door and I didn't have any change for a tip. So I asked him, 'How'd you like a pin-stripe suit?'

"I've been using those suits for tips ever since. I even gave one to my Japanese gardener."

BACKUS REFUSED to say which of his series he'd prefer to survive in the event he had to choose. But Magoo is a sentimental favorite, surely. Backus has been the voice of Magoo since the first movie short of the myopic little man was made 16 years ago.

It was titled "Musical Bear," and Magoo was a minor character.

But the little man with the squinting eyes and matchstick legs caught on like bikinis on a French beach. Backus has made 126 Magoo movie shorts and uncounted video shorts.

"This new half-hour television series is the most ambitious Magoo thing we've ever done," he said.

"Magoo's voice, though, was taken from the character I play in my nightclub act—the man in the club car. You know, the loud-mouthed traveling salesman who shows pictures of his family to everybody in the club car, belongs to all the clubs and tells dirty jokes.

"IT WAS THE SAME with Magoo in the beginning. He was a dirty old man. Half the time you couldn't understand what he was saying. He just used to mumble."

Backus recorded his Magoo series earlier in the year so there is no conflict with his "Gilligan's Island" work. It takes about three hours for him to record one show.

"I'll say one thing for Magoo. He's saved a lot of marriages. In New York bars guys who missed the last train to suburbia catch hell from their wives on the phone. Then they get me to say hello to the dames, using Magoo's voice. The wives die laughing, the marriage is saved and the kids go to college."

No Stardom Yet for Tony

By JOAN CROSBY

NEW YORK (NEA) — Tony Bill says it wasn't at all difficult for him to decide to toss over a promising film career and move to New York to study acting.

"I know I should have stayed in Hollywood and become a star and made a lot of money, but I knew I wanted to come to New York. So there was not much heavy deciding involved."

Bill, an intense, dark-eyed young man, was a student at Notre Dame when he got a summer job acting. He was spotted and signed to play Frank Sinatra's brother in "Come Blow Your Horn." He also appeared in "Soldiers in the Rain" and "None But the Brave."

JUST BEFORE he left Hollywood with his wife (also named Toni), and their 6-month-old son, Peter, Tony made two television shows. In the first, which aired last Monday on "Ben Casey," he played a cerebral palsy victim. The second, a "Mr. Novak" set for this upcoming Tuesday, casts him as a blind boy.

"Television is pretty tough. I got a telephone call on Monday at 8 p.m. asking me to play the blind boy the next morning at 7 a.m. What did I do? I got up and played a blind boy at 7 a.m."

Smith looks at two men very opposed to capital punishment, a man condemned to die in the electric chair of Cook County Jail on Feb. 14, and the reluctant executioner who'll pull the switch, during "ABC Scope's" analysis of the controversy over the death sentence, and the recent British vote to abolish it. At Cook County (Ill.), we'll see the only county level institution in the U. It's at 10:30 p.m., ch. 7.

1909 A YEAR TO REMEMBER

Long Beach — January 8, 1909

Plans for a scenic railroad along 265 feet of the Long Beach strand were announced today by a group of wealthy Eastern investors. Spokesman for the interested party said plans call for a winding course which would enter a cavernous aperture in the rocks, twist on through a man-made tunnel and then continue on passing fantastic panoramas of sea and rock. He hinted that even glimpses of scenes on other planets with weird creatures was in the planning.

(On January 8, 1909—A young man named Glenn E. Thomas had opened an automobile agency in Long Beach and was busy selling and servicing horseless carriages.)

SPECIAL

THE DEFENDERS—When 27 persons quietly watch the beating of an elderly stranger on a suburban street, with none lifting a finger to help the man who dies after the beating, the Prestons plead insanity for their young clients and maintain that it is the 27 who stood by without helping who are really on trial. Robert Walker Jr. and Philip Vandervort star as the accused youths, with Beatrice Straight as the mother of one in 10 p.m., ch. 2 hour directed by Sam Wanamaker. Walker, son of the late Robert Walker and actress Jennifer Jones, filmed the drama on an adjacent stage at New York's Filmways Studios to where his brother Michael was filming a "Doctors and Nurses" segment about a college hazing.

Does Robert Stack of "The Untouchables" have any plans for another television series?

A. Robertsen, Huntington Beach

Not as far as I know. However, he recently went on an African hunting trip which will be the subject of a television special on ABC-TV Jan. 31.

Any performance given by Al Kelly, comic double-talk artist who frequently appears on Tonight's Show, reminds us a great deal of the press conferences held by Mayor Sam Yorty of Big Town and Governor Pat Brown of California.

Both of these astute politicians are masters of double-talk when before TV cameras. Sometimes these "public servants" are really more entertaining than they are informative.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach

Do I detect a bit of Gleason double-talk?

We think "Shindig" is the best teenage program on television. Where can we get tickets?

L. Lopez and C. Ashley, Long Beach

I heard on the radio recently that the Beatles were asked to appear on "The Virginian." Is it true?

Lorie Paullsen, Long Beach

No. Couldn't find a horse large enough to carry Ringo's drums and Ringo.

Is the actor Dana Andrews dead or alive. If he is alive, I'll be a $5 winner.

S. H. Michr, Wilmington

Dana is still very much alive. His 30-year-old son, David, died last year. The son was a radio announcer.

SPECIAL

HOUSE PARTY—Midway through his 13th year on television, and a veteran of 7 years of radio before that, Art Linkletter today notes the 20th anniversary of his "House Party," which has been aired for some 2500 hours up to its 1:30 p.m. telecast, ch. 2. Ken Murray, Gogi Grant, Alan Young, Vincent Price, Allen Ludden and Zsa Zsa Gabor join Link today for the first of five shows celebrating his fifth of a century on the air, with Murray showing "home movies" filmed in 1945, while Gogi sings a 1945 hit song.

BOB HOPE—Hope calls it his "most exciting overseas trip since World War II"—his 15-day Christmas travelthon of entertaining GIs in Korea, Okinawa, Thailand, the Philippines, Guam and South Vietnam. And filmed highlights of his 16 scheduled and 6 unscheduled shows will be seen at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4. Taking part are Janis Paige, Anita Bryant, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Jerry Colonna, John Bubbles, Ann Sidney (Miss World), Peter Leeds, Les Brown and special guest Jill St. John (who dances the swim with men from the audience). Hope is seen in both tropical heat and a snow flurry, and spending a royal evening with the King and Queen of Thailand. And cameras record both the laughing faces of the GIs, and the tearful faces of the stars when thousands of men in war-torn South Vietnam sing "Silent Night."

SPECIAL

HOUSE PARTY—Midway through his 13th year on television, and a veteran of 7 years of radio before that, Art Linkletter today notes the 20th anniversary of his "House Party," which has been aired for some 2500 hours up to its 1:30 p.m. telecast, ch. 2. Ken Murray, Gogi Grant, Alan Young, Vincent Price, Allen Ludden and Zsa Zsa Gabor join Link today for the first of five shows celebrating his fifth of a century on the air, with Murray showing "home movies" filmed in 1945, while Gogi sings a 1945 hit song.

BOB HOPE—Hope calls it his "most exciting overseas trip since World War II"—his 15-day Christmas travelthon of entertaining GIs in Korea, Okinawa, Thailand, the Philippines, Guam and South Vietnam. And filmed highlights of his 16 scheduled and 6 unscheduled shows will be seen at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4. Taking part are Janis Paige, Anita Bryant, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Jerry Colonna, John Bubbles, Ann Sidney (Miss World), Peter Leeds, Les Brown and special guest Jill St. John (who dances the swim with men from the audience). Hope is seen in both tropical heat and a snow flurry, and spending a royal evening with the King and Queen of Thailand. And cameras record both the laughing faces of the GIs, and the tearful faces of the stars when thousands of men in war-torn South Vietnam sing "Silent Night."

Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is it true that Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida hate each other?—Vicki Parson, Lexington, Ky.
A. At one time they were rivals. But Miss Loren, 29, has in the past few years eclipsed Miss Lollobrigida, 36, in popularity and achievement. They are not mutual admirers, but they do not hate one another.

Q. What's happened to James Michener, author of South Pacific, Hawaii and other books?—N. H. Oliver, Eugene, Ore.
A. Michener recently returned from Israel with a novel on that country.

Q. Who is the Hollywood actor with the dead-end accent who is known for the line: "Yondah is my foddah's castill"?—Lou Zimmermann, Baltimore, Md.
A. The line was uttered many years ago by Tony Curtis in a film, The Black Shield of Falworth. Since then, Curtis has lost some of his New York accent, has learned to articulate.

Q. I've been told that in England when a married woman gives birth to a child, she is given a special maternity grant by the state. Is this true? If so, how much?—V. R. Corer, Boca Raton, Fla.
A. True. She is given $58.80.

Q. What is this about Jackie Coogan's stepfather being quietly charged with murder?—G. T., Los Angeles, Calif.
A. James Grant, Coogan's stepfather, has been charged with an attempt to murder golf pro Jimmy Thompson in Los Angeles, has entered a plea of not guilty by virtue of insanity.

Q. Can you tell me if I am correct in saying that Jackie Kennedy will have free postage in the U.S. as long as she lives?—Milli Arkin, Park Ridge, Ill.
A. Yes, you are correct. Presidential widows enjoy the franking privilege.

Q. During the last political campaign we were repeatedly told that the federal Social Security fund is in the red and rapidly heading towards bankruptcy. Is this true?—Mrs. T. M. Barlow, St. Louis, Mo.
A. Not true at this time.

Q. My question has to do with two characters in the novel, Of Human Bondage, Mildred Rogers and Sally Athelny. Can you find out from Somerset Maugham the identity of the real women he based those characters on?—Fred Dunn, Falmouth Foreside, Me.
A. Mr. Maugham declines to say.

Q. Can Gov. George Romney of Michigan run for the Presidency of the United States even though he was born in Mexico?—John W. Hughes, San Diego, Calif.
A. His parents were U.S. citizens, and a liberal interpretation of the Constitutional requirements permits him to run.

Q. How could Helen Keller write the story of her life if she's both blind and deaf?—Mildred Angelone, Cambria Heights, N.Y.
A. Miss Keller writes both in Braille and via manual alphabet.

Q. I would like to know how come the Nazis who occupied Paris in World War II did not destroy the city after Hitler repeatedly ordered it blown to bits. —Frank McManus, Hartford, Conn.
A. The German commander of Paris, General von Choltitz, refused to obey Hitler's orders and blow up the city. The Luftwaffe, however, whose men were not stationed in Paris and therefore had not learned to love the city, obeyed Hitler's command. In the summer of 1944 the Luftwaffe manned what was left of its aircraft and bombed Paris at low level, killing 213 residents, injuring 914, damaging or destroying 600 buildings. It was von Choltitz, however, who saved the city from total destruction. Having wired it for complete demolition, he refused at the end to order the detonation.

Q. Is it true that John Wayne was recently operated on for cancer of the lung and the whole thing was kept secret?—Pam Ellenson, Phoenix, Ariz.
A. A small benign tumor was removed from his lung. No secret was made of it.

Q. I have read that the current federal road-building program has led to highway robbery in West Virginia, Massachusetts, Oklahoma, Florida, New Mexico, Arizona and Louisiana. True or false?—L. T., New Orleans, La.
A. True.

Q. Does Ronald Reagan plan to run for President of the United States?—Lois Klein, Oakland, Calif.
A. No, but he probably will run for governor of California on the Republican ticket. He has been mentioned prominently as a potential candidate.

Q. If a diplomat gets a girl in trouble, is he immune to a paternity charge? I have reference to the case of Omar Adeel, Sudanese ambassador to the U.N. He was alleged by Sarah Lake, 28, to be father of her child. Does diplomatic immunity apply in such cases? —R. O., Washington, D.C.
A. According to Anglo-Saxon law, it does. More than 100 years ago a decision by Lord Chief Justice Campbell of the Queen's Bench in London held that an ambassador must be left free "to devote himself body and soul" to his calling.

Q. Did Hubert Humphrey see any military service in World War II?—Don Medford, St. Paul, Minn.
A. Humphrey tried to enlist in the Navy several times, could not pass the physical.

Q. Is it true that Sophia Loren and Gina Lollobrigida hate each other?—Vicki Parson, Lexington, Ky.

A. At one time they were rivals. But Miss Loren, 29, has in the past few years eclipsed Miss Lollobrigida, 36, in popularity and achievement. They are not mutual admirers, but they do not hate one another.

Q. What's happened to James Michener, author of South Pacific, Hawaii and other books?—N. H. Oliver, Eugene, Ore.

A. Michener recently returned from Israel with a novel on that country.

Q. Who is the Hollywood actor with the dead-end accent who is known for the line: "Yondah is my foddah's castill"?—Lou Zimmermann, Baltimore, Md.

A. The line was uttered many years ago by Tony Curtis in a film, The Black Shield of Falworth. Since then, Curtis has lost some of his New York accent, has learned to articulate.

Q. I've been told that in England when a married woman gives birth to a child, she is given a special maternity grant by the state. Is this true? If so, how much?—V. R. Gorer, Boca Raton, Fla.

A. True. She is given $58.80.

Q. What is this about Jackie Coogan's stepfather being quietly charged with murder?—G. T., Los Angeles, Calif.

A. James Grant, Coogan's stepfather, has been charged with an attempt to murder golf pro Jimmy Thompson in Los Angeles, has entered a plea of not guilty by virtue of insanity.

Q. Can you tell me if I am correct in saying that Jackie Kennedy will have free postage in the U.S. as long as she lives?—Milli Arkin, Park Ridge, Ill.

A. Yes, you are correct. Presidential widows enjoy the franking privilege.

Q. During the last political campaign we were repeatedly told that the federal Social Security fund is in the red and rapidly heading towards bankruptcy. Is this true?—Mrs. T. M. Barlow, St. Louis, Mo.

A. Not true at this time.

Q. My question has to do with two characters in the novel, Of Human Bondage, Mildred Rogers and Sally Athelny. Can you find out from Somerset Maugham the identity of the real women he based those characters on?—Fred Dunn, Falmouth Foreside, Me.

A. Mr. Maugham declines to say.

Q. Can Gov. George Romney of Michigan run for the Presidency of the United States even though he was born in Mexico?—John W. Hughes, San Diego, Calif.

A. His parents were U.S. citizens, and a liberal interpretation of the Constitutional requirements permits him to run.

Q. How could Helen Keller write the story of her life if she's both blind and deaf?—Mildred Angelone, Cambria Heights, N.Y.

A. Miss Keller writes both in Braille and via manual alphabet.

Q. I would like to know how come the Nazis who occupied Paris in World War II did not destroy the city after Hitler repeatedly ordered it blown to bits. —Frank McManus, Hartford, Conn.

A. The German commander of Paris, General von Choltitz, refused to obey Hitler's orders and blow up the city. The Luftwaffe, however, whose men were not stationed in Paris and therefore had not learned to love the city, obeyed Hitler's command. In the summer of 1944 the Luftwaffe manned what was left of its aircraft and bombed Paris at low level, killing 213 residents, injuring 914, damaging or destroying 600 buildings. It was von Choltitz, however, who saved the city from total destruction. Having wired it for complete demolition, he refused at the end to order the detonation.

Q. Is it true that John Wayne was recently operated on for cancer of the lung and the whole thing was kept secret?—Pam Ellenson, Phoenix, Ariz.

A. A small benign tumor was removed from his lung. No secret was made of it.

A. True.

Q. Does Ronald Reagan plan to run for President of the United States?—Lois Klein, Oakland, Calif.

A. No, but he probably will run for governor of California on the Republican ticket. He has been mentioned prominently as a potential candidate.

BLITZKRIEG! The event that changed all our lives, revealed with a clarity impossible at the time!

Under wily Rommel, the "desert fox," the Germans blitzed their way across an entire continent. A watching world trembled as the Allies reeled...

Nazi Blitzkrieg had made Europe a captive fortress until D-Day. Many of the Allies were not as lucky as these LCVP survivors off Omaha Beach.

The inventors of Blitzkrieg got a taste of their own medicine when the Allies took their brand of "lightning-war" into the heartland of Germany.

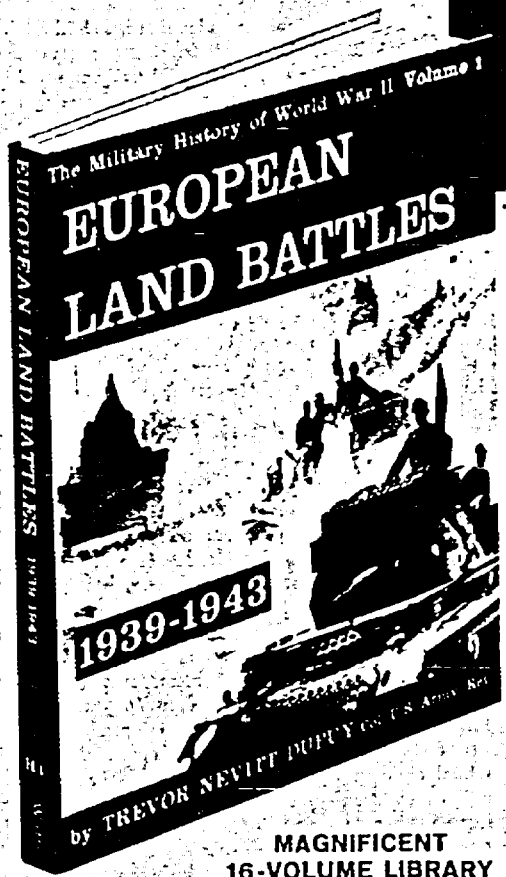

Meanwhile, on the other side of the world, the Japanese launched a Blitzkrieg of their own – with the "day of infamy" attack on Pearl Harbor.

This Thrilling First Volume in the New 16-Volume MILITARY HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II

They called it the "phony war." Then "sitzkrieg" turned into "blitzkrieg" as Hitler's armored divisions raced with lightning speed through country after country! Here is the whole breathless story – over 12,000 words, 47 photographs and 10 battle maps. This is the way it really was!

MAGNIFICENT 16-VOLUME LIBRARY

"BLITZKRIEG – Lightning-War," they called it. And, like lightning, World War II burst upon an astonished, virtually defenseless world, leaving nation after nation prostrate, turning city after city into rubble.

At the time, it was almost impossible to grasp the overall picture of events as they followed headlong upon each other. In fact, for nearly a generation the world has awaited the great work of history that could at last fully unravel the tangled threads in the World War II story.

The monumental new MILITARY HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II is that work.

Written with access to the newly-opened archives of victor and vanquished alike, enriched by dozens of specially-created maps and hundreds of gripping photographs (many published for the first time), THE MILITARY HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II lets you see at last the "grand design" of the global conflict – with a clarity and scope heretofore known only by a handful of Supreme Commanders and heads of state!

So deep was the imprint of World War II on the lives of those who survived it, so violent the passions it arouses even today, that only a writer of uncommon gifts could tackle the subject with balance and detachment. Colonel Trevor Nevitt Dupuy (U.S. Army, ret.), author of THE MILITARY HISTORY OF WORLD WAR II, is one of the foremost historians, scholars and military analysts of our time, the master of a pungent, fast-moving, narrative style.

In this fascinating new 16-volume home library – now available to you and your family on an easy book-a-month plan – Colonel Dupuy takes you into the chancelleries and secret headquarters of Allied and Axis strategists. He makes you an eyewitness to the mapping of invasions and the deployment of troops. He puts you in the thick of battle... in front-line command dugouts and in guerrilla nests, in submarines and on island outposts, in tanks and in foxholes, aboard convoys and Flying Fortresses. He discloses information that has lain unseen for almost twenty years in files marked "Top Secret."

You learn of the night Gen. Mark W. Clark was nearly captured by Nazi agents while on a cloak-and-dagger mission – and how he escaped by swimming to an American submarine. Had Clark been taken, Allied invasion plans might have been foiled!

You discover why Adolf Hitler, when France lay prostrate at his feet, had his troops stop short instead of driving on to occupy the whole country. Had he done otherwise, Germany might have seized all of North Africa without a shot!

You view, for perhaps the first time, the shocking picture of American losses in the "island-hopping" Pacific war ...and you understand, in a way never before possible, the factors behind President Truman's decision to drop the atom bomb on an enemy already clearly doomed to defeat!

Here is no conventional military history – no mere parade of dates, names, and statistics. Pick up any one of these 16 volumes and you plunge into a drama so suspenseful that even the young readers in your family will be held spellbound ... you find so faithful a reconstruction of events that, regardless of where you were or what you may have been doing during World War II, you catch yourself saying over and over again as you read, "Yes! This is just the way it was!"

when does a child need a psychiatrist?

By FRED MARSHOFSKY

Experts say 2½ to 4½ million school-age children need psychiatric care. Often the first sign is poor school work.

Millions of American youngsters are in need of psychiatric help—and their parents do not recognize it or will not admit it. They brush off the child's behavior by saying, "Oh, he'll outgrow it," or "That's just Johnny—he's always been that way." Yet the fact is that youth is the most important time to recognize and treat psychiatric problems. And if early warning signs are ignored, they can lead to great difficulties later—as the case of Lee Harvey Oswald demonstrated.

Today, however, thanks to greater psychiatric knowledge and more extensive facilities than in the past, it is possible to treat and to check such difficulties before damage is irreparable. Yet it is up to parents to spot the warning signs early enough. But how do you know when your child needs a psychiatrist? What are the signals? What can you do about them? What are the chances for successful treatment? What will it cost?

Of course, to a parent the idea that his child might need psychiatric help is a distressing one. And the fact is that in many cases, the child will outgrow his problem. For not every child whose behavior seems unusual or erratic is a psychiatric case. Growing up is a series of stages of development, and what seems abnormal at one stage is perfectly normal at another one. Furthermore, children are individuals—so that what one child does is not necessarily a measuring stick for the behavior of another.

"Most people know what is generally expected of a child," says Dr. Harlow D. Dunton, associate professor of psychiatry at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons. "Common sense combined with this knowledge can usually tell whether a problem exists."

How many sick children?

Moreover, not every strange pattern of behavior can be attributed to psychological problems. A child who is constantly drowsy, for example, may suffer from diabetes rather than a disturbed psyche. A youngster who eats dirt, long after he passed the stage where he put everything into his mouth, may be suffering from a nutritional deficiency. Many behavior problems are actually organic and require medical rather than psychiatric care, or a combination of both.

Nonetheless, psychiatric problems among youngsters are widespread. According to Dr. Stuart M. Finch, of the Children's Psychiatric Hospital, University of Michigan, about 7½ to 12 per cent of the grade school children in the United States—2½ to 4½ million children—are "sufficiently emotionally disturbed to require treatment." When you add in preschoolers, infants and high school students who may need care, the number could be twice that.

What are the warning signals of such emotional disturbance? Dr. Dunton describes it as "behavior that appears excessive and is continually repeated." These signals manifest themselves in many ways. Some are simple and slight. A child sucks his thumb when others his age have stopped. He wets the bed repeatedly although he should have outgrown it long ago.

In other cases the behavior pattern is more obvious and recognizable. One of the most common distress signals is so-called school phobia—which, as the name implies, is an unreasonable unwillingness to attend school. Although the real roots of the problem lie in the home and not in the classroom, the child digs in his heels and adamantly refuses to attend, and neither threats, bribes, cajolery or spankings can budge him.

Other children may become extremely violent.

Other children may become extremely violent.

They pick fights with playmates, destroy toys, scribble on walls and throw fits of temper from which nothing can divert them.

Still other children display their psychiatric distress by withdrawal. An 8-year-old may bury himself in in books or the television set, shutting out all other activities and refusing to play with friends or even to venture out of the house.

Still another recognized cause of psychiatric difficulty is slight brain injury at birth. In one case, a 5-year-old had learned to talk at the normal time, but later her vocabulary diminished until she finally lost the ability to put sentences together. She grew withdrawn, unstable and had violent tantrums. Her parents took her to a neurologist, whose tests showed previously undiscovered brain damage. A course of treatment was instituted aimed at training other areas of the brain to take over functions of the damaged portion, and there is now hope the child can return to normal life.

Yardstick for treatment

Unfortunately for parents, there is no yardstick to measure when children are particularly susceptible to psychiatric difficulty. Some children may go through life seemingly in mild distress yet never meet a cause which makes this distress acute. Others may appear normal for a long period, then suddenly send up warning signals. Moreover, no age group and neither sex seems to have more or less vulnerability to difficulty.

Thus, one seemingly normal 15-year-old boy was uprooted from school in the Midwest and transplanted to a boarding school in the East. On his first visit home, he announced to his parents that he thought he should see a psychiatrist. His father laughed, slapped him on the back and told him he'd been studying too hard. That night the boy swallowed a bottle of aspirin and had to be rushed to a hospital.

In another case, a boy of 9 was preoccupied with detective stories and talked constantly of murder and suicide. His parents ignored the signs. The boy went off and threw himself in a river and drowned.

What should you do if your child gives signs of psychological difficulty? Whom should you see and what steps should you take?

"The first person to see," declares Dr. Lionel O. Friedman, chief of psychiatry at Stuyvesant Polyclinic Hospital, New York, "is the pediatrician or family doctor. He can best determine if there is any medical reason for the child's extreme behavior."

In some mild cases, the pediatrician or family doctor can himself be of assistance. If not, however, he can refer you to a psychiatrist.

In many schools, the school psychologist or guidance counselor can help. Teachers and counselors, in fact, often spot the danger signals before parents do and sound the alert. A trained psychologist or counselor can provide knowledge, assistance and advice and also refer a case to a private psychiatrist. In addition, community mental health organizations, child guidance clinics and family counseling services are ready to help.

To many parents, the idea of sending their child to a psychiatrist is frightening. "To some people it is an admission of failure to the child," says Stuyvesant Polyclinic's Dr. Friedman. "The result is that they deny the problem exists, so that they can avoid guilt feelings. 'He'll outgrow it' becomes the hope and rationalization. Fortunately, in four cases out of five, the child probably will outgrow his problem—or find within himself the strength to overcome it. But for the one child in five whose problem does not disappear, much valuable time has been lost and his chances are diminished by that much."

Actually, experts agree, there is no reason for parents to be fearful of psychiatric treatment for children. A child psychiatrist brings to a case not only specialized training and experience, but objectivity, which parents and often not even the family doctor can provide. Thus he is in a better position to size up the case and then attempt to solve it.

In this day of scientific advance, a psychiatrist can bring to bear many methods of treatment in such cases. The simplest is merely to chat with the parents and child. In some cases the child's "problem" exists only in the mind of the parents and the psychiatrist's reassurance that the child is normal is all the treatment that is necessary.

Moreover, in some cases what is needed is not psychiatric treatment but "preventive psychiatry." A potential emotional problem—the rivalry of a child for a newborn brother, for instance—can be forestalled early with a psychiatrist's help. A simple session of consultation and evaluation can not only pinpoint the trouble but work out a plan to eliminate it. "Set aside a special hour of the day to spend with the older child to the exclusion of the baby," the psychiatrist may recommend. "Show him that you love him still and that you have time for him. That is all the treatment he needs."

Yet it is true that in some cases more extensive treatment may be necessary. The child may be given tranquilizing drugs to calm him down and to help him cope with the realities of his life. In a handful of cases, extensive therapy, long-term analysis and even hospitalization may be necessary. And, since the child's difficulty is a problem of the home situation, it may be necessary to treat the parents as well as the youngster.

In instances of consultation and evaluation, costs can run from $25 to $100 and may be even more expensive for prolonged therapy. However, if performed at a clinic, there may be a minimal charge or none at all for those in financial need.

Signs to watch out for

Yet these costs and these difficulties can be avoided, or at least minimized, if parents are alert to the danger signals that children in distress give. You should be warned, experts agree, if your child shows any of these signs:

1) When there is an abrupt change in school performance, or when the discrepancy between performance and ability becomes too great.

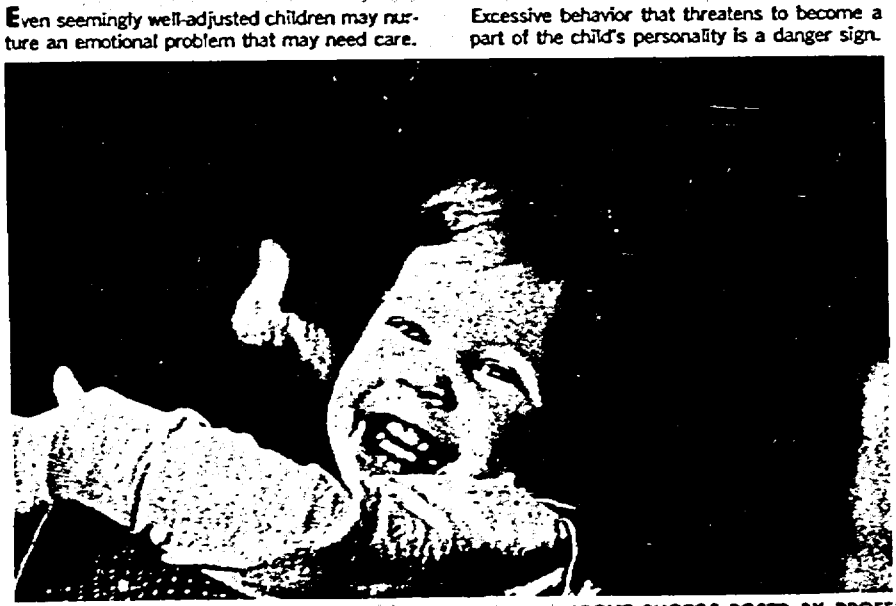

2) When the child withdraws from the companionship of other children or from activities.

3) When the child acts out his hostility—by temper tantrums, tears, fighting and lack of control.

4) When the child appears to have a feeling of unworthiness, lacks confidence in all areas or seems to have a feeling he is not loved.

But if your child gives none of these signs and you are still troubled about him, you should look for assistance. "Whenever a parent is unhappy about his child's behavior, or the child himself is unhappy about it," says Dr. Friedman, "then is the time to seek help." ■

Even seemingly well-adjusted children may nurture an emotional problem that may need care. Excessive behavior that threatens to become a part of the child's personality is a danger sign.

Play therapy is commonly used tool. Young children unable to speak of their problems will very often act them out with dolls or puppets.

They pick fights with playmates, destroy toys, scribble on walls and throw fits of temper from which nothing can divert them.

Still other children display their psychiatric distress by withdrawal. An 8-year-old may bury himself in in books or the television set, shutting out all other activities and refusing to play with friends or even to venture out of the house.

Still another recognized cause of psychiatric difficulty is slight brain injury at birth. In one case, a 5-year-old had learned to talk at the normal time, but later her vocabulary diminished until she finally lost the ability to put sentences together. She grew withdrawn, unstable and had violent tantrums. Her parents took her to a neurologist, whose tests showed previously undiscovered brain damage. A course of treatment was instituted aimed at training other areas of the brain to take over functions of the damaged portion, and there is now hope the child can return to normal life.

Yardstick for treatment

Unfortunately for parents, there is no yardstick to measure when children are particularly susceptible to psychiatric difficulty. Some children may go through life seemingly in mild distress yet never meet a cause which makes this distress acute. Others may appear normal for a long period, then suddenly send up warning signals. Moreover, no age group and neither sex seems to have more or less vulnerability to difficulty.

Thus, one seemingly normal 15-year-old boy was uprooted from school in the Midwest and transplanted to a boarding school in the East. On his first visit home, he announced to his parents that he thought he should see a psychiatrist. His father laughed, slapped him on the back and told him he'd been studying too hard. That night the boy swallowed a bottle of aspirin and had to be rushed to a hospital.

In another case, a boy of 9 was preoccupied with detective stories and talked constantly of murder and suicide. His parents ignored the signs. The boy went off and threw himself in a river and drowned.

What should you do if your child gives signs of psychological difficulty? Whom should you see and what steps should you take?

"The first person to see," declares Dr. Lionel O. Friedman, chief of psychiatry at Stuyvesant Polyclinic Hospital, New York, "is the pediatrician or family doctor. He can best determine if there is any medical reason for the child's extreme behavior."

In some mild cases, the pediatrician or family doctor can himself be of assistance. If not, however, he can refer you to a psychiatrist.

In many schools, the school psychologist or guidance counselor can help. Teachers and counselors, in fact, often spot the danger signals before parents do and sound the alert. A trained psychologist or counselor can provide knowledge, assistance and advice and also refer a case to a private psychiatrist. In addition, community mental health organizations, child guidance clinics and family counseling services are ready to help.

To many parents, the idea of sending their child to a psychiatrist is frightening. "To some people it is an admission of failure to the child," says Stuyvesant Polyclinic's Dr. Friedman. POP MUSIC AND SEX. Among teenagers pop music is partly to blame for their mounting obsession with sex. So claims Dr. Ronald Sprenger, chief school medical officer of Nottingham, England. To prove his point he advises adults to study the behavior of teenagers at any beat group session. "Mass hysteria," he asserts, "affects many to the stage of loss of consciousness and lack of thought for their immediate welfare." As soon as the tempo of the music is slowed, the doctor continues, the girls stop screaming, hip-wiggling and "return to their former thoughtful and less emotional attitude." One of Dr. Sprenger's colleagues, Miss F.M. Mitford, headmistress of Nottingham Girls' High School, disagrees strongly with the doctor. "There is absolutely no proof," she says, "to show that beat music has an adverse or wayward effect on our girls."

HOUSEWIVES BEWARE. Many housewives throughout the country have been unknowingly manufacturing poison gas in their kitchens. They do this by mixing a commercial cleanser with ammonia water or vinegar. Many cleansing powders and household laundry bleaches contain sodium hypochlorite. Mixed with ammonia, the sodium hypochlorite produces ammonia gas. Mixed with vinegar, it produces chlorine gas. Both gases are poisonous.

NO MORE STOPS. Cubana and Czech airlines no longer put down at the Gander Airbase in Newfoundland. Reason: Too many Cuban and Czech passengers desert their aircraft. They ask Canadian authorities for asylum, which is almost always granted. In the case of the Cubans they are transferred to Halifax, Nova Scotia, from where nearly all go to Florida to join other Cuban expatriates. The Czech defectors are generally skilled technicians who have taught laborers in Havana how to work or construct complex machinery. Many of these men prefer to remain in Canada rather than return to Communist Czechoslovakia. EMPLOYMENT AGENCY RACKETEERS

By BILL SURFACE

In Washington, D.C., recently, a 60-year-old man wearing tan work clothes desperately told the interviewer for a private employment agency: "I'll do any kind of work." He handed over a $5 registration fee. Weeks later, after not hearing from the agency, he telephoned and was told: "You're too old to work. Don't bother us."

Across town, a well-dressed public relations executive paid an "executive search" agency $450—and contracted to pay 10 per cent of his first year's salary—to find him a similar job in California. He waited for five months. Then, after protesting, he got an interview for a job as an experienced cosmetics salesman. He wrote eight letters to the agency, then went in person to protest. "Your application form," the counselor threatened him, "could just land on your boss's desk and you won't even have that job."

Throughout the nation, Americans on all job levels are being bilked by growing numbers of employment frauds. These rackets masquerade as respectable employment agencies, executive recruiters, personnel consultants and management placement firms.

Most of the country's employment agencies are honest and reputable. But the field has been infiltrated by outright swindlers. And, as Sen. Wayne Morse's subcommittee investigating the problem concluded: "[We are] concerned by the mistrust that can envelop an entire industry when unscrupulous operators are allowed to operate."

The Senate hearings disclosed, for instance, collusion between agencies and employers. One agency got a counterman a job in a restaurant. He paid a $5 registration fee and pledged 40 per cent of his first month's wages. Three weeks later, the restaurant paid him, but only half the amount agreed on—and that he had to give to the agency for its placement fee. Enraged that he had worked three weeks for nothing, the counterman quit. The agency then sent a replacement; the restaurant operated continually with near-free labor.

And, after working two weeks, a secretary supplied by the same agency was told to mop the floor. She refused, was fired and her salary went to the agency.

In 18 states and the District of Columbia, such fee-splitting is not illegal. Although every state has laws governing employment agencies, they are largely ineffectual. According to the District of Columbia License Department Enforcement Branch: "We prosecuted 12 employment agencies for fraud over a 3-year period, but couldn't touch 200 other cases." Says an assistant corporation counsel: "About the only thing you can actually prosecute for is operating an employment agency without a license."

The best protection against cheating agency operators is a knowledge of how they work.

Some agencies lure job-hunters by advertising jobs that don't exist. When people ask about them, the agency says the job "has just been filled." They offer to send the applicants out on something they claim "is just as good." It rarely is.

JOB 'PREPARATION'

Other agencies may say that to get a job the applicant must sign up for job counseling, home study courses or subscriptions, which can cost as much as $300. Later, the applicant is told the job is gone.

Registration fees are banned in 17 states, but the law is easily circumvented. Some New York agencies charge $10 "advance fees" or "deposits" before sending a man on an interview. And in other states, where registration fees are legal, agencies have been known to use phony ads merely to get fees.

Jobs are sometimes misrepresented. "The most widespread practice is telling an applicant he has a salaried position when it's really peddling on commission," says a Better Business Bureau director. One 19-year-old girl was hired as a typist, then told that before the job would be open, she had to sell insecticides at the same salary of $40 a week for 2 weeks. After 2 weeks she was paid $5.50.

Dishonest agencies often claim employers pay all fees when they have no such arrangement. Usually people searching for jobs are under heavy pressure to find work, so signing a complex contract doesn't seem important. But once they sign, they must pay.

The big-league operators are often completely unregulated. Sam P. Triffy, a retired Air Force colonel, was interviewed and "declared eligible" to become a client of a large "executive searcher" in Washington. He paid $390. The agency drew up and mailed a résumé to 100 firms and answered 3 ads. That was the entire service, Triffy told the subcommittee. "The contract is firm. I have no results. I have no records. I am out $390."

Another retired colonel also paid $390 and told the subcommittee that the agency was doing nothing for him. And in New York, an executive told PARADE he paid the same firm $450 and got the same results.

Job-seekers certainly need not avoid employment agencies. But they should make sure they are dealing with reputable ones. Here are ways to stay in the clear:

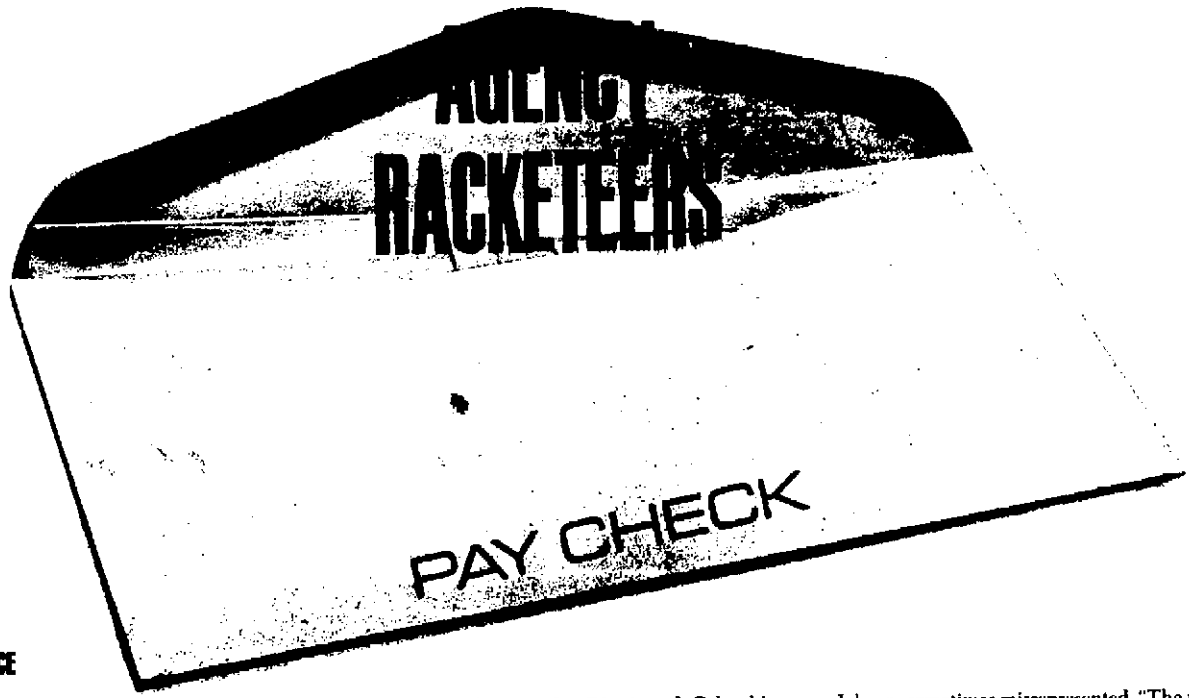

- Check the agency's reputation with your Better Business Bureau, state Attorney General's Fraud Division, city Department of Licenses or with the National Employment Association (see box).
- If an agency sends you to a firm that hasn't requested applicants, or where a job is filled, avoid it in the future.
- Avoid anyone working from a hotel room who offers unbelievable deals and contacts.
- Don't be swayed by fast talkers promoting guidance and résumés for a fee.
- Read the agency contract carefully before you sign it. If you are applying for a no-fee job, make sure you get it in writing.
- Get a clear, written, signed statement of the job, salary and the agency's placement fee.

PARADE has performed a real service by pointing out some unfortunate practices that occur, as in most professions, among the minority rather than the majority of the group. One reason for the formation of the National Employment Association, an organization of more than 900 private personnel agencies, was to lift the standards of agencies across the land, much like bar and medical associations.

NEA encourages people who have documented criticisms of agencies to submit them for investigation. We police our own ranks and have a tremendous record of compliance. If you have a complaint we invite you to send it to NEA, 2000 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C.

A LESSON I LEARNED FROM LIFE

by ED BEGLEY

Academy Award winner Begley accepts Oscar for best supporting actor from Rita Moreno for his role in Sweet Bird of Youth.

When I was 11 years old, I ran away from my home in Hartford, Conn. I ran away to become an actor. My father, who was a hod carrier, an immigrant laborer from the old country, County Kerry, Ireland, told me I was making a serious mistake.

"You've got no larnin', lad," he said. "You'll never make anything of yourself. It's a serious mistake."

Eventually I became an actor. But my father was right. I never even had a grade school education. And now as I look back on my life, I know—I guess I always knew—that my biggest regret was my failure to complete my education. I only went through the fifth grade of grammar school.

I can't tell you how many times I've been pained and embarrassed, not only in my work but in my everyday living, by my lack of schooling.

I remember especially one time in my youth when things were rough, financially speaking, and I needed additional income to support myself and my family. A friend tried to help me out by getting me a job selling time for station WNBC, which was then in Hartford. Because of my limited education, the station couldn't use me. They knew I'd done some acting, however, and had a pretty good voice, and they offered to audition me for a job as news announcer.

A news announcer has no time to study a script. He must be able to sight-read and pronounce what he reads properly. I wanted that job in the worst way, but I was afraid I couldn't pronounce the big words, so I wouldn't even turn up for the audition.

Today an education is even more important than it was in my day. It's almost impossible to achieve any kind of success without at least a high school diploma. That's the absolute minimum.

'HOW ABOUT YOU?'

My daughter and son, Allene, 16, and Eddy, 15, both want careers in the theater, which is fine to me. But first they've got to get good educations.

Each time I tell them that, they come up with, "How about you?" It's the same question I often face when I speak to students at schools and colleges throughout the country. I tell them truthfully that I was lucky, very lucky, more lucky than I deserved. I tell them that in my youth, a man could fake his way through. It was possible to succeed without an education. Today it's almost an impossibility.

All my life I have suffered from a constant, nagging inferiority complex. I've tried to make up for my lack of education by reading and studying on my own. I've also tried to align myself with educators and teachers so that some of their learning can rub off on me.

Last year I got a big thrill when I attended the dedication ceremonies for the Ed Begley Manuscript Collection at the Andrew Carnegie Library at the University of Syracuse. The collection covers all phases of my career, including the pilot radio script for Charlie Chan, the original teleplay of Patterns, for which I won the Sylvania Award, and the original manuscript of Sweet Bird of Youth, for which film I won an Academy Award.

I'm happy, too, that I've been able to establish scholarships for young people at St. Patrick's Parochial School in Hartford, from which I ran away at age 11.

No child, no matter how deluded by the lure of the open road, should follow in my steps. That path almost always leads to failure. I just happen to be the exception whose way should never be repeated. That's the one big lesson I've learned from my life. Youth is the time for schooling. Life is tough enough. Why go out into the world with an unnecessary handicap?

Tourists on camelback arrive at camp near Cairo. Against backdrop of the Pyramids, they'll spend an Arab night, feasting, dancing and breathing the spell of the desert.

How do you get to a party in the desert? Via camel, of course, and these nomads-for-a-day are mounted and ready to ride.

HOW TO GO CAMPING BY CAMEL

by NEAL ASHBY

■ The way things are moving in the travel field, you may find yourself stepping out of an Arab tent onto burning desert sands any vacation now.

From the doorway of the tent, you can stare inscrutably out over the shimmering dunes. (You won't be wearing a hooded, flowing white robe with sash, though—just your regular tourist clothes.)

Package excursions into desert life are here—camel rides, Bedouin meals, whining Arab music and belly dancing all included. There's just one important requisite. You have to happen to be in Cairo.

From your hotel in that Egyptian capital, you go by bus to a near-by staging area. You mount a camel there and take your place in a caravan of 50 heading across the Sahara to a tent city less than 10 miles from Cairo. The party camps overnight in the shadow of the ancient Pyramids.

Bedouin cooks prepare an exotic meal, as they did in another era for Lawrence of Arabia. A sheik may be seated beside you in the dining tent. He will have been advised that carrying off lady tourists is strictly forbidden.

After a major meal, an Arab orchestra plays for dancing. A belly dancer goes on solo. There'll be camel racing. You sleep in a tent, but your bed has springs. Such a 25-hour desert camping trip costs about $10 a person, according to the Egyptian State Tourist Commission. And possibly a sunburn.

Shades of Lawrence of Arabia. Bearing meals to guests in dining tent, proud Bedouin cooks complete exotic aura.

Arab belly dancer encourages tourist to do same. You can't take it with you, but you can ogle to your heart's content.

CHOU EN-LAI: FRONT MAN FOR RED CHINA

by JACK ANDERSON

At a diplomatic reception, I once watched Communist China's Chou En-lai drink a rival under the table. Not a muscle of Chou's face faltered as his opponent slowly turned to blubber playing the Chinese game of Gombei—bottoms up.

Drinking or sober, the suave and sardonic Chou has the most disciplined face in diplomacy. With a bland smile or a stony stare, he expresses the mysterious moods of Red China. When he beams, as he did upon Africa during a 10-nation tour last year, it means Red China is on the make. When his face freezes, as it did during recent Kremlin speeches by the new Soviet leaders, it registers Peking's displeasure.

For Chou En-lai is Red China's front man, as slick a salesman, as polished a pitchman, as ever tried to sell rebellion to the natives. His pitch—that the colored peoples of the world should rise up against the whites under Chinese Communist leadership.

Chou has the handsome face of the actor he started out to be. Indeed, he was such a pretty fellow that he was often given female roles. But if his face is expressive, it is also inscrutable. Only the dark, dynamic eyes are restless—darting, flashing, peering—under arched black brows.

Chou also has the breeding of the aristocratic mandarin he was brought up to be. Charming and urbane, he can hold his own in the most sophisticated company. But he can be a cold, unyielding negotiator, too. An Indian diplomat told me that Chou once held a Chinese-Indian conference in session for 12 hours "arguing over the placement of a comma."

This Chinese Talleyrand gave up his bourgeois beginnings to become a revolutionary, left the theater to perform on the world stage. Trained as a Confucianist intellectual, sworn to serve the masses, he was inclined at first to look upon Marx as a modern Confucius. But Chou turned out to be sufficiently treacherous and cunning to rise rapidly in the Communist movement. Indeed, he developed such a talent for conspiring and conniving, ever switching to the winning side, always keeping his head below the purge line, that he came to be called Pu Tao Weng, after the Chinese doll that cannot be pushed over but always bobs back up again.

MAO'S SUCCESSOR?

Chou kept wobbling to the top until he became Communist China's premier, one of the 6 men who control the destiny of 700 million Chinese. He has been mentioned as a possible successor to the Red Chinese Buddha himself, Mao Tse-tung, when old Mao at last "ascends the dragon."

Since the early days of the Chinese revolution, Chou En-lai has been the Chinese Communist ambassador to the outside world. He speaks flawless English and French, fair Japanese and Russian. While his comrades have remained secluded behind the Great Wall of China, he has roamed Asia, Africa and Europe. Few world leaders have greeted diplomats, inspected dam sites and laid wreaths with more patience and poise. He couldn't be ruffled even by the snickers over his name in France, where "chou" means "cabbage."

Wherever he has plowed his diplomatic furrows, Red China's agents and agitators have followed, spreading seeds of subversion. He has gone forth preaching an alliance of the colored, underprivileged people, "a pact among poor friends." The undercover men have come after him, organizing pro-Peking cells, passing out propaganda, slipping discreet bribes to corrupt officials. They seek a political harvest, not economic or cultural benefits. Chou's next goal—he is angling for invitations to visit Latin America.

I first met Chou En-lai when he was the Chinese Communist representative at Chiang Kai-shek's headquarters in wartime Chungking. I found him in the Communist party's dismal headquarters down one of Chungking's thousand alleyways. The alley was filled with shadows, its slime-covered cobblestones polished smooth by the tread of centuries of straw-sandaled feet. To be admitted, a visitor was obliged to identify himself through a speakeasy-style peephole—a useless conspiratorial ritual, since Chiang's secret police occupied the room overhead.

I saw Chou many times, I visited with him in the privacy of his living quarters. I chatted with him over egg rolls and moo gu gai pan. But not once was there a break in his impeccable mandarin manners that would reveal much about the man behind the suave smile.

So seldom has Chou's mask slipped that the rare instances are carefully recorded in the intelligence files kept on world figures.

• Once in India, Chou had failed to get the concessions he wanted from the Indians. His irritation was heightened by miserably hot weather. For a moment, his feelings bubbled to the surface and he let fly a few sharp, intemperate words.

• In Egypt, he was taken on a relentless round of tourist attractions while the man he came to see, President Nasser, remained aloof. Finally his hosts grandly insisted upon showing Chou a close-up view of the Sphinx. "Do I have to?" he pleaded. "I've already seen it from a distance."

• During the same visit, the Chinese premier walked up two flights of stairs at a hydroelectric plant. Suddenly he turned pale and tried to hide his face in a corner. Blood was seen trickling from his nose. A doctor and a nurse, who always hovered near-by, rushed to his aid with smelling salts. An intelligence report assessed the incident as due to "heart trouble or high blood pressure" but added that he had been a model of health since.

Communist sources give Chou's age variously as 66 or 68. He looks 10 years younger. His father was an official of the Manchu dynasty, which was overthrown in 1911. The future Communist was raised in a gentle, scholarly, cultured atmosphere. He attended the high-brow Nankai Middle School, then was sent to Japan for his college education. He came home to study at Nankai University, later traveled to France on a work-study scholarship.

As early as 1919, he began organizing student demonstrations against the government. He became a Communist in France while Mao Tse-tung was organizing the first Communist party on the Chinese mainland. Inevitably, Mao the peasant and Chou the mandarin were drawn together. During a brief Communist alliance with Chiang Kai-shek, Chou worked under Chiang training troops at China's Whampoa Academy.

Chou met his wife, Teng Ying-chao, in prison during their early revolutionary days. They carried on their courtship by mail while Chou was studying in France. There was no wedding ceremony, merely a Communist-style announcement that they intended to live together. Their only child died shortly after birth while Chou Tai-tai—Mrs. Chou—was hiding out from Chiang's police.

A WOMAN OF SUBSTANCE

Like her husband, Chou Tai-tai is intelligent, well-bred and witty. She has not remained hidden in her husband's shadow like the wives of the other Chinese rulers. As a deputy of the All-China Women's Federation, she is an important Communist in her own right.

The Chous live in a fashionable apartment overlooking a courtyard of flower beds inside Peking's forbidden city. Once the court of the Manchu emperors, this has now become the Chinese Kremlin. The apartment is tastefully furnished except for an ugly bronze bust of the omnipresent Mao Tse-tung. Nor have the Chous lost their bourgeois taste for fine foods. Though Chou has managed to hold his weight, his wife bulges beneath her gown.

The shrewd and scheming Chinese premier has been more a doer than dreamer. He is looked upon by China's administrators and technicians as leader of the so-called "managers," who are more concerned with efficiency than with theory. Chou sets an example of hard work himself, often staying in his office until 2 or 3 in the morning.

He has planted his disciples throughout China's vast bureaucracy and exercises a powerful control over it. But observers disagree over his chances of succeeding Mao. One State Department expert believes Chou has a "three-to-four" chance of succeeding Mao. Another insists that Chou "simply isn't in the line of succession."

But one thing is certain. Diplomats the world over, who wonder what is going on behind the scenes in Peking, keep a close watch on the changing expressions of Chou En-lai.

CHOU EN-LAI: FRONT MAN FOR RED CHINA

by JACK ANDERSON

At a diplomatic reception, I once watched Communist China's Chou En-lai drink a rival under the table. Not a muscle of Chou's face faltered as his opponent slowly turned to blubber playing the Chinese game of Gombei—bottoms up.

Drinking or sober, the suave and sardonic Chou has the most disciplined face in diplomacy. With a bland smile or a stony stare, he expresses the mysterious moods of Red China. When he beams, as he did upon Africa during a 10-nation tour last year, it means Red China is on the make. When his face freezes, as it did during recent Kremlin speeches by the new Soviet leaders, it registers Peking's displeasure.

For Chou En-lai is Red China's front man, as slick a salesman, as polished a pitchman, as ever tried to sell rebellion to the natives. His pitch—that the colored peoples of the world should rise up against the whites under Chinese Communist leadership.

Chou has the handsome face of the actor he started out to be. Indeed, he was such a pretty fellow that he was often given female roles. But if his face is expressive, it is also inscrutable. Only the dark, dynamic eyes are restless—darting, flashing, peering—under arched black brows.

Chou also has the breeding of the aristocratic mandarin he was brought up to be. Charming and urbane, he can hold his own in the most sophisticated company. But he can be a cold, unyielding negotiator, too. An Indian diplomat told me that Chou once held a Chinese-Indian conference in session for 12 hours "arguing over the placement of a comma."

This Chinese Talleyrand gave up his bourgeois beginnings to become a revolutionary, left the theater to perform on the world stage. Trained as a Confucianist intellectual, sworn to serve the masses, he was inclined at first to look upon Marx as a modern Confucius. But Chou turned out to be sufficiently treacherous and cunning to rise rapidly in the Communist movement. Indeed, he developed such a talent for conspiring and conniving, ever switching to the winning side, always keeping his head below the purge line, that he came to be called Pu Tao Weng, after the Chinese doll that cannot be pushed over but always bobs back up again.

MAO'S SUCCESSOR?

Chou kept wobbling to the top until he became Communist China's premier, one of the 6 men who control the destiny of 700 million Chinese. He has been mentioned as a possible successor to the Red Chinese Buddha himself, Mao Tse-tung, when old Mao at last "ascends the dragon."

Since the early days of the Chinese revolution, Chou En-lai has been the Chinese Communist ambassador to the outside world. He speaks flawless English and French, fair Japanese and Russian. While his comrades have remained secluded behind the Great Wall of China, he has roamed Asia, Africa and Europe. Few world leaders have greeted diplomats, inspected dam sites and laid wreaths with more patience and poise. He couldn't be ruffled even by the snickers over his name in France, where "chou" means "cabbage."

Wherever he has plowed his diplomatic furrows, Red China's agents and agitators have followed, spreading seeds of subversion. He has gone forth preaching an alliance of the colored, underprivileged people, "a pact among poor friends." The undercover men have come after him, organizing pro-Peking cells, passing out propaganda, slipping discreet bribes to corrupt officials. They seek a political harvest, not economic or cultural benefits. Chou's next goal—he is angling for invitations to visit Latin America.

I first met Chou En-lai when he was the Chinese Communist representative at Chiang Kai-shek's headquarters in wartime Chungking. I found him in the Communist party's dismal headquarters down one of Chungking's thousand alleyways. The alley was filled with shadows, its slime-covered cobblestones polished smooth by the tread of centuries of straw-sandaled feet. To be admitted, a visitor was obliged to identify himself through a speakeasy-style peephole—a useless conspiratorial ritual, since Chiang's secret police occupied the room overhead.

I saw Chou many times, I visited with him in the privacy of his living quarters, I chatted with him over egg rolls and moo gu gai pan. But not once was there a break in his impeccable mandarin manners that would reveal much about the man behind the suave smile.

So seldom has Chou's mask slipped that the rare instances are carefully recorded in the intelligence files kept on world figures.

• Once in India, Chou had failed to get the concessions he wanted from the Indians. His irritation was heightened by miserably hot weather. For a moment, his feelings bubbled to the surface and he let fly a few sharp, intemperate words.

• In Egypt, he was taken on a relentless round of tourist attractions while the man he came to see, President Nasser, remained aloof. Finally his hosts grandly insisted upon showing Chou a close-up view of the Sphinx. "Do I have to?" he pleaded. "I've already seen it from a distance."

• During the same visit, the Chinese premier walked up two flights of stairs at a hydroelectric plant. Suddenly he turned pale and tried to hide his face in a corner. Blood was seen trickling from his nose. A doctor and a nurse, who always hovered near-by, rushed to his aid with smelling salts. An intelligence report assessed the incident as due to "heart trouble or high blood pressure" but added that he had been a model of health since.

Communist sources give Chou's age variously as 66 or 68. He looks 10 years younger. His father was an official of the Manchu dynasty, which was overthrown in 1911. The future Communist was raised in a gentle, scholarly, cultured atmosphere. He attended the high-brow Nankai Middle School, then was sent to Japan for his college education. He came home to study at Nankai University, later traveled to France on a work-study scholarship.

As early as 1919, he began organizing student demonstrations against the government. He became a Communist in France while Mao Tse-tung was organizing the first Communist party on the Chinese mainland. Inevitably, Mao the peasant and Chou the mandarin were drawn together. During a brief Communist alliance with Chiang Kai-shek, Chou worked under Chiang training troops at China's Whampoa Academy.

Chou met his wife, Teng Ying-chao, in prison during their early revolutionary days. They carried on their courtship by mail while Chou was studying in France. There was no wedding ceremony, merely a Communist-style announcement that they intended to live together. Their only child died shortly after birth while Chou Tai-tai—Mrs. Chou—was hiding out from Chiang's police.

A WOMAN OF SUBSTANCE

Like her husband, Chou Tai-tai is intelligent, well-bred and witty. She has not remained hidden in her husband's shadow like the wives of the other Chinese rulers. As a deputy of the All-China Women's Federation, she is an important Communist in her own right.

what your baby sees

Luminous, lovely, alight... a baby's eyes are a delight to behold. But when does a baby begin to see clearly? (Question asked by countless mothers.) Average development pattern:

At birth your baby sees only light and dark and eyes work independently.

At 3 months, eyes focus at the same time and he (or she) begins to distinguish shapes, responds happily to colors and familiar faces.

At 4 to 5 months, he moves his eyes in unison... follows moving objects... turns his head to "look" for sound.

P.S. Good look-aids for baby's sight-seeing excursions: mobiles and balloons to help eye movement... music for sound direction.

The makings of meal-appeal

Think flavor is the only thing that appeals to babies? Not so! Inviting colors and texture are important, too, especially when baby can see his supper (or lunch). Gerber Strained Fruits are great on all three counts. Flavors are true-to-nature and tempting. Colors are bright and inviting; the texture so palate-pleasing one spoonful just naturally calls for another.

What's the secret behind the success of Gerber Fruits for babies? They're made from choice, juicy varieties and flash-cooked in seconds to preserve those orchard-good flavors and colors. What's more, flash-cooking also protects the precious vitamins so important to your baby.

Incentive plans

Along about the 6- to 7-months stage, your baby will develop eye-hand co-ordination. That's the time to place objects just within reach to improve reachability and graspability. Gerber Teething Biscuits are fine for helping eye-to-hand and hand-to-mouth co-ordination.

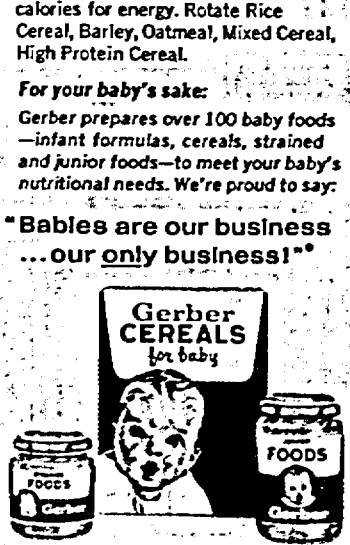

Satisfying situation

For eating satisfaction and nutritional goodness, Gerber Baby Cereals fill the bill beautifully. They're famous for their pleasing flavors and dreamy-smooth texture. (And they stay smooth, right down to the last delightful spoonful.) Nutritionally, they meet several of your baby's daily requirements. All five are enriched with iron to help build good red blood and important B-vitamins to aid appetite and growth. Calcium is also added to increase the amount supplied by milk. Last, but not least, they're rich in calories for energy. Rotate Rice Cereal, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal, High Protein Cereal.

For your baby's sake:

Gerber prepares over 100 baby foods —infant formulas, cereals, strained and junior foods—to meet your baby's nutritional needs. We're proud to say:

AN OLD MAN & HIS GRANDCHILDREN

Churchill's grandson approaches his famous...

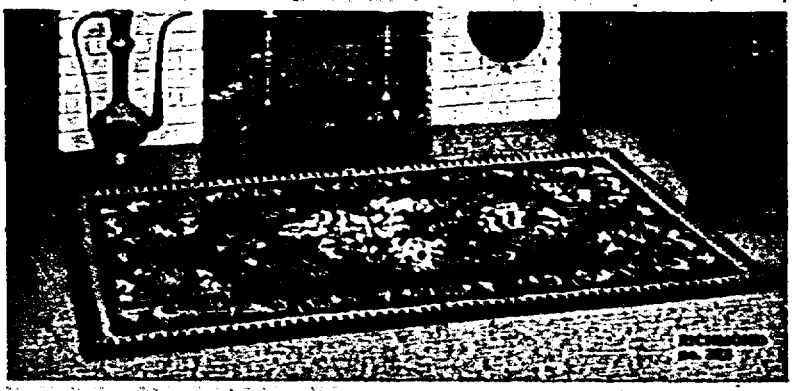

...grandfather as both sister and nanny look on.

■ The captains and the kings have departed, but his grandchildren linger on. Recently turned 90, Sir Winston Churchill relaxes at Chartwell and enjoys the company of his granddaughter and grandson, children of his daughter Mary and Christopher Soames. Frequent visitors at Churchill's country home, they always find him ready to welcome them within the halo of cigar smoke, ready to help solve their problems or provide a tall tale. His finest hour over and the children grown restive, Sir Winston is finally left alone. Removing the wide hat, he rubs his head and waits for evening, thinking about the past.

To augment the family income, Phyllis went to work as a copywriter in Kahn's Department Store, Oakland. Later she transferred to radio station KSFO in San Francisco, found herself on the fringes of show business. In 1955 she made her first night-club appearance at The Purple Onion in San Francisco "just for laughs." She was so good she stayed for 89 weeks. Since then she's developed into one of the leading comediennes in the nation, appearing on TV, in films and clubs everywhere. She is married to her college sweetheart, Sherwood Diller; they have 5 children, age-ranging from 14 to 24, and live in Webster Groves, Mo. Phyllis makes bountiful use of her life and her family in her comedy routine, tells such jokes as these:*

Before I left Lima, Ohio, and went to New York City for the first time, all my friends and relatives warned me about the big, cruel city. I was told to beware of New Yorkers, that they were cold, heartless, grasping, conniving, ready to cheat rubes from the country like me at every turn.

When I got to New York therefore, I was really prepared, really sharp, really alert. When I checked into a hotel, I was ready. I remember the bellboy who was carrying my luggage.

"Look here," I said to him, "I'm not going to move into a tiny room like this. It's hardly big enough for a flea. What are you trying to pull off here? This room has no windows, no bed, no toilet facilities. Just because I come from a small town, don't think you can pull a fast one on me. You take me to the manager, and I'll tell him what I think of this room."

"Ma'am," said the bellhop softly, "before you blow your top, this isn't your room. This is the elevator."

I have a husband. His name is Fang. One night he didn't come home. I went down to the Missing Persons Bureau at Police Headquarters. They asked for a description: "My husband is 5-feet-2," I said, "fat, disagreeable. He drinks, gambles, wears thick glasses, has two warts on his forehead, hair on his ears, most of his teeth are missing, he's alcoholic, unbearable, lazy . . . on second thought, officer, let's skip the whole thing."

Nowadays I'm beginning to have morning sickness. I'm not going to have a baby. It's just that I'm sick of mornings.

I've finally found out a great way to start the day. Go back to bed.

I might as well admit it. I am the woman whose face once stopped a sundial.

Fang would like to be a beachcomber, but he can't find a beach with hair.

I shop like a bull—charge everything.

Our marriage was a big mistake. I was at the courthouse applying for a dog license.

My husband Fang has reached the metallic age: gold teeth, silver hair and lead in his seat.

For years we've been trying to marry off Fang's sister, Captain Bligh. It's no use. To catch a man you have to use live bait.

even embarrassing itching

Now you can get fast, blessed relief from the tortures of itching, chafing, rashes, dry skin eczema . . . even embarrassing membrane itching (feminine and personal).

Thousands of women and men suffer the torture and embarrassment of membrane itching. But now they are discovering the wonderful relief LANACANE brings.

Don't suffer another day. Try LANACANE. This amazing medicated creme is greaseless, vanishing, pleasant to use. At all drug stores.

Doctors explain how LANACANE breaks "itch-cycle"

1. Itching causes scratching . . . scratching increases irritation, causing more itching . . . more scratching.

2. LANACANE calms irritated nerve ends. Stops urge to scratch, thus breaks vicious "itch-scratch-itch-cycle".

Soothes raw, inflamed tissue, checks harmful bacteria, helps speed healing

Shrinks Hemorrhoids New Way Without Surgery

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both — Relieves Pain — Shrinks Hemorrhoids

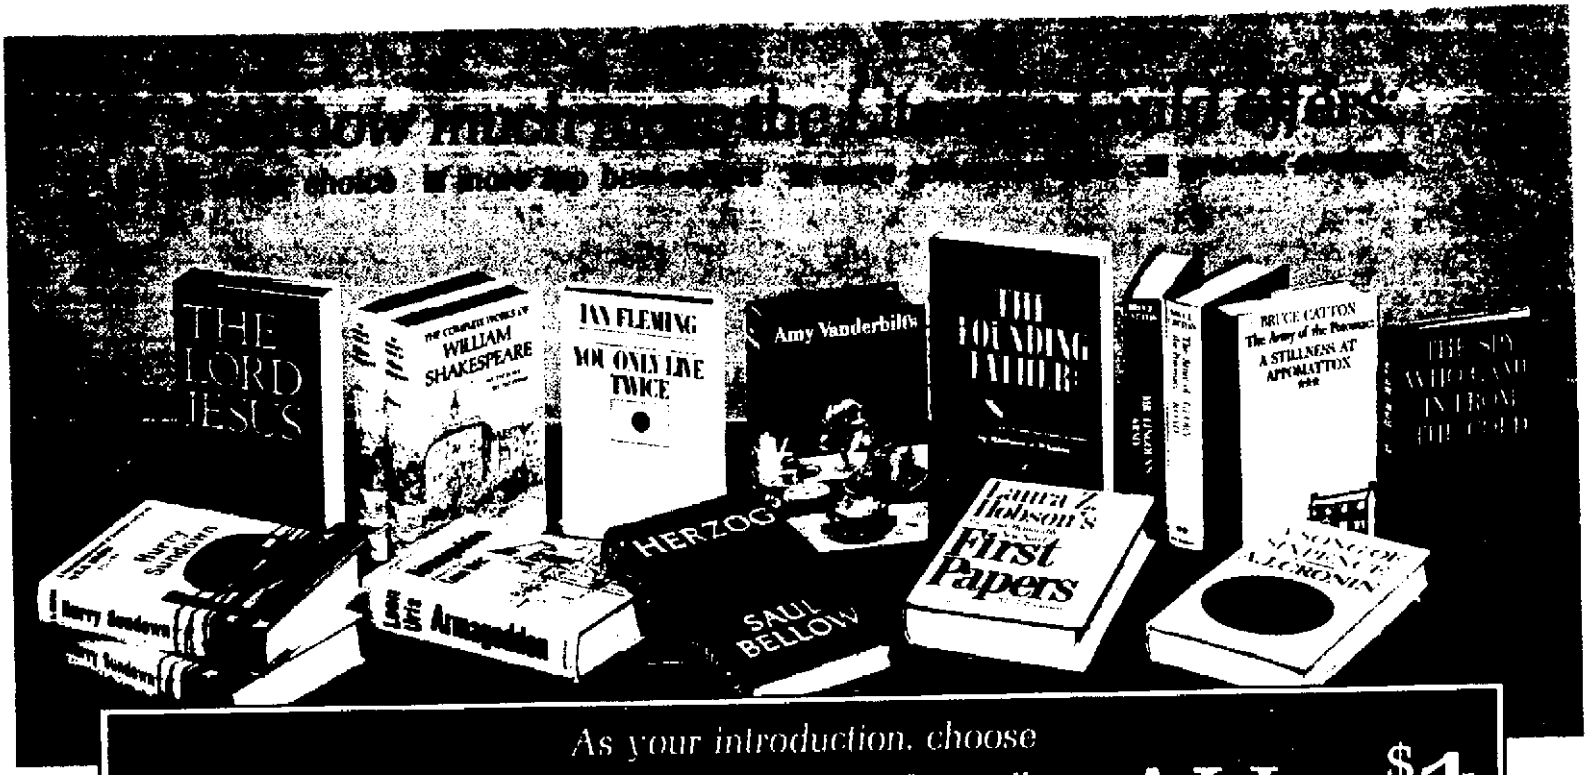

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—discovery of a world-famous research institute.

This substance is now available in suppository or ointment form under the name Preparation H®. At all drug counters.
